Definite Move On RKO Setup Near at Hand

them will undergo but slight change between now and the conclusion of the management discussions.

At the present time the intention is—

1. That Leo Spitz, president, will continue with the company;
2. That J. R. McDonough, former president of RKO Radio Pictures, will be designated for an executive post with well defined authority, presumably, however, only until the company is out of reorganization;
3. That Pandro S. Berman will be designated production head;
4. That the present RKO theatre operating setup will continue without change for some time to come.

Presumably, the aim of the conferees is to make permanent the four-cornered situation as it exists today. In order to do so, a definition of authority in the top executive posts appears to be necessary before any part of the program could be solidified or made workable. With the RKO trustee having access to the counsel of principal creditors in the current discussions this appears likely to be achieved within a matter of days.

With the executive posts clarified, it is believed highly probable that a proposal acceptable to Berman could be completed without delay. Berman has shied away from the added responsibilities of the post of production head, heretofore, but conferees here are of the opinion that arrangements could be made which would meet with his acceptance.

Immediate action on the theatre operating post is unlikely for the immediate future. All influential RKO interests are represented on good authority as being completely satisfied with the conduct of circuit operations by John O'Connor, Leslie E. Thompson and other theatre department heads.

Judy Garland Busy

Judy Garland didn't know what she let herself in for when she came to New York. Loew's publicity department sent out a hurry call to theatre managers asking if they wanted a picture of Judy reading their local newspapers, the idea being that the papers grab such photos for promotional ads, etc. So far, 50 requests have been received and today Judy will start posing for the bulb flashers.

block booking, and by a requirement that every feature picture over 2,000 feet in length shall be accompanied by a complete and accurate scenario when offered for lease, outlaws blind booking.

In its report in 1936, the committee held that "not only are the practices of compulsory block booking and blind selling injurious to the public in forcing the showing of obscene or vicious pictures and in preventing the showing of many that are desirable, but they unfairly burden and oppress the independent exhibitors.

"Perhaps the most serious objection to these practices," the committee said, "lies in the fact that they tend to monopolize the playing time of the screens of the country and thus discourage independent producers from entering the field.

"So far as the exhibitors are concerned, the practices in question appear to be abnormal and unduly oppressive, and, from the standpoint of independent producers, they have the capacity and tendency to give to the "big eight" a virtual monopoly of the screens of the country, both affiliated and independent."

company's plans for obtaining adequate capital on advantageous terms were stopped some time ago by the condition of the market. Phil Goldstone, he said, was merely trying to be of assistance and Goldstone had no personal interest in the negotiations that were under way recently in New York. Goldstone's efforts so far have not brought any results, Alperson added.

"But we are in good shape and don't need any money now," he said. "We have cut our overhead considerably and are taking in enough through collections to meet current running expense as well as put money into production. Our assets are four or five times our liabilities."

Alperson said Grand National has about 5,500 accounts. Fifteen pictures have been delivered since last September on this year's contracts out of the 48 scheduled, he said. Pictures that were due on 1936-'37 contracts were canceled out last May, he disclosed.

He said he would return to the coast next week.

Radio Self-Control Is Impossible—Lohr rules governing radio broadcasting similar to that of motion picture Production Code Authority was unworkable because:

Many scripts of both local and national programs are changed at the last minute; there can be no central body established for reading all scripts and a state of great confusion would exist if each station agreed to abide by certain industry-wide self-imposed regulations and then unintentionally violated them.

He told of restrictions imposed by NBC on the uses of various words, discussion of certain topics, and bans on certain subjects, such as detailing the commission of a crime, and added that he did not feel that censorship would ever come from a body outside of the radio industry, either, because of difficulties arising also in that direction.

Lohr disclosed that the NBC center here will be called Hollywood Radio City. The present building on Melrose Ave. will be retained, however, despite the added space in the new structure pending the outcome of the trend to Hollywood of eastern programs.

The recession has not hit broadcasting yet, Lohr said, pointing out that NBC had 22 new programs started in January.

Majors Calm Over Neely Bill Action

New York distribution circles were unperturbed yesterday over the news that the Neely anti-block booking bill had been reported favorably to the Senate by that body's Interstate Commerce Committee, but local exhibitors displayed keen interest in the development.

Comment typical of that encountered in distribution quarters was this: "The action is not surprising in view of the fact that the same committee with substantially the same membership took the same action last year."

Exhibitor opinion is characterized by this: "The distributors have only themselves to blame. After all the agitation there has been for this type of legislation, they started out this season by either refusing a cancellation privilege or establishing less liberal cancellation terms than were offered in preceding years."

Both exhibitor and distributor spokesmen were in agreement for the most part that no further action on the measure could be expected in the Senate for at least another month, due to the congested calendar resulting from the Senate filibuster. It was admitted, however, that the committee's move would be likely to encourage House action on the Pettengill bill.

Film Measure Completed by Commons Unit

Bill Now Goes to Third Reading in House

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The British Films Bill, in which is included the controversial quota provisions, finally was completed today in amended form by the House of Commons Films Bill Committee, which has had the measure under consideration for several months. The bill now will go to the full House of Commons for a third reading and probable approval.

During the final committee session today, Oliver Stanley, Board of Trade president, was bombarded with amendments, some seeking an increase in the quota percentages. He refused to consider an increase in the distributor quota, but agreed to an increase in the exhibitor quota from 10 to 12½ per cent. At the same time he accepted a suggestion that after the first year of the new Films Act, the new Film Council might consider a revision of the exhibitors' quota percentages. The limit would be an increase from 25 per cent to 30 per cent at the close of the 10-year period of the new legislation.

Admiral Taylor contended that Stanley "pistol-pointed" the producers,

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 10.—"The Beloved Brat" is an interesting and different kind of picture. It is not entertainment as many interpret the word. It is a striking demonstration of how the screen may serve as an educational medium. Here is a serious story sometimes to the point of being forbidding. The film is a problem play, not without humor, that should engage the attention of every father and mother.

The heroine is a child (expertly played by Bonita Granville), who, neglected and ignored by her wealthy parents, became a 13-year-old she-devil who drove all coming in contact with her to the verge of nervous prostration. Culminating her series of spiteful escapades by causing a fatal automobile accident and giving perjured testimony which sends a chauffeur to jail, she is placed in a corrective school. She is stubborn at first, even against the hazing of other child inmates. But she responds to kindness. In a dramatic episode with Dolores Costello that is overheard by her parents, Donald Crisp and Natalie Moorehead, she refuses to go home. Later with her mother at the point of death, Crisp comes to her, confesses his dereliction of fatherly duty. He admits that Miss Moorehead and he were wrong and begs her to return to the home she will make happy.

There are many things that recommend "The Beloved Brat" to the exhibitor and to public attention. There is the remarkable performance by Miss Granville; the understanding support by Miss Costello, Crisp, Emmet Vogan, Lucille Gleason and the roles of Bernice Pilot and Stymie Beard, colored players. Then there is the quality of the original story by Jean Negulesco and the screenplay by Lawrence Kimball. The film was forcefully directed by Arthur Lubin.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Romance in the Dark"

(Paramount)

Public enthusiasm for musical films should be stimulated by "Romance in the Dark." This is the film in which Gladys Swarthout is the target in a tomato-throwing episode that reaped national publicity. The stunt has been soft-pedaled a bit, but is nevertheless present. John Boles lends his voice.

The musical content of the picture, which is worked in with the serio-comedy aspects of the story, include arias from the works of Rimsky-Korsakoff, Bizet and modern ballads by Ralph Rainger, Leon Robin, Phil Boutelje, Ned Washington and Jay Gorney. John Barrymore gives a Hungarian version of an impresario.

Miss Swarthout, graduate of a country music school, haunts Boles, a famous Hungarian tenor, until he learns she can sing. He sees in her a solution to his difficulties, with Barrymore, who makes himself annoying by stealing all of Boles' women. Boles takes Miss Swarthout out to his country place, which is adjacent to the estate of Claire Dodds, his current interest. There he sets a snare for Barrymore by palming Miss Swarthout off as a Persian princess. Barrymore, about to be left out on a limb, romantically and commercially, for Boles is hesitating about signing a new contract with him, takes the bait. After a few complications between Boles and Miss Swarthout—they both seem to have fallen in love—Barrymore takes Miss Swarthout to a debut in Budapest. A snooping columnist learns she is just a country girl and publishes it on her opening night. Her debut is almost a flop. Boles steps into the leading male role and saves the situation. The proceedings are satisfactorily ironed out for everyone except Barrymore.

The film was directed by H. C. Potter. Boris Morros' musical direction is his usual well turned out work. The production, musically and theatricallally is first rate.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 44

(20th Century-Fox)

Lew Lehr's inanities provided this reviewer with more entertainment than anything else in the current Movietone release, hence either the midweek news situation or the reviewer's sense of humor is found wanting.

President Roosevelt reads a message in observance of Boy Scouts Day and New York Scouts parade up Fifth Avenue to church services. A heap of used cars go up in flames to make a Roman holiday for newsreel cameramen and an Indiana motorists' safety campaign. Mabel Starke tells the folks why she'd rather train lions than men, i. e., to get some publicity for Al G. Barnes' Circus. A new Colorado River dam project supplies good pictorial material, and shots of the Silver Skates contests at Madison Square Garden, New York, rate high in entertainment value. Southern California contributes a clip on a girls' softball team in good form, and northern California comes through with some blizzard scenery of good pictorial value. Clips on ice skate sailing and on how to be beautiful though bespectacled are brief. But that Lew Lehr and his beef trust! What a man!

Running time, 10 mins. K.

News of the Day

Vol. 9, No. 242

(M-G-M)

When conversation turns to the weather, usually it is for lack of a better subject. When the weather is the feature of a newsreel release, usually it is for the same reason. A blizzard in the northern California mountains, floods in Illinois and various goings-on in Florida, where little would occur if it weren't for the winter climate, occupy a large part of this release.

An ice derby at Madison Square Garden, New York, is as good a subject as any in this edition. A mass wrecking and burning of used cars in an Indiana safety campaign makes good pictorial material. A message from President Roosevelt on the occasion of National Boy Scouts Week is on the routine side. A New York police roundup of suspicious characters and a brief exposition of criminal identification work is turned to the service of N. Y. World's Fair publicity. A fur fashion show with Florida bathing beauties as models verges on the scenic, while a woman lion trainer at work is just one of those things. A free-for-all in a Florida mud ring and the Washington post-nuptial antics of one Senator Smathers and bride are on the comedy side.

Running time, 9 minutes. K.

Paramount News

No. 55

(Paramount)

There is an ample range of material in this issue of the reel to suit all tastes. The featured clip pertains to the general indictment of the "lunacy commission" system, which is said to be causing the release of criminals, showing the New York legislative hearings, and the local police roundup of suspects, as well as their appearance in the "lineup."

Workmen are seen flocking to the shipyards at Newport News for work in connection with the Navy's building program, experts are seen at work in Washington on new plans, and two gun and torpedo plants are pictured in the midst of activity. Less significant material includes the departure of Herbert Hoover for Belgium, Frederick Snite, Jr., in his "iron lung" witnessing the wedding of his sister, Mabel Stark training lions, a French exhibit of surrealist painting, and good scenes of the record snowfall in the Sierra Nevadas.

Running time, 10 mins. A.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 59

(RKO)

There is little in this reel to bring it out of the routine class, leading with a Boy Scout anniversary parade in New York, and a greeting and appreciation from President Roosevelt. A new plane designed for fast stratosphere flights is pictured in Chicago tests, Herbert Hoover leaves for a visit to Belgium, and there is amusement in the heavy Scotch burr of a workman expressing his happiness at the prospect of a long period of employment, as he goes to work on the Queen Elizabeth in a Glasgow shipyard.

Of interest to women will be the well-photographed fashion shots from Vogue, picturing the new spring styles in formal and semi-formal wear, against an attractive room background. Fort Wayne, Ind., contributes to the auto safety campaign by making a huge bonfire of ancient and dangerous automobiles, the wrestling squad of Washington & Lee engages in a wrestling free-for-all, and the New York police are seen launching their dragnet for suspects, with an interesting flash of what happens when an individual phones a call for police help, and shots of the "lineup."

Running time, 8 mins. A.

Universal Newsreel

No. 640

(Universal)

Here is another routine assemblage of wintry weather phenomena, bathing girls, airplane tests and other assorted events which are brightened and made interesting by good editing and lively captions.

The floods and ice jams in Illinois and up-state New York were made the lead. Next is Deanna Durbin leaving imprints of her hands and feet in Sid Grauman's sidewalk. Attractive girls at a Miami Beach pool play swimming waitresses. Donner Summit, Cal., is shown coming out from under a heavy snowfall. Herbert Hoover is seen embarking for Belgium. Two newly developed airplanes make trial flights. The prettiest girl in eyeglasses gets a trip to Hollywood as a prize. Fifty old cars make a spectacular fire in Fort Wayne, Ind. Buxom performers from the chorus of a Miami night club do beefy calisthentics on the beach. A diverting clip on mud-wrestling at Lake Worth, Fla., humorously brings the reel to its conclusion.

Running time, 9 mins. P.

"The Baroness and the Butler"

(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 10.—In view of his rise to fifth position in the MOTION PICTURE HERALD's list of the Ten Best for 1937 it is axiomatic that William Powell's first 1938 vehicle will sell well to the customers. "The Baroness and the Butler" has the additional allure as well as being exploited as Annabella's first American film. Further, it offers Powell in his popular role of a super butler who politely looks down his nose at his overstuffed betters. These and other selling points may prove powerful enough to divert attention from a regrettable lack of sparkling dialogue, a certain narrational incoherence in the closing stretches and a not especially fortuitous embroidering of the social upheaval theme with humorous intent. It should not be exploited as one of Darryl F. Zanuck's major triumphs.

The play by Ladislaus Bus-Fekete of a continental setting and pattern details the rise of Butler Powell as a radical member of Parliament while continuing in the service of conservative Prime Minister Henry Stephenson, who he deposes politically and who ultimately dismisses him personally for neglecting his work. Thereupon Powell tells Stephenson's daughter, Annabella, of his love and is discovered in her embrace by her husband, Joseph Schildkraut, who uses his husbandly advantage to extort political benefit. But he is thwarted when Annabella tells Parliament all about it in an open session.

The screenplay by Sam Hellman. Lamar Trotti and Kathryn Scola achieves a moderate degree of situational humor, but fails to support it adequately in the speaking department. It starts slowly, changes key in mid-picture and winds up a little confusedly as something between political satire and emotional drama.

Associate Producer Raymond Griffith and Director Walter Lang were manifestly liberal in the expenditure of money and time in an effort to turn out a glittering piece of sophisticated merchandise. It is an exceptionally beautiful product. Unfortunately, it is not very funny. Possibly, as remarked, the obvious sales points will compensate for this deficiency.

Running time, 77 minutes. "A."

Musicians Sue Over Limitation on Work

tion. The resolution was adopted by a referendum vote of 2,780 to 1,946 Dec. 29 and was scheduled to take effect Feb. 15. Permission to bring the suit for the purpose of deciding the legality of the resolution was granted by the union.

The resolution reads:

"WHEREAS the great unemployment of members tends to cause disunity among the membership, thus weakening its position and strength, and

"WHEREAS engagements are unequally distributed within our local, resulting in the fact that a relatively small group do all the work while the great majority of our membership is unemployed,

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that a referendum ballot vote be held at the headquarters of the local Dec. 29, 1937, notice of which is to be sent by mail to all members not later than Dec. 23 on the following proposition:

"Any member playing a steady job paying $54 or more per week shall be prohibited from accepting any additional engagements except (1) in the case of name organizations that play extra engagements as an entity under said name, and (2) in the case of individuals in unusual circumstances warranting exception (such circumstances to be judged and passed upon by the Executive Board)."

The petitioners contend that price scales and working conditions are fixed by the constitution and by-laws and can be amended only in the manner provided in the constitution. It is alleged that the resolution attempts to avoid these requirements and that the limitation of one job to a member will fail of its purpose to spread employment.

Even in Iceland

Records are falling faster than the stock market.

Paramount sends this out:

"In what is probably the first announcement regarding the breaking of motion picture records in Iceland, the statement is issued by Paramount's Foreign Department to the effect that 'The Jungle Princess' starring Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland recently broke all existing records at the Gamla Bio, Reykjavik, Iceland, including the record established by 'Lives of a Bengal Lancer' several years ago. It is apparent from this that what the people in Iceland like are pictures filmed in torrid climes."

"Remous," on which an appeal has been filed by Arthur Mayer and Joseph Burstyn, was not reviewed today on request of the producers, who asked for a later date. Arthur Garfield Hays is one of the attorneys for the appellants.

The Board of Regents is expected to take action tomorrow on a new appeal filed by the American Committee on Maternal Welfare, Inc., on "The Birth of a Baby," denied a license by Esmond, who was subsequently upheld by Commissioner of Education Frank P. Graves. As the Regents also have reviewed the picture, they are not expected to again review it, but may hand down a decision on the appeal.

Caruthers Is Denied Appeal in RKO Suit

Allen Caruthers, a playwright, was denied permission to appeal or reargue an order which dismissed his plagiarism suit against RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., by Federal Judge John M. Woolsey in the U. S. District Court here yesterday. Judge Woolsey dismissed the suit last August.

In his opinion Judge Woolsey pointed out that the original motion had received "careful consideration" and that the time to appeal had expired. Caruthers charged infringement of his play, "The Sooners," in "Cimarron." He sought an accounting of the profits, an injunction and damages.

Dismiss Kaplan-Fox Suit

The $50,000 copyright infringement suit brought by F. Kay Kaplan against the Fox Film Corp. was dismissed by Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell in the U. S. District Court here yesterday after a trial extending over two weeks.

Miss Kaplan charged that the copyrighted cover design of the August, 1929, issue of Theatre Magazine was infringed in a set used for "George White's Scandals of 1935."

Guild to Court on "Gods"

Legal action to restrain the distributors of the film, "The Gods at Play," from use of the title and allusions to "Amphitryon 38" in advertising and publicity is to be taken by the Theatre Guild, producer of the latter play now current on Broadway, the Guild stated yesterday. Charging that the advertising and publicity used in connection with the film is "misleading and improper," the Guild states that while use of such matter has been discontinued in New York and Chicago it is being repeated in other cities, and added that "the Guild intends to take legal action to protect its rights."

Equity Defers Merger

The entertainment line includes Sheila Barrett, Bert Frohman, Judy Garland, Bob Hall, Estelle Taylor, the Grey Family, Francis Lederer, Margo, Ralph Bellamy and Gertrude Niesen.

Among those expected to attend are Jack Cohn, Abe Montague, Nate Spingold, Louis Barbano, Joe McConville, A. Schneider, Louis Weinberg, Louis Astor, Max Weisfeldt, Hy Daab, Charles Moskowitz, Spyros Skouras, Joseph Vogel, W. G. Rolan Quizzes Young Guests at the Ampa

Ralph Rolan, president of Ampa, turned interviewer at the luncheon meeting of the group yesterday and elicited some pertinent information from Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis, of the cast of "Tom Sawyer." When Rolan suggested that the Selznick picture will follow "Snow White" at the Music Hall as a sort of trailer in reverse English, the kids burned up.

Louis Schaffer, general director of the Labor Stage, spoke on the production of "Pins and Needles," drawing the moral that producers, as well as advertising men, would do well to adopt two principles: Know your commodity and know your market.

Gloria and Yvonne Mann, child actors, gave a takeoff on Judith Anderson and Helen Menken in "The Old Maid." Roy Harris, winner of M-G-M's $5,000 "Of Human Hearts" title contest, took a bow and said he will use the money for a college education.

Predicts Christmas Revenue on "White"

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is expected by RKO to pile up repeat bookings during the Christmas holidays for several years. Ralph Rolan, who returned yesterday from Cleveland, said he had been advised by branch managers during his recent trips that for the next five years they expect to gross from $5,000 to $15,000 in each territory on holiday repeats on the Disney feature.

While RKO is not insisting that the picture be played on a single bill, many exhibitors are booking it that way, Rolan said. He was in Cleveland to prepare for the opening of the film tomorrow at the Hippodrome. The theatre will open at 8:30 A.M. every day and will give nine shows daily. The picture is scheduled to stay at the Hippodrome three weeks and may go longer. The theatre seldom holds a film beyond two weeks, Rolan said.

New Shows on the Air

"Famous Fortunes"

"Famous Fortunes," a new series depicting in dramatized form the careers of America's millionaires, is a novel and entertaining new program on Mutual. The initial presentation dealt with the life of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Neil O'Malley played the role of the Commodore, playing him from the ages of 16 to 70. He was skillful in fashioning his voice to the increasing years of the character.

The principal fault of the program is its abbreviated time on the air, 15 minutes. It obviously is quite difficult to trace a full career in that limited time, and consequently much bridging and glossing over of events is resorted to via a commentator, in this instance Mark Hawley. Production, however, by John Bates, was excellent, as was the script, by Margaret di Mott. Richland Shoe Co. sponsors, Wednesdays from 7:45 to 8 P. M. Badger, Browning and Hershey is the agency controlling the account.

XEBG Drops English On Its Day Programs

San Diego, Feb. 10.—XEBG is taking no chances with a new shakeup of Mexican stations in the offing. The border transmitter is billing itself as "The only 100 per cent Mexican station." It uses no English from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. The final 10 to 11 hour is dedicated to American listeners—who are given jazz records and a chance to buy oil leases.

The announcer invites Americans to listen all day, remarking: "Even if you don't understand the announcements, you'll enjoy the music," which is all of Latin tempo or classical recordings.

San Diego air is now crowded with seven border transmitters, with listeners particularly up in arms against XELO with its broad signal messing up network stations on this side.

Announcers and players from both stations are collaborating on a dramatization of the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.'s history, to be followed by the whine of a huge new electric generating unit as it turns over for the first time. Remote equipment is being furnished by KFSD while KGB tosses in its entire production crew. The utility is a heavy time buyer on both stations.

forcing them either to accept his whole alternative quota proposal or abandon it entirely. He protested limiting the cost clause for quota eligibility on next year's American product to 460 films, which, he said, will result in increased demands for British pictures, but no British film supply.

Stanley declared that when the measure is brought to the floor of the Commons, he would introduce two changes in the act, one concerned with reciprocity and the other related to the amount of quota right to be obtained on especially expensive films.

There is no specific indication at this time exactly when the bill will be brought up for the third reading in Commons. After that procedure the vote will be taken, and later the measure will go to the House of Lords. In the event that the House of Lords does not approve the bill, it will be returned to the Commons for further consideration.

The present distributors' quota will expire on March 31, and the exhibitors' quota in September.

CEA Presents Plans In "A" Film Booking

London, Feb. 10.—The Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, continuing its conference today with the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) on the booking of so-called "A" films, offered two plans. The exhibitors had registered sharp objection to the distributor plan to limit exhibitors to playing only one "A" film on a program.

The schemes proposed by the exhibitor organization were claimed by its representatives to be practical and having as their objective the booking of only one "A" film on a program. One suggestion was based on an insistence that the great majority of the advertising and billing costs be expended on the "A" film on a program, with penalties to be exacted for violation. The other suggestion was for a special "A" film contract, with heavy and accumulative penalties for offenders, whether distributor or exhibitor. The distributors will consider the plans at a special meeting next week.

Allied to Decide on Its Insurance Plan

Allied's insurance committee is to make a decision on the offer of the Associated Indemnity Co. of San Francisco for a group rate on exhibitors' liability insurance coverage. The rate proposed is 10 per cent lower than that in effect with Lloyds, which has contracts in effect with a number of Allied members. The new proposal will either supersede the Lloyds plan or will supplement it, it was said here yesterday by Arthur K. Howard of Boston, Allied's recording secretary. Others on the insurance committee are Fred Herrington of Pittsburgh, Lee Newbury of New Jersey and Herman Blum of Baltimore.

Because of the success of Republic's serials, the company will continue to devote considerable attention to the chapter plays, which are getting playing time in theatres which never ran serials, he asserted. In addition to "The Lone Ranger" and "Dick Tracy," the company will make "The Fighting Devil Dogs," which is in preparation, and "The Hawk of the Wilderness," with an Arctic background.

World's Film Theatres Now Total 89,097

Russia Responsible for Drop from Year Ago

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—There were 89,097 film theatres throughout the world on Jan. 1, 1938, which compares with a world total of 97,379 on Jan. 1, 1937, according to a survey completed by Nathan D. Golden, chief of the Motion Picture Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The decrease of 8,282 theatres is largely accounted for by a sharp drop in Soviet Russia, according to the study. In that market, traveling theatres, workers' halls and similar places are equipped for sound pictures and are classified as film theatres. On Jan. 1, 1937, Russia claimed 34,990 theatres, of which 2,285 were wired. The following year, a decrease of 8,890 was shown there, with 26,000 operating, of which 6,337 had sound film facilities.

Of the 89,097 theatres throughout the world at the beginning of this year, 62,895 were wired for sound, an increase of 7,332 wired houses as compared with the 1937 total, when there were 55,563 wired.

ITOA Probing Hall, Church Chance Games

Members of the I. T. O. A. are gathering information on Bingo games in church and lodge halls which will be submitted to law enforcement officials in Brooklyn, Manhattan, Queens and Richmond boroughs with the request that action be taken to stop them. The I. T. O. A. feels that the games are "unfair" competition to theatres since they draw large crowds and the neighborhood houses suffer as a result.

Police officials and the district attorneys in the various counties will be asked to halt the Bingo parties on the ground that they are conducted illegally. An admission charge is made at the door, and under a ruling of the N. Y. Court of Appeals this is a violation of the state lottery laws, it was said. IATSE Plans Extension of Jurisdiction

Executive Board Decides To Press Its Claims

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 13.—Pressing of its aim to extend jurisdiction of the I.A.T.S.E. over all branches of the theatre and film industries has been decided upon by the executive committee in session here.

George E. Browne, international president, made the announcement, but refused to enlarge on his statement. Asked whether his statement should be understood as an announcement of plans to bring Equity and the Screen Actors' Guild into the union, Browne replied: "Our statement is we will take in all branches of the business. They can make whatever they like of it."

The I.A.T.S.E. already includes projection operators, cameramen, sound technicians, scenic artists, carpenters, laboratory workers, makup artists and exchange employes. The I.A.T.S.E. claims approximately 60,000 members. Browne said extension of jurisdiction would increase the membership to approximately 100,000.

His union has had no difficulties with the C.I.O. and expects none Browne said. A few "malcontents" among technicians attempted recently to take branches of film workers in California into the C.I.O., but acted

Hollywood Preview

"The Adventures of Tom Sawyer"

(Selznick-U. A.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.—Like "The Prisoner of Zenda," Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" has been produced again and again for the cinema consumer yet it remained for David O. Selznick to do it correctly. This is as fine, as sure, sound and quite likely to be as profitable, as any production in the impressive Selznick collection. It is without limitation in commercial appeal and without ceiling as to gross, a box office picture by every definition including the artistic.

Much credit for the fresh effectiveness of the familiar story material is due to John V. A. Weaver's artfully developed screenplay and Norman Taurog's thoughtful direction, a generous use of sustained silences and strikingly integrated sound effects contributing vitally to the realism of the purposefully fantastic sequence. Color is likewise employed with exceptional skill to this end.

Perhaps most notable on the talent side, from the showmanly point of view, is the presence of the long sought and much publicized Tommy Kelly, as Tom. His sterling performance is matched by Jackie Morgan as Huck Finn, Ann Gillis as Becky Thatcher, David Holt as Sid, Mickey Rentschler as Joe and Cora Sue Collins as Amy, perhaps the best juvenile cast ever assembled. No less distinguished and more significant in the marquee sense are the adult performances of May Robson, Walter Brennan, Donald Meek and Victor Jory. Yet it is as the Selznick "Tom Sawyer" rather than as the vehicle of any player, that the attractive attraction impresses and is likely to be remembered, talked about and patronized mightily.

Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

New York Previews

"Outside of Paradise"

(Republic)

Here is a nicely fashioned semi-musical production that will fit well in subsequent runs. The film was given a good production and has a fair quantity of comedy and youthful enthusiasm about it. It is a variation of the well tried success story. Phil Regan, Penny Singleton and Bert Gordon have the leading roles and they do well by them.

Regan is a leader of a popular orchestra who inherits a share in an Irish estate. He raises the money for passage and forthwith departs. On arrival he learns the other half of the estate is in the hands of Miss Singleton, who, being a Kerrigan, brings up the old feud between her family and the O'Tooles, Regan's tribe. He is shunned by the household. One night while preparing his meal of hamburgers Lionel Pape and his family come in out of the rain and become interested in his novel cooking. Pape's daughter, Ruth Coleman, gets interested in Regan and encourages him to open a restaurant. He does so and shortly afterward his New York pals arrive and humorously complicate things. Regan learns to love Miss Singleton and with the usual misunderstandings on her part and the financial intrusion by Miss Coleman the piece wends its way to a logical conclusion.

There is an interesting musical number set in a night club that is done in good style. The support includes Leonid Kinskey, Mary Forbes, Joe E. Marks, David Kerman, Billy Young, Cliff Nazarro and Harry Allen. What comedy comes to pass is tame. John H. Auer directed.

Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

"The Affairs of Maupassant"

(Gallic Films)

The Bohemian aspect of Paris in the Victorian '80's and the cinematic introduction of such well-known literary and artistic characters as Guy de Maupassant and Marie Bashkirtseff in the leading roles should provide good dramatic entertainment for the patrons of foreign film houses. The film was produced in Vienna, the dialogue is in German. Julian Leigh has effectively translated the language with English titles. Henry Koster, who has been connected with "100 Men and a Girl" and "Three Smart Girls" in this country, first received notice due to his direction of this film.

The story tells of the romance of de Maupassant and Marie Bashkirtseff which culminated in the death of the latter. The action in proper moods covers the pair's first meeting, their ripening friendship, artistic endeavors and conflicts, and the breaking up of their romantic relations due to the girl's illness. The leading feminine role is played by Lili Darvas. She gives a touching, convincing performance. De Maupassant is re-created by Hans Jaray. The photography and production are in good taste and the musical score, utilizing Offenbach's "Orpheus in the Underworld" overture, for tonal background, strikes a new note for this sort of thing.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "A."

"Russia Marches On"

(World Advance Pictures)

There is not very much of an educational or entertaining nature to be found in this film. It was produced by Charles Francis Drake, an American lecturer and "globe-trotter." It is offered as an historical document that covers the strides the Soviet Union has made since the Revolution. From the text of the narrative it seems to have been dictated by the powers that be, for nothing of a controversial nature is brought up and all is praise and challenge. This no doubt will appeal to the Russian-minded audience that patronizes the theatre playing their particular brand of cinema fare.

The photography is a trial to the eyes. The lighting and composition were done with no apparent thought for easy viewing. The light flickers and glares uncomfortably. Conditions of the Russian before the upheaval and after in the various sections of the country are shown. The progressive strides in agriculture, construction, engineering and social development are shown in comparison making up the greater portion of the film. The film covers a great deal of ground but never goes beneath the surface. All, it seems to the producer and narrator, is rosy with the Soviets.

Running time, 90 minutes. "A."

Short Subjects

"Breathless Moments"

(Universal)

From almost its opening clip to the conclusion this annual compilation of the exciting moments in the newsreel cameraman's year manufactures the kind of thrills that will keep audiences on the edges of seats. The subject in the past has had an extremely satisfactory reception and with this assemblage it should do likewise.

There are items covering every branch of disaster, sport, naval maneuvers, fires, daredevil stunters, scientific endeavor, war and such natural events as floods and storms. The material has been cut and edited with the thought signified by the title constantly in mind and it achieves this end with distinction. It is for strong stomachs.

Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"The Fox Hunt"

(Metropolitan)

The creators and producers of 'Joie de Vivre," the cartoon which introduced a new technique in this form of screen fare, here offers what is reputedly the first Technicolor cartoon to come from Europe. It is similar to the first black and white effort—a fluid, effortless type of animation. The scenario concerns the pursuit of a fox by hunters and the general uproar and humorous confusion the hunted causes. It is clever, but also rather sophisticated. The audience patronizing the foreign film house will find it most interesting. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Vitaphone Pictorial Revue No. 6"

(Vitaphone)

Arabian horses going through their paces on the Kellogg ranch in Pomona, ice hockey at Madison Square Garden and the manufacture of women's shoes. It is diversified material, interestingly presented that should nicely fill out a show. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Just Ask Jupiter"

What appears to be just another cat and mouse cartoon pleasantly develops into a humorous takeoff on "Dead End." A mouse inhales ether fumes and, dreaming, wishes it was a cat. It gets its wish and a lot of other unpleasantries. The action is clever and the subject should give satisfaction. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Boat Builders"

(Disney-RKO)

Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and the Goof undertake to build a boat according to "simple" plans, and the result is the expected delightful Disney animated nonsense. The boat is put together through many a typical Disney mishap, and when it finally is launched, it collapses loudly. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"The New Homestead"

(Columbia)

Scrappy is assisted in the construction of his new home by the animated Petey Parrot, who is at times amusing, but exhibits a tendency to repeat his antics too readily. The result is routine cartoon material. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

Charlotte Rescinds Sunday Film Action

CHARLOTTE, Feb. 13.—After a battle of words at a hearing held Feb. 9, the City Council rescinded its amendment of two weeks ago liberalizing Sunday sports, which would include motion pictures if exhibitors decided to take advantage of the letting down of the bars on Sunday blue laws.

The whole matter stands where it was Jan. 26 when the council voted to let the citizenry play ball, bowl, play golf, tennis, or attend theatres.

One of the highlights of the hearing was when Councilman H. H. Baxter told a pastor of one of the leading churches he was permitting motion pictures on Sunday in his church and allowing the operator a portion of the money from the collection plate. That was a bombshell tossed into the opposition camp. However, the opposition battled stoutly for a referendum on the question of an open Sunday until the council voted to rescind its action of Jan. 26. Charlotte rests securely in its church-supported blue laws and goes to Sunday school and prayer meeting, according to the good old Scotch-Presbyterian recipe.

File Contract Suit Against Berlin Firm

Fred Rose, Ed G. Nelson and Hyman H. Zaret, song writers, have filed a breach of contract suit in the N. Y. Supreme Court against Irving Berlin, Inc., Saul H. Bornstein, Harry Link, Herb Magidson and Allie Wrubel, charging that the plaintiffs' song, "Gone with the Wind," had been rendered "valueless" by the alleged misrepresentations of the publishers.

The complaint alleges that Irving Berlin, Inc., agreed in 1936 to publish the song and to use it in connection with the Selznick International picture of the same name. After contracts had been signed, it is alleged, the publisher used the title, but declined to publish the plaintiffs' song and published instead the composition by Magidson and Wrubel.

The answer contends that film rights were puchased by Selznick International and that the contract was subject to the approval of the producer. When Selznick International allegedly refused to use this song, Irving Berlin published the second song.

Spent $5,000,000 on 38 Italian Pictures

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO

ROME, Feb. 1.—Italian producers spent $5,000,000 in the production of 38 features during 1937, the first year of the country's attempt to become a leading European producing nation, and to attain self-sufficiency with respect to a film supply. The country's annual requirement is 300 films.

During 1937, 245 films were imported, of which more than 75 per cent were from the United States. The remainder were French, German and British. Although most of the $25,000,000 spent last year by Italians at film theatres went for American product, due to currency restrictions most of the money is still in Italy.

ERA, the new name of the former Ram company, has started work on "Rigoletto," its first operatic film. The company, which originally was formed by Mussolini's son and Hal Roach, was reorganized a short time ago and its capital stock increased to 990,000 lire. Both Mussolini and Roach are still on the board of directors, but it is generally known here that Roach has no connection with the firm, other than to lend his name to the enterprise.

What were to have been Italy's two greatest films, "Scipio l'Africano" and "I, Condottieri," have turned out to be only mediocre films. Each ran only one week at a Rome first-run theatre and then was relegated to neighborhood houses.

"Hilltop House," script series placed on CBS some months ago as a Monday through Friday presentation, will be put on twice daily on the one network beginning April 1. Mexico Tightening Radio Restrictions

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13.—Because of numerous complaints, the Federal Government has started to enforce strictly existing regulations governing commercial and amateur radio stations. Heavy fines are to be imposed for violations of the code and operators are obliged to abide by official interpretation of the law instead of interpreting it themselves.

Announcers are forbidden to interrupt programs with advertising talks or to speak longer than two minutes at a time, and there is to be less extensive playing of records in English and advertising talks in that tongue.

from the broadcasting stations. Some brokers, it was complained, had even invaded the field of the advertising agencies and thus obtained both commissions, 15 for booking the talent and arranging programs and another 15 per cent for placing the account. After much data had been presented by members of the association, it was decided to deal with the situation through the new board of directors.

The need for radio censorship was explained by Dr. J. J. Heagerty, chief executive officer of the Health Division, Federal Department of National Health. This speaker decla "We are severe in our censorshi far as fraudulent and misleading st ments go. We know, in order tc business, it is necessary to exagge to some extent, but gross exagg tion calls for supervision."

Majority Oppose Air Censorship Study Indicates

A nationwide survey by Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, shows that, contrary to the opinions recently expressed by a number of Congressmen and Senators, a majority of the radio audience is opposed to government censorship of radio.

The survey shows that 59 per cent of the radio audience is against censorship of radio on the ground that it would be harmful. Forty-one per cent feel that censorship is merited. Taken in numbers instead of percentages, the poll indicates that of the estimated 24,500,000 set owners in America, 14,500,000 prefer to have no censorship while 10,000,000 favor it.

The main objection to censorship, judging by comments from voters, is that direct Federal censorship would be a dictatorial usurpation of power which might conceivably lead to censorship of other media besides radio. Impairment of free speech is given as another reason. Many declared that both public opinion and the broadcasting stations themselves are now exercising a sufficiently effective censorship.

Eighty-five per cent, answering on whether they were satisfied with the moral standards of progress, said they had not been offended by "vulgarity" on the air. Only 15 per cent said they had been offended.

On the other hand, those who favor Federal censorship declared that (1) better programs might result, (2) that it would eliminate misleading advertising.

M-G-M Drops Proposal for 3-Reel Films

Duals Are Regarded as Too Much of Hurdle

Hollywood, Feb. 14.—Production of three-reel featurettes aimed to oust the second feature from double bills has been vetoed by the M-G-M sales department, although the shorts production department in Hollywood favored the idea as a means of getting greater attention for shorts, it is learned. The sales department, it was said, does not believe that the market can absorb three-reel subjects because of the prevalence of duals.

As a result, M-G-M's shorts for the new season will be confined to one and two-reelers, as in the past, with a greater expenditure planned because of the increase in production costs. In discussions on the new season product, Jack Chertok, shorts production head, told the distribution heads he favored more money for quality rather than a larger number of subjects. The 1938-'39 schedule, therefore, will remain about the same, numerically, as this year during which 82 shorts are to be

N.A.B. WARNED ON MONOPOLY OF AIR

Governm't Would Direct All Broadcasting, Says Wheeler

By JACK BANNER

Washington, Feb. 14.—Monopoly in the field of broadcasting will result in Government ownership of all radio facilities, members of the National Association of Broadcasters, meeting for their annual convention, were told today by Senator Wheeler of Montana. The 16th annual meeting opened today at the Willard Hotel, and will continue through Wednesday.

Senator Wheeler warned the station executives not only against permitting monopoly to get a foothold in the industry, but also against taking sides in political controversies and against undesirable program features, such as the recent Mae West "Adam and Eve" broadcast.

Through a letter to Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, President Roosevelt extended a greeting to the NAB, and told its members they had a "very great" opportunity to serve the public and an equally great responsibility of making radio serve the "high purposes of a democracy."

Broadcasters were told that extension of the license period, now limited

Reorganization Plan Adopted by the NAB

Washington, Feb. 14.—Discarding the vacillating methods that have characterized the organization's conventions in the past, the NAB., meeting here in the Hotel Willard, today, by the unanimous vote of the more than 300 delegates attending the organization's 16th annual convention, adopted a broad plan of reorganization which is expected to change the NAB from a supine to a militant self-protectant trade association. The adoption of the reorganization plan was heralded on the floor of the convention as the beginning of a "new and better day for broadcasters."

Principal changes in the NAB occasioned by the adoption of the reorganization plan is the abolition of the present governing body of the organization, the adoption of a new certificate of incorporation and a new set of by-laws,

Majors Study Wage Demands in Mexico

Wage increase demands of the film exchange workers' unions of Mexico City were discussed by foreign managers of major companies at a meeting here yesterday. No decisions were reached, according to an informed source. Indications are that adjustment of the problem will be left in large part to the company representatives in Mexico City, who probably will be instructed to negotiate with the unions.

Foreign managers here declared that the unions' demands involved wage increases as much as 200 per cent in some instances. They stated that the unions started in all cases with the highest salary paid to any employe by any film company in Mexico City and asked a flat 35 per cent increase on the maximum salaries. The demand, thus, would increase salaries of less than the maximum to much more than the 35 per cent standard increase.

Increases asked by the unions average 50 per cent.

May Change English "Snow White" Rating

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, Feb. 14.—A new development in the censor rating of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" has arisen, with the decision of the County Councils of London, Middlesex, Surrey and Essex to demand a special preview of the film on Friday with a view of possible change in the present rating.

The classification of the film may be changed to "universal" by the council decisions, thus permitting children to see it without restriction, or it may be placed in the "horrific" category, which is possible in view of the censor declaration that there are certain scenes unsuitable for children.

SCANDAL STREET
RIVER

"I picked up The New York Times Saturday morning to glance at the amusement page and saw the government had turned out a film called 'The River' which the Times' critic, Nugent, claims is one of the really great pictures of the year. Never read such raves for a picture in my life in the dignified New York Times. Noticed that the picture was released by Paramount.

"Glanced down the column and saw another rave on well wrought melodrama 'Scandal Street.' This one also released by Paramount Pictures.

"Kept on reading and saw another Times' reviewer had caught a Western called 'Thunder Trail' and here he was calling this 'the most saleable merchandise' praising the use in a Western of such well known actors as Charles Bickford, Gilbert Roland, J. Carroll Naish and Marsha Hunt, praising workman-like direction and editing and unusually careful photography, and this one also I noted had the Paramount seal on it.

"Frankly, this screen column in The Times is one of the finest ads I have ever seen for a picture company, for it shows that Paramount is just as careful about its program pictures, its Westerns, its novelty pictures, as it is about its huge double A productions like 'Wells Fargo,' 'The Buccaneer,' 'The Big Broadcast of 1938,' 'Romance in the Dark,' 'Dr. Rhythm' or 'Bluebeard's Eighth Wife.'

"The next time a Paramount salesman talks to me, I am going to remember that column in The Times and you can believe me I'll sign on the dotted line."

Will Continue Utah Games Pending Test

Salt Lake City, Feb. 14.—Bank Night, Buck Night and Ten-O-Win will continue in Utah theatres until a test case has been submitted to the Utah Supreme Court, it was decided at a meeting of theatre operators with members of the Utah State Trade Commission. Cease and desist orders had been issued to theatres by the board.

Questioning the power of the commission to attack the games. Ira A. Huggins, attorney, held that the powers of the newly created commission are limited to trade and commerce and that the film houses are not engaged in commerce. He claimed that there is no element of gambling in the games in question because no consideration is involved. It was agreed that the lottery angle would not be contested, but that the commission would base its case on the contention that the games are unfair to competition. Decision from the state Supreme Court is not expected for several months. In the meantime the games will continue.

Hollywood Preview

"The Adventures of Marco Polo"

(Goldwyn-U.A.)

Hollywood, Feb. 14.—It was Robert E. Sherwood, vitriolic cinema critic of the then comic Life, who enriched his reputation as a rising young humorist by calling Valentino's "The Sheik" "an average western with the cowboys wearing kimonas." It is the same Robert E. Sherwood, yet a different as well as more famous one, who wrote the screenplay of what he might in those gay days have called "Kublai Khan Rides Again." It is of record, of course, that critic Sherwood's salty exposure of "The Sheik" for what it was didn't keep it from climbing into the Motion Picture Almanac's list of "All Time Best Sellers," and so it is just possible, if not probable, that the now distinguished playwright set out cold-bloodedly in this enterprise to make history repeat itself. Who can say it will not?

Knowingly or otherwise Samuel Goldwyn, himself an adventurer of parts, has invested in Sherwood's "Adventures of Marco Polo" a tidy sum of money and the talents, not to say reputations, of a notable company of players. In the title role, which would have suited Valentino much better, Gary Cooper instructs a daughter of China at length in the art of osculation, romantically appeases another by way of of spelling her kingly husband, Alan Hale, and survives to sack Peking and win the princess. She is the personable Sigrid Gurin, a promising newcomer. The villainous chief of state is blasé Basil Rathbone and H. B. Warner plays a bit. Others involved more or less seriously are Ernest Truex, George Barbier, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Henry Kolker.

If the general public happened to display renewed interest in Sherwood's pre-fabricated type of entertainment about now it will find a far finer specimen of it than has been supplied previously. The production is lavish in the Goldwyn manner, from massive sets to meticulously authenticated triviata, and the platinum sepia process adds to both beauty and illusion. It is a big picture, and it carries the Goldwyn signature, made more lustrous than ever by "Stella Dallas," "Dead End" and "The Hurricane." These are better reasons than Sherwood's why it may turn out to be another "Sheik."

Menches Is Elected To Head Akron ITO

Akron, Feb. 14.—Robert Menches was elected president of the Akron I.T.O. at the annual meeting, when the organization resolved to fight the construction of new theatres in the city, on the ground that it is already overseated. The unit decided to oppose the new theatre planned by Canton interests here.

The organization pointed out that there is one theatre seat for every nine persons in Akron, and than an increase would be dangerous to all existing theatres. Other officers elected were: Albert A. Ploenes, first vice-president; Park Belden, second vice-president; J. G. Deetjen, secretary, and R. C. Wahl, treasurer.

The guild has 12,500 members rolled, but the number is being re- ced through delinquencies, with- awals and the rule obviating the cessity for juvenile players enrolling.

The guild's action is looked upon in or circles as the first move of any ganization affected by the I.A.T.- E.'s claims to forestall them. It is orted here that the first move of I.A.T.S.E. in extra ranks would the issuance of an invitation to join th the promise of a closed shop for nosphere people. Under the guild ntract obtained last year with I.A.- S.E. aid, no closed shop is granted, t a stipulation is made that all ex- s must be guild members and that guild must keep its membership oks open.

Browne, Bioff Expected

George Browne, I.A.T.S.E. head, d William Bioff, his west coast aide, scheduled to go to Chicago from San Antonio meeting of their or- nization's executive council and will me here immediately afterward, pre- mably to attempt to line up those dio crafts not already affiliated with I.A.T.S.E.

It was learned here that I.A.T.S.E. ders, who failed to press for A. F. O. O. McIntyre Dead

O. O. McIntyre, noted columnist whose "New York Day By Day" was widely syndicated, died here yesterday following a brief illness. He was 54 years old.

McIntyre's reading audience has been estimated to be around 7,000,000. He was born in Pittsburg, Mo., in 1884. From cub reporter on the Gallipolis, Mo., Daily News, he worked his way up to the point where he was considered the most successful columnist in the country.

McIntyre at one time handled publicity for Florenz Ziegfeld and William Fox. Funeral services will be held tomorrow in Gallipolis. He will be buried in the Mound Hill Cemetery.

Air Tribute to McIntyre

A tribute to the late O. O. McIntyre, columnist who died yesterday, will be broadcast over WNEW tonight at 7:15, by Richard Brooks, station commentator.

Expect Fight Today On Child Labor Bill

Albany, Feb. 14.—The bitterest verbal skirmish in the 1938 legislature is expected tomorrow afternoon in the Assembly when ratification of the Child Labor Amendment comes up for a vote. The industry's interest in the amendment lies in the section restricting labor of persons under 18 years of age. Passed by Congress in 1924, the amendment has been ratified by 28 states, though the highly controversial legislation has been denied official affirmation in New York for more than a decade.

Little doubt exists that opponents will defeat ratification of the Andrews bill in the Assembly, as in former years, although the margin will probably be less in 1937, when 101 negative and 41 affirmative votes were cast in the lower chamber. The State Senate passed the measure last year.

"Antoinette" Ready Soon

"Marie Antoinette," Norma Shearer's first picture after a long absence, will be completed in about a month, it was reported by Howard Dietz, M-G-M advertising and publicity director, who returned yesterday from the coast. With Mrs. Dietz, he had been gone since Christmas, and their trip included a month's vacation in Honolulu.

It has not been decided whether "Marie Antoinette" will be roadshown, Dietz said. He named "Girl of the Golden West," "Merrily We Live" and "Test Pilot," with Clark Gable, as three other new films for which M-G-M has great expectations.

Republic Sets Actor For Roles of Autry

Hollywood, Feb. 14.—Republic today named Roy Rogers, 25-year-old western radio program star, as successor to Gene Autry, leading cowboy star in Motion Picture Herald's poll, who is engaging in a strike for more money per picture. The studio said Rogers was signed four months ago and kept under cover while being groomed. The lad came from "Sons of the Pioneers," coast song program. His first picture will be "Washington Cowboy," originally set for Autry and to be produced by Sol Siegel. Smiley Burnette also will be featured.

Meanwhile Autry returned to Hollywood Saturday and said he was staying away from the studio until it meets his terms. The studio two weeks ago obtained an injunction in Tennessee courts restraining Autry from vaudeville, radio and film work. Sam Wolf, Autry attorney, today said no litigation on Autry's behalf is planned yet.

Two Republic Producers Quit

Hollywood, Feb. 14.—Differences of opinion over productions today resulted in two Republic writer-producers leaving the lot. Harry Sauber, who produced two pictures last year, and Harold Shumate, who has produced only one for studio since quitting Columbia, have left. Both expect to connect with a major studio.

NAB Warned Against Any Air Monopoly

to six months, to three years, would be opposed in Congress, Senator Wheeler declaring that such a period was too long, although favoring requiring station operators to apply for renewal of license only once a year.

"During the past year we have witnessed basic developments and progress in radio," Roosevelt said, "which will have a profound effect upon the application of broadcasting in this country as well as on the North American Continent.

"One of the greatest advantages of the system of licensing broadcasting is that it is sufficiently flexible to lend itself readily to adjustment to meet our changing social and economic needs."

"There are several species of monopoly that might get a stranglehold on radio," Wheeler declared. "All deal with power. One is power in watts—high power protected over unlimited areas. A second is power in number of stations concentrated in identical ownership. The third relates to the power and the status of the networks.

Cites Importance of "Power"

"Each deals with the extent of influence, of coverage, in the hands of a single person or group. And in each case you have another element of 'power' that which reposes in radio because of its peculiar faculty in molding public opinion—a unit of force and influence that cannot be achieved by any other medium.

"Only broadcasting's own folly would make the threat real. And that would evolve if we allowed any entities in the industry, or outside of it seeking entry, to become too large, too potent; to permit them to reach the point where the influence they exert is so great as to create political animosities and internecine strife that could only result in its destruction."

Prior to the formal opening of the convention, several important meetings of groups within the NAB were held on Sunday. These groups included the I. R. N. A. committee, which, it is reported, discussed the advisability of making the organization of network affiliates a permanent one. Another was among the group of broadcasters interested in facsimile. meetings of the managers and owners of the stations affiliated with the networks, and a meeting of the N.A.B. sales committee.

RCA's simplified radio facsimile system, which has been in the course of development for 10 years, is now available to broadcasters, and today had its first demonstration for executives and engineers attending the N.A.B. convention.

Seven large stations already have placed orders for the system, to be used in experimental work on facsimile broadcasting, including KMJ, Fresno; KFBK, Sacramento; KHQ, Spokane; WBEN, Buffalo; WTMJ, Milwaukee; KGW, Portland, Ore., and WOR, Newark. Most of the stations are owned by newspapers.

The Federal Communications Commission requires each station to install a minimum of 50 receiver-printers for each scanner-transmitter. The new system was developed by Charles J. Young, RCA Victor research engineer, and his associates.

More Fan Mail

WOR's fan mail is on the increase. Thus far this year the total number of pieces has reached 173,047, compared to 136,164 for the same period last year. The weekly average has increased as well. This year it is 35,663, against an average last year of 28,897.

the ultimate selection of a new "paid" president and the division of the membership into 17 voting groups.

Under the new dues set-up, the payments are based on a classification of net income from the sale of time. Stations with incomes of $15,000 will pay monthly dues of $5, with the scale graduated upward to $500 a month for stations having a yearly income of over $2,000,000.

The new dues system, it is estimated, will raise approximately $250,000 annually for the NAB. This is approximately double the present NAB dues budget. The new schedule of dues is to become effective March 1.

Director for Each District

Each district among the 17 newly created divisions will elect a director, and the 17 district directors will nominate 12 candidates for directors at large, two of the directors at large to represent small stations, two medium sized stations, and two large stations, the station classification being determined on the basis of power. The new board thus created would determine, by a two-thirds vote, the individual to serve as the paid president, and would designate also who is to serve as the secretary-treasurer of the NAB.

District directors elected at meetings conducted last night, and the districts they represent, are as follows: District 1, John Shepard, Yankee network; district 2, Harry C. Wilder, WJTN, Jamestown, N. Y.; district 3, Clair McCullough, WGAL, Lancaster, Pa.; district 4, John Kennedy, WPAR and WBLK, both of West Virginia; district 5, W. Walter Tison, WFLA, Tampa, Fla.; district 6, E. W. Craig, WSN, Nashville, Tenn.; district 7, Mark Ethridge, WHAS, Louisville. Ky.; district 8, John Fetzer, WKZO, Kalamazoo, Mich.; district 9, Walter Damm, WHMJ, Milwaukee; district 10, John Gillin, WOW, Omaha; district 11, Earl W. Gammons, WCCO, Minneapolis; district 12, Herb Hollister, KANE, Wichita, Kans.; district 13; O. L. Taylor, KGNC, Amarillo, Tex.; district 14, Gene O'Fallon. KFEL, Denver; district 15, Ralph Brunton, KJBS, San Francisco; district 16, Don Thornburgh, KNX, Los Angeles; district 17, C. W. Myers, KGW, Portland, Ore.

Reorganization Planned in N. Y.

The reorganization plan adopted at the convention yesterday was evolved by the committee appointed at the last NAB convention in New York. The members of this committee are Edwin W. Craig, chairman; Edward A. Allen, Mark Etheridge, Walter J Damm and John Shepard. Philip G Loucks, Washington attorney, served as the committee's counsel. Election of the directors at large will take place at district caucuses.

Thus far there has been little or no talk here as to who ultimately will be selected at the paid president. The reorganization committee has stated that thus far it has not issued a single invitation to anyone to serve as the N.A.B. president.

released. Chertok returned today after several weeks in New York more than ever convinced that improved quality in shorts will eventually induce exhibitors to discard double features.

Chertok conferred with Government officials in Washington on the possibility of making a series of shorts explaining the operations of various departments and including "behind-the-scenes" material. He said he has a writer working on an outline of such a series, but it has not been definitely decided to what extent they will be made for new season release.

The company will continue to budget some shorts as high as $40,000 and, as in the case of "Servant of the People," at $52,000, he said.

The series of one-reel subjects of a topical nature which was scheduled for production with John Booth Nesbitt, radio commentator, may be shelved, it was said. Eastern executives are not strong for the idea.

Chertok plans to return to New York next year since Robert Benchley's contract permits him to be in the east six months of the year. While in the east Chertok completed three Benchleys.

Report Appeal Group Appointed in Albany

Picture Division and Commissioner Frank P. Graves, has been delayed until the March meeting of the Regents.

Though confirmation is lacking, it is understood that Susan Brandeis of New York, daughter of U. S. Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, and George J. Ryan of Flushing, president of the Board of Education in New York City, have been named to the committee as two of the Regents. A third member is believed to have been named, though his acceptance or rejection has apparently not yet been received.

Chancellor Thomas J. Mangan of Binghamton and vice-chancellor William J. Wallin of Yonkers are ex-officio members of all Regents' committees and hence will undoubtedly sit in review on important pictures up on appeal. It was stated on good authority that the Regents' sub-committee will use the Motion Picture Division's projection room at 80 Center St., State Office Bldg., New York, for reviews.

It is not known whether the Regents commented on the new appeal concerning "The Birth of a Baby," though any action was understood to have been delayed until next month.

"Nocturno" Ban Upheld

ALBANY, Feb. 14.—The Board of Regents has disapproved the appeal of Gustave Schwab on "Nocturno," German film previously denied a license by Irwin Esmond, head of the N. Y. censor board. Service Is Above Profits, McNinch Tells N.A.B. Meet

By JACK BANNER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Federal Communications Commission, in his first face-to-face talk with broadcasters, today took the industry to task for elevating profits to the impairment of public service. Granting that radio, like all industries, had its economic aspects, he nevertheless warned broadcasters not to look too closely at profits if they desired to maintain the present license system of radio, reminding that they were but the trustees of a public resource, and that the public is "quick to discern the devices of the profiteer."

McNinch's address opened the second day of the National Association of Broadcasters' convention, now in session here. The commission chairman delivered greetings to the convention from the President on Monday, but his talk yesterday was his first to broadcasters as an entity.

The commissioner urged that station owners scrutinize more carefully the sponsored advertising script, particularly in patent medicines, and flatly declared he was opposed to the advertising of intoxicating beverages on the air. Congratulating radio for the comparatively little advertising of liquor now on the air, he urged that the broad-

N.A.B. Reorganizing Support Unanimous

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The 16th annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters, meeting here since Monday, adjourned tonight following a sweeping reorganization that was adopted, remarkably, without a single dissenting vote from the membership.

The 300-odd delegates, following a banquet last night, are now en route to their various home cities, but the new board of 23 members who now rule the destinies of the N.A.B. will remain here until tomorrow night to put the finishing touches to the reorganization, and to discuss the proposed new "paid" president. In addition to franchise holders and home office representatives, it has been decided to have salesmen and bookers at the meeting, he said. Foreign distributors also have been invited.

Production costs will be held to a rigid budget on Republic's 1938-'39 program of 34 features, which is an increase of 10 over this year, plus 24 westerns and four serials, said Yates, and producers will be expected to hold expenditures to the limits set, except that some pictures may necessitate

Theatres, Radio Not In Chain Store Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Neither motion picture theatres nor broadcasting stations will be covered by the Patman bill providing for graduated taxes on chain stores.

The bill is intended definitely to eliminate chain stores. Taxes would run as high as $1,000 a store, multiplied by the number of states in which a company operated, so that the maximum might be as high as $49,000.

The bill was never intended to cover either film exhibition or broadcasting, it was explained by Representative Wright Patman (Dem., Tex.). While there may be problems in both those industries, he said, the appropriate approach is by methods other than taxation.

Playdate Law Invalidated In Ohio Test

Federal Statutory Court Bars Enforcement

COLUMBUS, Feb. 15.—A three-judge Federal statutory court here today invalidated the Ohio anti-playdate law on the ground that it violated the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution, in that it deprived the plaintiff of its property without due process of law.

The court overruled the contention of the state's attorney-general that the statute was a valid exercise of the police power of the state and held there was no moral issue involved. The law, which was sponsored by Allied, made illegal the designation of playdates by distributors in exhibition contracts.

The action was brought by RKO with the attorney general of Ohio named as defendant. Identical litigation is pending in Wisconsin and will be argued shortly. The distributors

Fair Practice Code Proposed by Equity

The Actors' Equity Council yesterday proposed that the League of New York Theatres draw up a code of fair practice, after which Equity would consider the league's request to negotiate a basic agreement with Equity for one or two years. The proposal was made at a meeting at which a group of managers asked for a preferential agreement that would give league members certain concessions as a wedge to force outside managers into the league.

The proposed fair practice code would cover ticket speculation, among other things, and would seek to increase attendance and runs of plays.

The suit was heard in the U. S. District Court here originally, the decision was upheld by the Circuit Court and the U. S. Supreme Court and then sent back to the Circuit Court for reargument on motion of the plaintiff. Affirmations were given in all instances.

Louis Nizer, counsel for the plaintiff, said this was the first instance to his knowledge that a case had been reheard in the Circuit Court after a decision in the U. S. Supreme Court. It was alleged that the melody of "Confessing" was infringed in the song "Starlight." Damages are to be computed by a referee.

$30,000 as a reserve for possible payment to George W. Garrson and Roemer-Kenny Co., Inc., if their appeal is sustained. Judge Caffey refused their request for $528,692 brokerage fees for alleged negotiation of the sale of the Roxy under a reorganization plan to 20th Century-Fox.

The largest award, $47,500, went to White & Case, attorneys for the Pound first mortgage bondholders' protective committee, proponents of the plan of reorganization. They had asked $65,000. The committee itself received $15,000 out of $23,318 requested, plus an additional $1,176 for disbursements.

Cullman Gets $37,500

Judge Caffey pointed out that the creditors of the equity receiver had failed to claim $1,000, which is being held for them. If it is not claimed, and the $30,000 reserve for the Garrson appeal is not used, it will be awarded to bondholders of the new company.

Appeals Court Sets Date for Hart Case

March 12 was set yesterday for a hearing in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals on the appeal filed by William S. Hart and Mary Hart from the dismissal of their $185,000 breach of contract suit against United Artists by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe in the U. S. District Court here.

The Harts sued for the return of $185,000 which United Artists retained as its share for distribution of the film "Tumbleweeds" in 1925. The plaintiffs contended that the picture was wrongfully block-booked with "Wild Justice," a dog picture, but their complaint was dismissed several months ago.

Foresee Return of Ontario Ticket Tax

TORONTO, Feb. 15. — The return of the amusements tax in Ontario, in some form at least, is expected because of the statement of Premier M. F. Hepburn of the Provincial Government that additional sources of revenue will have to be found for the fiscal year starting April 1. Hepburn removed the amusement ticket levy in its entirety last summer and then launched his election campaign, which resulted in his return to office with a large majority.

But, since then, costs have mounted for the maintenance of the unemployed and public works. Hepburn's statement of the need for more money is taken to mean that theatres and patrons will face a new impost. The amusements tax represented a revenue of $2,000,000 per year before it was abolished.

Service Is Above Profits, McNinch Tells N.A.B. Meet

casters consider the wisdom of adopting a policy that would deny radio facilities completely to liquor interests.

Concurring with Senator Wheeler's stand against monopoly in radio, Commissioner McNinch urged the radio delegates not to permit their industry to "fall into the grievous errors that other industries have fallen into in the past."

"The railroads and the power industry and other industries have paid the price of public condemnation for their own folly in permitting these industries to come under the domination of a few powerful and greedy men," he said. "Do not flatter yourselves that this could not happen to radio." He said he had in mind suggesting to the F.C.C. that it soon stage an investigation of radio to determine whether there is monopoly and any undue or anti-social centralization of power and control in the industry. This, he said, would mean an investigation of the networks and of the chain contracts with the affiliates.

Seeks Accounting System

As a means to the proper regulation of the industry, the commission soon hoped to adopt a uniform system of accounting, he said. He also reminded the convention that of the sum of $84,000 allotted to broadcasters for the Federal Radio Education Committee, an educational body created by the commission, only a relatively small amount has been received to date.

Commissioner T. A. M. Craven, also of the F. C. C., delivered the most temperate speech made at the convention to date when he declared at the afternoon session that he favored broadcasting as it is now constituted. He did admit, however, that there was some room for improvement, but he felt that the improvements will come through voluntary action of the industry.

As opposed to the stand taken by F. C. C. Chairman McNinch, who this morning stated that the industry was allowing the profit motive to endanger the future of radio, Craven said that "it is proper that radio in this country be operated by private industry and equally proper and necessary that the industry be encouraged to earn profits, when it renders good service to the public."

Asks Aid for Government

He urged broadcasters to cooperate with the Government in obtaining facts about radio of an economic nature which are now lacking, so that the Government may be enabled to reach an intelligent appreciation of vital questions pertaining to the industry.

Commissioner Craven reported on the radio conference in Havana last year and the agreements effected there to alleviate the chaotic conditions in radio on the North American continent due to international interference.

He replied strongly to the analysis of the Havana treaty made recently to the N. A. B. by its managing director, James Baldwin, who will retire from office shortly.

Baldwin had criticized the treaty severely because, according to his (Baldwin's) interpretation, it favors networks over local stations.

Craven said he was surprised by Baldwin's apparent lack of understanding of the treaty. He said this was a domestic situation, and should not have been confused by Baldwin with an international problem. He urged that the industry study the report again. Craven said if the treaty terms were understood properly, the industry would subscribe wholeheartedly to it.

N.A.B. Reorganizing Support Unanimous

the new president will be paid approximately $25,000 a year, and most likely he will be a candidate from outside the radio industry. The new leader, however, will not be nominated for at least another month, pending a complete canvass of all eligible for the post.

Elected as N.A.B. directors-at-large at yesterday's meeting were the following:

Representing clear channel stations: Harold Hough, WBAP, Fort Worth, and Lamdin Kay, WSB, Atlanta.

Representing regional station interests: Frank M. Russell, WRC, Washington, and Elliott Roosevelt, Hearst radio.

Representing local stations: John Elmer, WCBM, Baltimore, and Edward A. Allen, WLVA, Lynchburg, Va.

These six, together with the 17 directors elected Monday, will comprise the new governing and administrative body of the reorganized N.A.B., and from them will come the choice of the new president.

Expect Temporary President

Although it is known that the final choice for the new head of the N.A.B. will not be made for at least another month, it is reported that a temporary president, as well as a secretary-treasurer, may be named following tomorrow's meeting of the board.

Eight new stations were accepted as members of the N.A.B. yesterday. These included WINS of New York City.

Resolutions passed at the close of the convention included expressions of thanks to President Roosevelt, F.C.C. Commissioners McNinch and Craven, and Senator Wheeler, for their participation in the convention proceedings, and for their interest in the industry.

exceeding budgets by $1,000 or $2,000, he indicated.

"From time to time as producers and other talent and available, we expect to grab it," Yates asserted. "We never expect to stop building."

Yates denied that Roy Rogers would succeed Gene Autry in western roles. Republic has been grooming Rogers to feature in a group of westerns for next season, but in no way will take Autry's place, he stressed. "Washington Cowboy," which was reported to be Rogers' first picture, will be made by Autry, as scheduled, whenever the latter returns to the studio, he said. When that will be depends on Autry, Yates indicated.

There will be no replacements for Harry Sauber and Harold Shumate, writer-producers, who left the studio early this week, and their work will be absorbed by others, said Yates.

Quebec May Remove Child Admission Ban

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—The attention of exhibitors and film exchanges in the Dominion has turned to legislative matters with the current opening of sessions of legislatures in various provinces. A prime subject before the Quebec legislature is a definite proposal to lower the ban on the admission of all juveniles under 16 years of age to any film performance in a theatre. This law has been in effect since January, 1927, when 78 children lost their lives in the Mont Laurier Theatre fire and panic in Montreal.

The current proposal, which is being pressed by Famous Players Canadian Corp. and the organized independents, is to permit the admission of children to film theatres under stipulated conditions. The proposed requirements would be the designation of film attractions by the Quebec censor board as suitable for juveniles and that certain days be set apart for the admission of juveniles when additional safety precautions would be provided by the theatre managers to protect the young patrons, these to include the attendance of a representative of the police or fire departments at such shows and the employment of a full theatre staff. The proposed days for juvenile attendance are Thursday and Saturday of each week.

Detroit, Feb. 15.—Ordinance Court judges will be asked this week to set an early date for trial of the city's suit to force removal of all advertising signs now projecting over sidewalks along the newly widened sections of Woodward Ave., according to Vance G. The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 45
(20th Century-Fox)

The current developments in the press of the rescue of four Soviet scientists who are drifting somewhere off the coast of Greenland is effectively tied in with the lead of this issue. There are about 400 feet of material culled from Amkino, making up the greater part of the reel, depicting the surroundings and equipment of the men. The stuff is well narrated by Lowell Thomas and has much interest.

Otherwise the reel offers routine shots of a dog show, a whale washed ashore in San Francisco and Mussolini reviewing his goose-stepping troops in anticipation of a visit from Hitler. Lew Lehr, with the aid of some funny sound effects, applies his familiar dialect lines to shots of penguins. There are some fast moving sport clips to conclude the reel. These include bobsled racing, ice skating and a number of youngsters boxing in Florida. Running time, 10 mins. P.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 243
(M-G-M)

Here too a collection of scenes from Amkino depicting the Soviet polar expedition is the lead. The material is made to bear on the present newspaper stories which are making exciting newspaper reading. It is well handled, presented and interesting.

Here again is the dog show, the Italian army practicing the goose step and the beached whale in San Francisco. There are a few glimpses of "Dixie" Davis being arrested in Philadelphia. The GHQ flight to Buenos Aires is caught with excellent scenes taking off from Langley Field. Scenes of the floods in Illinois and central California conclude the regulation news coverage. The Sporting Page offers bobsledding and ice skate racing at Lake Placid and youngsters having a slugfest at Coral Gables. Running time, 9 mins. P.

Paramount News
No. 56
(Paramount)

Several subjects of outstanding interest so overshadow the routine material in this release as to give it an excellent rating on the basis of general appeal and novelty.

The outstanding subject depicts the four Russian scientists on their ice floe camp adrift in the Polar seas and the efforts being made to rescue them. Subjects such as this, perhaps, reveal the newsreel at its best. There is genuine drama and high human interest for all types of audiences in this material in spite of the fact that the scenes were made when the scientists were left on the ice.

Second in interest are the storm scenes from California, with towns flooded by torrential rains and homes and automobiles wrecked by huge uprooted trees. Other scenes from Colorado depict the damage wrought by the year's first dust storm. Highly interesting for other reasons is the clip showing Italian troops in a goose-step parade borrowed from Germany, with Il Duce himself in an obviously strained effort to outstep his legions. A spectacular coal yard fire at Lynn, Mass., is good of its kind, and shots of the four winners and some of the losers in the much publicized Toronto "baby derby," or "stork race" will undoubtely be found either amusing or interesting by most patrons.

On the routine side are shots of winter maneuvers of French and Italian Alpine ski troops, the American dog show in New York and Lincoln's Birthday observances in Washington with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt attending. Running time, 10 mins. K.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 60
(RKO)

Recent storms in California and Colorado, shots of a Chicago ski meet and of a European bobseld run contribute the most to this release. The damage wrought by wind and rain in northern California is impressively pictured, and for sheer action and thrills the ski jump and bobsled shots, with the camera recording some bad spills in each, are outstanding of their kind.

The remainder of the reel runs pretty much to routine material. It includes the arraignment in New York of "Dixie" Davis, fugitive racketeer who was captured recently in Philadelphia; Washington ceremonies at the Lincoln Monument, with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt in attendance on the occasion of the Emancipator's birthday anniversary; dedication of the light at Menlo Park in honor of Thomas A. Edison on the anniversary of his birth; the inevitable Miami beach pictures, and the start of the Mohammedan pilgrimage from Cairo to Mecca. A final subject depicting the work of Federal game wardens in conserving and studying wild duck life in Maryland is of better than average interest. Running time, 9 mins. K.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 641
(Universal)

By taking Amkino footage made when the Soviet scientists were left on the ice at the North Pole several months ago and building up a dramatic commentary Universal has done a smart job of capitalizing on the current world-wide interest in the fate of these men.

Shots of the burning of a gas and electric plant at Lynn, Mass., furnish some lively topical interest, and views of floods at Watsonville, Cal., indicate that the sun doesn't always shine out there. The first dust storm of the season in Texas and Oklahoma is presented, but the commentary is stronger than the pictorial content. Ski jumps on artificial snow at Norfolk, Conn., are exciting. The operation of a machine that prints from radio broadcasts is intriguing material.

Routine clips make up the rest of the reel. They include Fascist militiamen doing the goose step; a legless swimmer at Miami, two women walking across an ice-coated shore and plunging into the water at Revere Beach; youngsters boxing at Miami; a twin-engined bomber in England and the New York dog show. Running time, 9 mins.

Short Subjects

"Snow Foolin'"
(Columbia)

A winter sports subject, with narrative by Jack Kofoed and description by Ford Bond, is a virtual tour of winter sports, including skiing, skating, iceboating, trotting races on the ice, basketball and baseball on ice skates and sled racing. It is fast moving and fairly effective, although concentration on fewer types of activity might have made it more effective. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Enric Madriguera and Orchestra"
(Vitaphone)

Good band music is furnished with a slight plot. This famous band plays its familiar and tuneful music against the enactment of a sketch wherein a young girl is infatuated with Madriguera against the wishes of her parents. The light farce is amateurishly acted. But there is enough orchestral and dancing novelty to put it over. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Himber Harmonies"
(Paramount)

Here is a tastefully produced and pleasant band offering that should have good reception. It features a day in the routine of Richard Himber and his band. In the morning they rehearse, later they make a record, do a broadcast and finally wind up their schedule in a night club. Throughout the proceedings there is plenty of music, well done in the familiar Himber mode. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Life in Lapland"
(Sanders Artists' Bureau)

A moderately interesting ethnological excursion into the life, customs and activities of the little known people who inhabit Sweden's northerly reaches. The film suffers from poor photography which can be attributed to the frigid conditions of the country. The comment is interesting. Its subject matter is novel and it should have a fair reception in newsreel houses and wherever else it can be fitted. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Cupid Takes A Holiday"

Danny Kaye, a comedian with a Russian accent, sets a breakneck pace in the beginning of this short and maintains it until the hilarious conclusion rolls around. While it might be familiar stuff there are a few new twists to provide the right degree of farcical merriment. Kaye gets into many jams as he seeks a wife before the advent of the new year, otherwise he will go crazy. He does. It has a lot of laughs. Running time, 14 mins. "G."

"His Pest Friend"
(RKO)

The limber-legged Leon Errol is amusing in this comedy of marital complications, which is superior to the average two-reel comedy and should be entertaining for the adults. Errol's wife buys a cabin as a surprise for him, and his best "friend" spreads suspicion when he sees her with the man from whom she made the purchase. Errol's frantic efforts to catch up to his wife are good for a number of laughs. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

'laydate Law Invalidated In Ohio Test

ined injunctions in both states to effectuation of the laws pending courts' decisions. It is not be- ed an appeal will be taken.

Vashington, Feb. 15.—Comment- here on the decision of the U. S. trict Court in Columbus enjoining Ohio anti-compulsory playdate law, -am F. Myers said:

While disappointing in immediate ılts the decision adds needed clari- tion to the law. It holds simply t the designation by the distributors playdates does not involve any -al issue. The court rejected the tentions of the distributors that the interfered with interstate com- -ce or that it infringed upon the yright law or that the public ex- tion of motion pictures is not af- ed with a public interest. In these ticulars the decision is a precedent avor of the North Dakota theatre orcement law.

It is hoped that the state will ap- l on the moral issue on which the rt did not give sufficient weight to right of the theatre-going public hold the exhibitor responsible for proper dating of pictures."

Report New Soviet Films Head Chosen

A new head for the Russian film industry has been named to succeed Boris Z. Shumiatsky, who was recently deposed following charges of waste and extravagance, it has been learned by Amkino, the Soviet film agency here.

The new director's identity is not known by Amkino, nor has the local office been advised of other changes that have taken place during the reorganization, according to N. Napoli of Amkino. He said that he has to depend on the Moscow newspapers for such information and that nothing pertaining to the reorganization has been printed in the Soviet press since Shumiatsky was ousted.

The same reticence is maintained by V. I. Verlinsky, president of Amkino, who has been in Moscow since December. He has said nothing about the changes in communications to his New York office, although he attended the meeting of Soviet industry officials at which Shumiatsky was made the target of severe criticism, resulting in his ouster.

Verlinsky, who left for Moscow Dec. 8, is extending his stay and is not expected back until some time next month. He has shipped a number of films for distribution here, and this year Amkino will distribute 22 pictures, an increase of five over last year, Napoli said. Among them is "Lenin in October."

Invite Creditors to Reorganize G.N.

creditors, was named to inspect companies financial records being sent from New York on Friday.

Goldstone, in opening the meeting, told the group that the company has mismanaged but has enough assets to pay off the outstanding $350,000 debts. He asked the creditors to draft a plan to reorganize without Federal Court aid. He declared that G.N. heads wanted to borrow money from him but said that he, at his own expense, had made a survey of the companies and found them in wobbly shape. He said the distribution cost was top heavy and that by consolidating offices, $10,000 weekly expense could be eliminated.

The committee met with Alperson, Krasne and Goldstone after the general session broke up.

The private opinion of one of the attorneys was that the filing of the petition to reorganize the G.N. companies in Federal Court by B. F. Zeidman Productions, Inc., Pacific Title and Arts Studio, Inc., and Howard Anderson would lead either to the appointment of a temporary trustee or to a reorganization as ordered by the court if the tribunal sustains the allegation in the petition that acts of bankruptcy were committed through alleged preference of creditors and the transfer of equipment and money with intent to defraud.

Missouri Theatres' Tax $235,128 in '37

Kansas City, Feb. 15.—Theatres paid $235,128.94 in sales taxes during 1937, according to the report of Forrest Smith, state auditor of Missouri. Other shows, attractions and amusements paid $38,418.49; athletic contests paid $25,776.65, and dances, $3,842.58. The admission group paid $303,166.66.

Asks Data on Canada Radio Deals in U. S.

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—J. Earl Lawson, Member of the Dominion Parliament, Toronto, has presented four questions to the House of Commons relative to the radio broadcasting situation in Canada and the proposed increase in radio set license fees from $2.00 to $2.50 per year. With these questions, Lawson has moved for the production of all contracts for commercial programs and sustaining time entered into with broadcasting networks of the United States and advertising agencies by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. since Nov. 1, 1937. This means that all details of agreements will become public property and will show whether or not the corporation has sold time to the broadcasting chains in the United States at bargain rates and at the expense of the people of Canada, as has been charged.

Lawson's questions include the amount of the cost of the new 50,000-watt station near Toronto; who acted as purchasing agent of the property, and how much he was paid; who were the valuators, and what commission they received; and who paid for certain Canadian broadcasts by officials of the Government.

Injunction Asked On No. Dakota Law

FARGO, Feb. 16.—An application for a temporary injunction to restrain North Dakota state officials from enforcing the affiliated theatre "divorce" law pending trial of an action to determine the constitutionality of the statute was filed here today by Paramount. Minnesota Amusement Co. and American Amusement Co.

Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye of the U. S. District Court, Minneapolis, came here to receive the Paramount papers due to the continued illness of Judge Andrew Miller, the only Federal judge in this district. No hearing date on the petition has been set, but it is assumed that a hearing will be held within the next 10 days or two weeks. inasmuch as a decision on the issuance of an injunction must be made prior to March 15 when the state theatre divorcement law goes into effect.

The applications filed today asked for the convening of a special statutory court of three Federal judges to hear the petition for the temporary injunction. The personnel of the three-judge court has not been designated yet. The injunction, if granted, would continue in force pending trial of

RKO Figures $5,000,000 "Snow" Gross

Music Hall's Total for Five Weeks $531,000

A minimum world gross in rentals of $5,000,000 is anticipated by the RKO sales department for "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which is being released to RKO theatres in the metropolitan area following the conclusion last night of the five-week run at the Music Hall, during which the take was $531,000.

The anticipated figure is based on an expected rental in the United States of $3,000,000 and a foreign rental gross of $2,000,000. It was said, however, that a total gross of $7,000,000 or more is possible, considering that exhibitors are according the picture extended playing time and longer than usual holdovers.

Neely Attacks "Monopoly" in Film Industry

Calls for Regulation in Report to Senate

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—"Present monopolistic control of motion pictures calls for regulation in the public interest," it was declared today by Senator Neely of West Virginia in a formal report on his anti-block booking bill, filed with the Senate.

As anticipated, the report submitted was a copy of that sent to the Senate at the last Congress, fortified only by a new paragraph discussing the relationship of pictures to education and calling for regulation.

"Nothing," it was declared, "is more repugnant to the American public than centralized control of education. A unique characteristic of the American educational system is that the public schools are indigenous to the local communities which they serve. Motion pictures are recognized as an important and increasingly powerful medium of education. For this reason, as well as many others herein enumerated, present monopolistic control of motion pictures calls for regulation in the public interest."

The primary purpose of the bill is

"March of Time, No. 7"

(RKO)

It has come to be a foregone conclusion that the successive issues of the March of Time will be strong in general interest, as well as expert in technical production. The subject matter is invariably of considerable significance and often entertaining.

This reel is no exception. The three episodes consider the plight of the so-called White Russians in various parts of the world, still steeped in the tradition of the Czarist regime; picture in interesting fashion the work of the New York Police Department's Bureau of Missing Persons, as well as the activity of private agencies, and describe the southern rennaissance which has come about with the development of slash pine for paper making.

With flashes of the late Czar of Russia, the first subject tells of the exodus of Russians when the revolution struck, pictures them in France and the United States, and notes their fear that the Nansen Committee of the League of Nations, which has done much for them, may be abolished, at the request of the Soviet Government, which contends that the organization, in effect, is aiding the enemies of today's Russia.

An interesting human story of an elderly chemist with an idea, Dr. Charles Homes Herty, former president of the American Chemical Society, is the keynote of the story of the south's renewal of industrial activity. Herty made the discovery that slash pine, which grows rapidly, is excellent for wood pulp and paper, and his fight to interest southern men and the financiers of the north is reenacted cleverly. From that beginning has grown an industry.

The missing persons episode is clearly indicative of the amazing number of non-criminals who disappear daily, and shows the exacting, careful work of the police in tracking them. More detailed is the recounting of the manner in which Daniel Eisenberg, heading a private agency, works with every available clue, his success indicated by the fact that he has found 150,000 persons in 14 years.

"You Took the Words Right Out of My Mouth"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Past performances of the bouncing ball type of screen song in which the audience takes part should be the exhibitor's guide in playing this one. It has the usual assortment of cartoon gags, not very humorous, and a good band, in this case it's Jerry Blaine and his tunemakers. Phyllis Kenny, an attractive brunette, aids with the vocals. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"The Miss They Missed"

(Educational)

Here is more mirth-provoking comedy featuring Willie Howard. This time he is a detective and, in addition to his French dialect, he hilariously proves his versatility with Chinese, Scotch and English tongue-twisters. He eventually detects what he started out to find and gets the reward but loses his girl. It is a rip-snorting comedy, packed with laughs of the abdominal kind.

Running time, 18 mins. "G."

Hollywood Preview

"Wide Open Faces"

(Loew-Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16.—Exhibitors and film audiences have come to expect that a Joe E. Brown picture be crowded with action of a comic character, and not a few hilarious episodes. Also they have come to expect that his comedies will be good clean fun which the entire family may see. "Wide Open Faces" fills that bill.

It is what might be called a gangster yarn "reductio ad absurdum," which, without the Latin, means that Joe E., mouth and all, gets himself involved with the object of the attentions of the G-Men, then with a horde of crooks who come in search of loot, all set to a comedy tune.

Supporting Joe E. are Jane Wyman, Alison Skipworth, Lyda Roberti, Lucien Littlefield, Sidney Toler and Berton Churchill, among others. It is a fast-moving yarn which should please the youngsters and the adults who enjoy unpretentious comedy not of the "smart" type so common on the screen today.

Joe, soda jerker in a small town, accidentally "assists" in the capture of a bank robber, and meets Miss Wyman and her aunt, Miss Skipworth, who have inherited an old abandoned inn and are trying to reopen it. The newspaper publicity achieved by Joe in the capture brings every gangster in town after the loot which the robber was supposed to have left. They fill the hotel, then wreck it in the search. There follows a wild and laughable chase, including gangsters, sheriff, Joe and his girl, to the ultimate capture, romance and success.

Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

Sirovich Talks to President on Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—President Roosevelt is "very much interested" in the proposed new Department of Science, Art and Literature, it was declared today by Representative Sirovich of New York, author of the plan, following a visit to the White House.

The President, however, he admitted, favors creation of the department only if it can be made self-supporting.

The bill, on which hearings were concluded last week, is now in the hands of a sub-committee of the House Patents Committee for revision, but the Congressman did not say how he would make the department self-supporting, as demanded by the President.

He did say, however, that the WPA theatre project should be cut to $5,000,000 a year and should produce experimental plays only instead of competing with the commercial theatre.

Switch Mae West Film

Apparently the recent storm of opposition to the West-McCarthy broadcast was responsible, as Atlanta is a strong town for preachers. "I'm No Angel" was banned in Atlanta, but ran for seven weeks at the suburban Buckhead.

Dave Weinstock, operator of the Republic on West 42nd St., yesterday signed an agreement with Local 306 providing for an increase in booth costs from $275 to $330 weekly, a boost of 20 per cent, and the employment of six operators instead of five. The terms are the same as those recently granted by the Eltinge. The agreement runs to Aug. 31, 1939.

The negotiations reached a deadlock Monday night and the union called the operators out of the booth when Weinstock threatened to replace them. An agreement was reached and the men returned after being out an hour.

Chain Tax Argument Starts in Harrisburg

tax and from enforcing penalties established for violations.

Morris Wolfe of Philadelphia, counsel for Warner Bros. Theatres, Inc., operating 50 houses in Pennsylvania; Stanley Co. of America, 100 theatres, and Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., 150 theatres, all with headquarters in Philadelphia, joined with George Ross Hull, Harrisburg attorney representing the American Stores Co., Philadelphia, which is leading the fight, in arguing to make permanent the temporary injunction granted by the court last summer, which has had the effect of holding up the collection of the tax. The revenue estimated to accrue in the two-year period beginning June 1, last, is $3,000,000. About 40 companies, including chain stores, theatre circuits, drug stores, 5 and 10-cent stores and gasoline stations are parties to the suit filed as a test case last spring by the American Stores, the testimony in which was heard last summer.

Warner Attorney Heard

In arguing for the theatres, Wolfe raised the point that the law lacks clarity as to who would be taxed. He said that under the setup it is not clear whether the tax burden would fall upon a realty company that might own a theatre building, upon the operator or even upon the stockholders of a theatre company.

Late in the day John Y. Scott, former deputy attorney general, took up the argument in behalf of the state. He contended that the theatres, as interveners, have no place in the present proceedings which deal primarily with chain stores, and that therefore arguments advanced by the theatres should not be applicable in the present case. He will continue his argument when the hearing is continued tomorrow.

After the final argument the court will determine whether to make the preliminary injunction permanent or dismiss it. Both sides are reported to have agreed that, regardless of the decision of the county court, the case will be appealed to the State Supreme Court.

Crosley Air Drive To Assist Business

CINCINNATI, Feb. 16.—In an effort to stimulate business in general, Powel Crosley, Jr., president of the Crosley Radio Corp., has inaugurated a "Buy Now" campaign in the form of spot announcements and dramatic interludes, aired during sustaining programs and between station announcements over WLW and WSAI. Typical purchases of both necessities and luxuries are translated into terms of how much work they make for the industries and outlets involved. Suggestions are made that concerted buying will help pull the country out of the recession. Crosley hopes other stations, as well as the networks will adopt a similar idea.

"There is excellent buying power in the country," Crosley said at a press conference, "but it is being repressed and purchases are being deferred. If we can stir that power by this campaign, we may be able to stop the decline."

Radio Libel Bill Is Introduced in N. Y.

ALBANY, Feb. 16.—Senator Julius S. Berg today introduced a bill into the State Senate amending the libel law to bring radio broadcasts under the same provisions as pertain to newspapers.

Berg said, in explanation of his measure, that in view of the fact that the radio has an audience as great, or greater, than the newspapers, the air should be subject to the same law. Under the present law, an act of defamation of character or the like is libel when appearing in newspapers, but slander when spoken over the air, with different penalties for each offense. It is Berg's contention that the same rules should apply in both cases.

WHN Still Is Basic Outlet of WLW Line

Officials of WHN declared yesterday that the station will continue to be the basic New York outlet for the WLW line, despite the agreement between WMCA and the Cincinnati station for an exchange of programs.

It was stated that the reason WLW added an auxiliary New York station was that WHN had rejected a proposal by Transamerican that it pay the line charges for the service to Cincinnati which formerly were paid by Powel Crosley, Jr., and WLW. WHN will continue to offer its facilities to advertisers wishing to avail themselves of the high-powered Ohio outlet, it was said.

WMCA Adds Two Programs

WMCA has added two more programs to its schedule. They are sponsored by Lehn & Fink Products Co. and Nestle's Milk Products, Inc. Both originate in WLW, Cincinnati. Pizor Favors Conciliation Board Tryout striving to bring back the old system with whatever changes might be necessary to eliminate the old objections.

"It makes no difference whether you call it arbitration or conciliation," he asserted, "for, after all, the thing needed is the creation of boards to hear disputes between distributor and exhibitor, without resorting to technical legal phases of the contract.

"It seems to me," he continued, "that the difficulties and defects of both arbitration and conciliation could easily be overcome, and out of a combination should come boards which could satisfactorily solve many of the industry's ills. These boards, whether called conciliation or arbitration boards, would perform an invaluable service by conciliating the parties in interest to an amicable adjustment and understanding of complaints, as well as other local grievances, without paying lawyers big fees by resorting to litigation.

"Arbitration has been tried and has proven itself. Conciliation has never been tried. It is submitted that Philadelphia has always been a pioneer in every salutary action leading to the goal of sane, constructive and sensible progress in this business of ours.

"Philadelphia therefore would be the first logical point for experimentation in the establishment of this new system of arbitration. Let's give it a try."

Monogram Forces To Meet on Coast

company under a deal calling for production of eight features on next season's schedule in place of the four which he made this year. Johnston also reported that he had renewed Monogram's lease on the Talisman studios for another year while on the coast.

Of the 42 pictures planned for next season, 26 will be features and 16 will be westerns, thus matching the company's schedule for the current year. Six features and five westerns remain to be completed on this year's program.

Discussing new season production plans, Johnston said that Jackie Cooper will make two pictures for Monogram next year and Movita, four. John Carroll, a newcomer, has been set for "Gypsy Romance" and "The Lost Legion," both for next season. He stated that no definite budgets have been set for the features and that name stars may be added to several where warranted and when available. The policy was determined by the success of the Cooper picture, "Boy of the Streets," he said.

RKO Changes Two Titles

Hollywood, Feb. 16.—The title of two films now in production at the RKO studios have been changed. They are: "The Joy of Loving" to "The Joy of Living" and "It Couldn't Happen Again" to "This Marriage Business."

Grant Injunction Against Ohio Law

U. S. Constitution, on the ground that it deprived the plaintiff of its property without due process of law.

In April, 1936, when the General Assembly had passed the law, John W. Bricker, then state's attorney general, had declared the measure unconstitutional. Governor Davey had refused to sign the bill, and it became a law without his signature 90 days from the date of passage.

Paxton & Seasongood of Cincinnati represented RKO and Ben H. Schwartz of Cleveland acted for the state in the test action before the court, which included Circuit Judge Florence E. Allen and District Judges Mell G. Underwood and Robert E. Nevin. Pending the outcome of the test action, both parties had agreed to suspend enforcement.

The court declared: "The statute does not prohibit exhibition of any film, no matter how improper, at any particular time or place, and no matter how unsuitable. In fact the law does not prevent the showing of an entirely immoral picture. The Ohio censor board is already clothed with ample authority to reject films affecting public morals, but this statute in no way extends or touches on that power of rejection. We cannot assume any local exhibitor would put aside pecuniary consideration in the interest of public morals to a greater extent than the wholesale distributor."

a film gossip and guest appearance program, for several months.

The broadcast complained of occurred on Jan. 23, when Garrett said Robert McWade, having died before his final scene in "Of Human Hearts," was propped up for the final take. Garrett added: "When you see the picture, you'll see the back of a dead man's head."

Garrett explained to Pettey that the information came from a tipster on the M-G-M lot and was considered by him to be authentic. Gross said that the dismissal of Garrett was motivated by a desire to cooperate with the Hays office.

Injunction Asked On No. Dakota Law

Paramount's basic action which contends that the state theatre divorcement law is unconstitutional. Trial of that suit may get under way within the next six weeks, but probably will not be decided before next summer.

Joseph W. Finley, Minneapolis counsel for Paramount, Minnesota and American Amusements, represented those companies here today.

George Husson to Build

Boston, Feb. 16.—George Husson plans to build in Weymouth. Husson already operates theatres in Whitman, Wilmington and Lowell. The new theatre is to seat about 850.

estimated on varying charges in different countries, and deducting the cost of negative, Technicolor prints, advertising, censorship fees and miscellaneous expenses, all of which will amount to approximately $1,700,000, then the net to Walt Disney would be $1,550,000.

The above reasoning would follow in computing the possible profits on a normal picture, but with playing time being given the film three or four times over the regular playing time at theatres, conventional computations are thrown out of line. Furthermore, at the completion of all runs, it is possible that the picture will be reissued, which will mean additional revenue to the distributor and Disney of inestimable proportions.

Ned E. Depinet, distribution head, says the picture has been booked for extended playing time in all contracts approved so far. He predicted that the film would earn extended playing time whether the contracts stipulate it or not, exhibitors in most instances demanding it.

The Music Hall's fifth week gross was $100,000. More than 800,000 persons saw the picture during the run.

"White" Sets Hub Mark

Boston, Feb. 16.—"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is going on to new records at the RKO Memorial. It has already broken the Saturday and Sunday records for any RKO theatre in town. No less than 17,540 paid on Saturday. There were 12,600 more on Sunday. Cash figures were not given out, but cash records also were made on both days. It is estimated that $8,770 was taken in Saturday and $6,500 Sunday.

The one-week record is toppling. It was made by Eddie Cantor at the RKO Boston in six days. Cantor did not play Sunday, but still logged about $50,000. The show is good for one more week, perhaps two, before moving to the RKO Boston on a double feature policy. It is combined with stage talent at present.

No Immediate Moves Foreseen On Chase FWC Stock Holdings

Dismissal of the litigation by T. L. Talley and the Corbar Corp. against Fox West Coast in Los Angeles on Wednesday will not immediately result in the purchase by 20th Century-Fox of the 58 per cent of the stock in National Theatres held by the Chase National Bank, it was said yesterday.

Sidney Towell, treasurer of the film company, said yesterday that there have been no recent discussions for the acquisition of the holdings. The film company owns 42 per cent of the stock. Joseph M. Schenck, chairman, said recently that the west coast litigation barred acquiring the balance, but it is understood that the slump in the stock market is a factor which will delay a possible purchase.

Argument Ends on Penn's. Chain Tax

Harrisburg, Feb. 17.—Argument ended today in the Dauphin County Court in the fight of about 40 chain store and theatre companies who have declared unconstitutional the recently enacted Pennsylvania law imposing a tax ranging from $1 to $500 each annually on chain enterprises, according to the number of individual units in a chain.

The contending interests now are awaiting the court's decision, pending which the court's injunction preventing the State Department of Revenue from enforcing penalties against companies not paying the tax, will continue. It is certain that whatever way the County Court rules the case will be appealed to the State Supreme

Tax Problems Delaying New Moves on U.A.

Partners Ready to Talk, Says Mary Pickford

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Tax problems involved in a sale of the controlling stock interests in United Artists of Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charles Chaplin stand as the "most important" barrier to consummation of a deal with David O. Selznick and Samuel Goldwyn, Miss Pickford stated on her arrival here today from Hollywood.

Emphasizing that she, Fairbanks and Chaplin stood ready to sell their stock holdings in the company at any time "to the right party," Miss Pickford said that a Selznick-Goldwyn offer, which might also include Alexander Korda on either the buying or the selling end, is under consideration. She added, however, that the importance of tax considerations in such a deal impelled lengthy study and probably was sufficient to delay consummation of a deal for some time.

Later in the interview, Miss Pickford declared that a deal might be consummated "any day" providing the offer came from "the right party accompanied by a pledge that the terms of sale would be fully met." Although she declined to amplify this statement,

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 46
(20th Century-Fox)

Although the subject matter is not particularly outstanding in this number of the reel, the treatment, photographically and in production, makes it an interesting and entertaining issue. The camera work appears to good advantage in the shots of the giant English plane in a test flight with a smaller, four-motored ship on its back, and reaches a spine-chilling high in the shots of workmen putting the finishing touches to the Port Arthur Bridge in Texas, moving quickly on narrow girders high above the river.

French Alpine troops on skiis are seen in a speed contest in the mountains, fully armed, and a new method of building wrecking in St. Louis employs a three-ton iron ball on a tall crane crashing through the brick walls. Names in the news include Admiral Horthy of Hungary visiting Poland, Mrs. William Harkness arriving with her new baby panda, William Allen White on his 70th birthday and the Duke and Duchess of Kent on a ski vacation in Austria.

Miami University girls stage their own screen testing, and Chicago girls bake a cake showing each state of the United States. Joe Di Maggio, Lou Gehrig, Helen Wills Moody, Max Schmeling and Helen Hicks are shown in their non-sports pursuits, and the reel ends with an entertaining Lew Lehr "newsette," showing direct feeding of milk from cow to cats. Running time, 10 mins. A.

Paramount News
(Paramount)

The material in this issue is pretty light. Three of the seven subjects are from abroad and lead in interest. The balloting in Moscow during Russia's first general election, with Stalin and Lenin's widow at the polls; shots of King Zog of Albania and his betrothed, with Parliament approving the forthcoming marriage; the Tibetan hordes praying in the temples for a new Lama. The Moscow clip, obtained from the Soviet's official newsreel, has inferior photography.

Three-year-old Jean Demers is a cute and amazing prodigy as she answers questions on topics of the day. There is also the leaving of six large Army planes on a 6,000-mile flight to the Argentine and the building of 72-passenger planes that will span the ocean; a kitchen band which uses cooking utensils as musical instruments, and a display of a new Swiss cotton fabric. Running time, 9 mins. F.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 244
(M-G-M)

Routine news coverage and one feature type clip which is well executed, serve to make this issue of the reel about average. It opens with shots of the Austrian Chancellor reviewing troops, then attending an extremely formal ball in Vienna, which is well photographed. Mrs. William Harkness is seen arriving with her new baby panda, while the first one is shown having a good time in an Illinois zoo.

Miami youngsters are enjoying their lessons, at an aviation class, which includes lectures in a big passenger plane flying over the city. The citizens of Russia are shown dutifully going to the polls to cast their ballot in the general election, which is quite simple, since they have only one party to vote for. Even Stalin votes, and the widow of Lenin. Spring feminine styles feature dresses of Swiss fabrics, and we are informed the keynote is simplicity this year.

An interesting clip shows a Georgia Negro chain gang at work, and returning to the barred wagons in which they sleep when doing road work, with the indication that the chains will be dropped and the cages changed. There is speed and skill in the shots of a championship ping pong match in London, and an outboard motor race for girls on the coast. Running time, 10 mins. A.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 61.
(RKO)

For the most part this assemblage of pictorial news is average and in another category the material is dated. A bit on the current Austro-German affair, culled from stock shots, is given commentary in keeping with new developments. Scenes of the recent Russian elections are given too much footage in view of the dated nature of the subject.

However, there are good shots of the new Boeing flying boat nearing completion in Seattle, floods in Michigan, a fur auction in Wisconsin, a big tennis match in Australia, the trial flight of an English "two-in-one" airplane, Murray Korman, Broadway photographer, selecting the 12 most beautiful girls in the country, and some thrilling shots of an outboard motorboat regatta at Long Beach, Cal. Running time, 8 mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 642
(Universal)

A good collection of novelties and feature news events contributes entertainment and interest to this release, but spot news of consequence is lacking. As a result, there is little of a provocative or exciting nature included.

The subjects in the order of their appearance in the reel are: Observance of the anniversary of the sinking of the Maine in Havana harbor; shots of the "world's largest plane" just completed at Seattle; a Washington, D. C., housewives' band which plays instruments fashioned from kitchen utensils; new adagio routines tried out in Florida; the Minneapolis surface car and bus strike; air delivery of a baby panda at the Chicago zoo; tractor-drawn artillery for Britain's army; making of the "world's largest cake" for a bakers' convention in Chicago; Oregon lumberjacks at work; the inevitable Miami leg scenery; Oregon ski jumping championships, and outboard motorboat races at Long Beach, Cal. Running time, 9 mins. K.

Australia Law Would Restrict New Houses

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Feb. 1 (By Air Mail via London).—The premier of New South Wales has pointed out, with respect to the new legislation on the quota and theatre building passed by both houses of the legislature, that no additional building would be authorized during 1938 without the permission of a committee which will be named for that purpose.

The premier indicated that behind the legislation lies the understanding that the existing laws, lacking restriction on building, have been used unfairly by large companies or major distributors, through the threat that unless rental demands were met, opposition theatres would be built, resulting in the curtailment of product for the exhibitor concerned.

It was emphasized that there is no intention of making the new regulations permanent, and that the committee would be charged with the responsibility of studying other factors related to exhibition, and to make reports on them with a view to the enactment of additional industrial legislation.

Canadian Building Gained During 1937

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—Based on contractors' figures and building permit statistics, theatre construction and the alteration of old theatres across Canada during 1937 brought a total expenditure of $1,943,000 by circuit and individual owners. This was a substantial gain over the previous year.

The largest investment in new theatres and the modernizing of old ones was in the Province of Ontario where total was $929,000, or a gain of 176 per cent over 1936. Second on the list was the Province of Quebec where the building outlay was $410,000, or a gain of 116 per cent. The sum of $327,000 was expended in British Columbia where the gain over the previous year was 407 per cent. The Province of Saskatchewan registered a gain of 520 per cent, but the amount involved was only $31,000 as building operations in that area had been practically at a standstill because of drought conditions.

In the Maritime Provinces on the Atlantic Coast the cost of theatre construction was $56,000. Only $8,000 was spent on theatre rebuilding in Alberta, the gains being 53 and 33 per cent, respectively.

With numerous projects now in hand, the prospect is that Canada will see much construction in the theatre field during 1938.

Montreal Theatres To Raise Admission

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—Effective immediately after Easter, Montreal theatrees will raise their admission prices back to pre-depression levels.

First run houses now charging 50 cents will increase the price to 60 cents, while second run and neighborhood houses will change the 25 and 34-cent price to 30 and 40 cents.

This move will be made by the majority of Montreal's 63 theatres. About 30 per cent of the second run shows and the entire first run group will make the change. Independents are expected to follow the lead of the first runs.

Emphasizing the willingness of herself, Fairbanks and Chaplin to sell their United Artists stock holdings to active producers, Miss Pickford said that the three were "deeply considerate of the fact that United Artists should continue to provide a production opportunity for the Selznicks and Zanucks of the industry."

She intimated that the partners' primary consideration was that the company should be maintained on the principles of its founders and that, in the event producers willing to perpetuate those principles were properly interested, a deal for purchase of the three-fifths stock interest might be had at any time.

The theatre interests and counsel representing the American Stores Co. of Philadelphia, which initiated the suit as a test case in behalf of chain stores generally, completed their arguments yesterday, and today's proceedings were devoted entirely to argument by John Y. Morris Wolfe of Philadelphia represents the Warner and Stanley theatre interests in the controversy.

Montgomery Seeks Talent Union Pact

Four A's unions. Rivarly between the east and west coast entertainers' unions has been marked on several other occasions during the past six months. In attempting to resolve the internal differences the guild has proposed either a "united front" of entertainers along the lines of one big actors' union, instead of many, or amendments to the Four A's bylaws governing voting rights. It is assumed that Montgomery's efforts to secure improved cooperation among the unions would be centered on those proposals or similar ones.

Meredith reiterates the recent Four A's declaration of intention to resist I. A. T. S. E. efforts to dominate the actors' unions "when and if such efforts become official," while declaring that he does not believe that the I. A.'s jurisdictional claims have "the unanimous backing of its members."

A TIP-OFF ABOUT TICKET-SELLING!

Word of mouth is the greatest factor in the success of many great motion pictures. We urge showmen to exploit "OF HUMAN HEARTS" by holding local previews and publishing advance comments. Below is one of the ads of the Capitol, N.Y., in a campaign of publicity and advertising which made the film the talk of the town before it even opened!

RKO Creditor Groups Again To Ask Delay

Agreement Upon Changes In Plan Is Sought

An application for another postponement of Federal court hearings on the RKO reorganization plan is expected when company creditors go before Judge William Bondy for the scheduled hearing on Feb. 28, it was learned yesterday.

The new postponement, however, probably will be sought for a brief period only, instead of the four to six-weeks adjournments which have been obtained heretofore. Because the new delay will be sought to permit the creditors only enough additional time to determine whether agreements on amendments to the plan calculated to speed reorganization of the company are possible, the further postponement probably will not be refused.

RKO's principal creditor groups have been conferring for several weeks on various proposals for amending the company's reorganiza-

The Rivoli had one of its most profitable engagements with "The Hurricane," despite the long Astor roadshow which drew 200,000 patrons. The takes for the five weeks at the Rivoli, consecutively, were $35,000, $28,000, $26,000, $21,500 and $20,000.

Financing for GN Hinges on Goldstone Aid

Bernstein Brothers Also Factors in Deal

Financing will be forthcoming for Grand National if a deal now in negotiation is consummated, it was said yesterday by Ira Greene, head of Continental Film Industries, a financing company.

Completion of the deal hinges on the participation of Phil Goldstone to the extent of $250,000 and an investment of $500,000 by Arnold and Robert M. Bernstein, sons of David Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer of Loew's, Greene said.

The negotiations are being carried on by Edward L. Alperson, G. N. president, in Hollywood. Greene said his company, indirectly, is ready to make an investment on his behalf provided the balance of the aggregate $1,000,000 is forthcoming from the other sources.

Those making the investment will become directors of the company, and the deal, as far as the head of Continental is concerned, is contingent on Goldstone becoming production head, with Alperson remaining east to take charge of distribution, Greene said. Under that setup, Edward Peskay, vice-president in charge of distribution, would work with Alperson.

Greene said that once the current deal goes through, and the company is rehabilitated, additional financing tion plan with a view to making reorganization feasible within the next three to six months, but have reached no conclusive decisions yet. Moreover, from present indications, the probability is that the creditor groups will not have fully explored either all of the desired amendments or the possibility of reaching an agreement among themselves on the essential ones by Feb. 28.

Deliberations on possible management changes within RKO which have been continuing without interruption for the past three weeks were still in an indecisive status yesterday. While it was reasonable to believe that the deliberations might have been concluded at any time within the past 10 days, and continues so, such proposals as are being made from day to day remain of a tentative nature and are revised repeatedly. Final decisions, therefore, have been held in abeyance, due largely to the aim of Irving Trust Co., RKO trustee, to effect whatever changes it believes to be essential without disrupting company administration in any vital respect, particularly in view of the fact that the trustee's responsibility may be terminated within a comparatively short time in the event RKO creditors succeed in arriving at an agreement on plan amendments which would hasten the company's reorganization.

"Love, Honor and Behave"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18.—The first half of this film devoted to showing that Barbara O'Neill wants to be a good loser, that she is training her son to follow in the same ideal and that her husband, Thomas Mitchell, is a hard fighter determined never to lose at anything, all of which culminates in a pair of prohibition divorces, is neither very interesting nor entertaining. But when Wayne Morris grows up, still able to lose gracefully, and Priscilla Lane comes into the show, things pick up and the picture develops into a laughable story of domestic discord.

The modern-minded girl, first giving the Yale tennis player, Morris, a lesson in "pitching the woo" (collegiate for necking), marries him and sets about making a man of him. Not the least of the obstacles the girl has to overcome is the maternal interference. Yet when the partially disillusioned Morris learns from Mitchell that he's got to be a real man and do a little wife beating if necessary, Morris, who gets a pick and shovel job, beats up and tosses rival Dick Foran out of the house and then, as Mothers O'Neill and Mona Barrie, and Mitchell and Minor Watson look on, he gives Miss Lane a dose of caveman tactics in which she revels.

The screen play by Clements Ripley, Lou Edelman, Michel Jacoby and Lawrence Kimble, based on a story by Stephen Benet, is half inconsequentials and half breezy entertainment. Miss Lane, in addition to singing "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen," has been given some clever dialogue and good characters have been created for Morris and, in the later reels, for Barbara O'Neill, Mona Barrie, Watson and Mitchell. When Stanley Logan takes the wraps off, his direction is shrewdly pointed. The growing popularity of Morris and Miss Lane should be influential in attracting attention to "Love, Honor and Behave."

"Dawn Over Ireland"

(William Alexander)

This is said to be the first entirely native made production to come from Ireland. The story is an incident in the Rebellion of 1919. The material has been used before and has proven a box-office draw. The film needs plenty of selling to put it over due to the amateurish quality of the photography, the development of the story and more specifically the acting. The action drags.

Brian Malone at the time of the Rebellion bears the stigma of his grandfather, who had been framed in the uprising of 1866 and had never been cleared. Malone is ousted from the secret Republican Army and in disgust joins the Royal Irish Constabulary against the Republicans. This is hard to bear, and ultimately he sets himself right with the rebels when he attempts to warn them of an impending attack. He proves to be something in the nature of a hero by this act and is taken into the hearts of the other men. His brother, who is secretly the brigade intelligence officer responsible for the successful forays against the Black and Tans, is killed in an ambush shortly after the battle which concludes the film. Malone is reconciled with his fiancee, Eileen O'Donovan.

The picture was produced by Hibernia Film Studios and was directed by Tom Cooper, who also wrote the story and screenplay. An audience at the Belmont found it engrossing.

Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

February Key City Grosses Holding to a Steady Level

Key city grosses bounced downward with a thud following the New Year jump to $1,852,759, but began to show revival signs the third and fourth weeks of January. For the first week of February they tilted upwards to $1,593,065, but during Lincoln's Birthday week they slipped back to $1,519,866.

All these totals are better than the late November and early December totals and compare favorably with the October levels before managers and circuit heads began to talk dolefully about the effects of the recession.

The totals are based on the first run grosses of approximately 149 houses in 24 cities from which statistics are gathered regularly by MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Since the sharp drop for the week ending Jan. 14-15, when the total went down to $1,482,955, with only 145 first run houses open, the totals have held over the $1,500,000 mark and the first run houses in operation have increased to 149.

These figures do not include the big grosses rolled up by the roadshow engagements of "In Old Chicago," and the full effects of the box-office stimulus of "The Buccaneer," "The Hurricane" and "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" are yet to be felt outside of New York.

Chinese Business Is Generally Weak

By J. P. KOEHLER

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—The exhibition situation in China has undergone little change in the past three months. Hongkong continues to do excellent business (this British territory being served from the Shanghai main offices, having branch exchanges located in Hongkong).

In Shanghai, holiday receipts have been normal, "full house" being usual. For the rest of China, little can be said in the way of encouragement. Tientsin foreign concessions continue to do fair business, but only about four or five theatres are operating and these with receipts well under average.

Tsingtao and Tsinan, the last to close, gave up when the Chinese retreated with the resultant disorders, but two British-owned theatres in Tsingtao may attempt to reopen now that the Japanese have taken control

English Firms May Produce in France

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The quality of some of the more recent French films, and their low production cost, which is less than $100,000, has attracted the attention of British producers, who cannot make a comparable film in their own country for less than $200,000.

British Unity Pictures has started a movement to produce British talking films in French studios. The company, formed in England early last year, has transferred its activities to France, where it plans to produce films in both French and English versions.

Jersey Allied Not For "Divorce" Bill

If the North Dakota theatre divorcement law is upheld, and "at the right time," Allied of N. J. might get behind such legislation in that state. Dollinger said. Two members of Allied have pooling arrangements with the Warner circuit.

Dollinger is a member of New Jersey Allied's legislative committee which is watching developments at Trenton. The other members are Sidney Samuelson and Lee Newbury

Opposition to Duals Spreads Among PTA's

Milwaukee Unit Seeking Support for Drive

The opposition of parent-teacher groups to the showing of double feature programs, which reached a point of specific action in Chicago recently, is spreading to other parts of the country.

In Milwaukee the parent-teacher organization has been holding meetings to solicit support in a campaign to eliminate double bills from local theatres there. Although the Milwaukee movement has not been widely publicized as yet, it is known that the organization is attempting to obtain the aid of the health and other city officials, while reports indicate that several aldermen who have been approached on the matter of introducing an ordinance to ban duals have expressed a willingness to sponsor such a measure.

Several newspaper polls taken in Milwaukee have shown a strong desire for single bills on the part of the public, while exhibitors are divided. Independents are expected to support the organization move to end duals, while it is anticipated that the circuits will oppose it.

In New York the United Parents' Association, which represents 100,000 parents, is considering the initiation

Golden Sees Danger In Dual Ban Fights

Warning that the adoption of city ordinances to prohibit the showing of double features on the ground that they are injurious to health will open the door to limitless regulation of theatre operation, Edward Golden, Monogram Pictures sales manager, charged Saturday that this newest form of anti-duals agitation was either inspired by or had the support of elements within the industry.

The moves to prohibit duals by means of city health ordinances were initiated in Chicago and Milwaukee by parent-teacher groups.

Fight "China" Film Ban

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 20.—A crowd of more than 3,000 in the Orpheum Theatre registered a protest against the censor ban on "China Strikes Back," which had been scheduled for showing at the meeting.

Led by A. M. Stephen, president of the Canadian League for Peace and Democracy, Vancouver branch, under whose auspices the meeting was held, the crowd passed a resolution asking for an investigation into amount of influence brought to bear on the censors by foreign consulates.

May Syndicate "Snooks"

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 20. — "Baby Snooks," as created by Fanny Brice on M-G-M's Maxwell House coffee radio program and in the picture, "Everybody Sing," may become the subject of a syndicated newspaper cartoon strip. Robert Allan, cartoonist, is negotiating a deal with Miss Brice and M-G-M.

McShane to Brattleboro

BOSTON, Feb. 20.—Frank McShane is now manager of the Paramount in Brattleboro, Vt. The house is operated by Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc. McShane formerly managed the Strand in Dorchester for M. & P.

Four for Four

"How is business?" a reporter asked a New York manager yesterday shortly after his theatre opened for the day.

"I've got a four-star picture and four patrons in the house, one for each star," came the reply.

Runs on B'way Are Worrying Subsequents

"Every Day's a Holiday" finished three weeks at the Paramount; "Hurricane" completed a five-week stretch at the Rivoli; "Happy Landing" finished four weeks at the Roxy; "The Bad Man of Brimstone" ended two weeks at the Capitol, while "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" completed a five-week run at the Music Hall. Five of the nine first runs were holdovers. The long runs at the Music Hall and the Rivoli forced a shift in bookings on following pictures at these houses.

The distributors, it was explained, are in a dilemma on the situation since while they want all the revenue they can get through the first run bookings, at the same time they must get other pictures played and circulated among the subsequent runs. Where a theatre, such as the Music Hall, has commitments with two or three distributors for completed pictures, the pressure to cut a current engagement short in order to make way for a film awaiting general release often is strong.

"Snow" Run Unusual

The "Snow White" run was an unusual situation. As a result, the Music Hall waived its usual seven days to two weeks' protection and permitted the film to open at the Palace and Albee in Brooklyn on Saturday, two days after the close of the engagement at the large house. The Palace and Albee will hold the picture definitely for two weeks and possibly three. The RKO runs in Manhattan will open with "Snow White" on March 3 for a week, and the circuit will waive its usual seven days' protection over the independents to permit them to get the film March 12. RKO will open "Snow White" at its Brooklyn runs on March 10. The circuit will play the picture as a single bill in all of its situations.

RKO points to "Snow White" in refutation of the charge that a long downtown run is detrimental to the neighborhoods and claims that the picture is gaining a momentum that will assure good business in the later runs regardless of the time element.

Charge Illegal Sales

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 20.—Warrants have been issued against three officers of the defunct B. E. Buckman & Co., securities company, in connection with the alleged illegal sales of stock of Condor Pictures, Inc., among others. Preliminary hearing has been set for April 4.

EASTMAN SUPER X

PANCHROMATIC NEGATIVE

Short Subjects

"Air Parade"

(Educational)

A nicely turned two-reel musical that combines the elements of youth, comedy and song with a plausible story and a good production. The plot is a bright, frothy affair concerning a radio station and the efforts made by the staff, against the wish of the owner, to land a big sponsor. Niela Goodelle and Lee Sullivan engagingly supply the vocals and the boy and girl twist. Others who aid in the diverting doings are Russ Brown, Edith Gresham, Arthur Boran, Clyde Fillmore, Marion Martin and Johnny Green and his orchestra. The film will more than satisfy the demand for this type of entertainment. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Paramount Pictorial P7-7"

(Paramount)

Closeups of the moon as photographed by telescope at Yerkes Observatory are pictorially thrilling in this three-subject collection. Alois Havrilla describes the satellite 24,000 miles from the earth, and the close shots of its craters, ocean beds and mountains will give to many a new conception of the lunar landscape. Activities of Alpine peasants in the autumn, described by David Ross, are against an eye-filling setting. The third subject shows how Ed Rickard produces shadow characters with his fingers. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Donald's Better Self"

(RKO)

In this amusing Walt Disney subject, Donald Duck is cast as a schoolboy, assisted by two ethereal characters, his Evil Self and Better Self, both of whom try to influence him. Throughout the unfolding of the story it's nip and tuck between the two influences, with Better Self winning in the end. It is produced in the typical, and technically excellent, Disney manner. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"A Fascinating Adventure"

(Paramount)

This Sportlight combines fine photography with intimate animal and marine life studies and is recommended. Ross Allen, a Florida Tarzan, and a girl take a leisurely canoe trip along the streams of Central Florida and make friends with the tame animals that abound. Allen's underwater tussle with a giant turtle is an interesting highlight. There are good shots of underwater swimming. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Bluebird's Baby"

(Columbia)

A cartoon in Technicolor, this tells in entertaining fashion the story of the bluebirds who cause a baby to stop crying by carrying it away to "Happyland," after which they return it to the mother. The animation is good and the subject should be pleasing. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Hit and Run"

(Vitaphone)

In the 12 minutes running time of this Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure," the audience will view a brief but powerfully dramatic film which incidentally is also good propaganda for safe driving. A young fellow and his girl go out for a bit of relaxation and get involved in a hit-and-run killing when blood is found on their car. The male in the case is arrested and attempts to prove his innocence. The evidence is against him. Eventually, after a series of tense moments, he is cleared. The film is in keeping with the fine standard set by other numbers. "G."

"Latin Rhythm"

(Nu-Atlas-RKO)

The entertainment value of this musical is centered mainly upon Jan Peerce, featured tenor at Radio City Music Hall and known also on the radio. In support are Luba Malina, singer; Mia Miles Foursome, adagio act, and The Dansapators, a mixed group of 12 from the stage show "I'd Rather Be Right." The title of the subject comes by reason of Spanish costuming and setting. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Be Up to Date"

(Paramount)

This is a fair Betty Boop cartoon. Miss Boop takes a department store on wheels into the hillbilly country and not only finds business good but finds the billies putting their purchases to startling use, one using a waffle iron as a permanent wave machine. The subject ends with Betty and the natives doing a swing number. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Song Birds of the North Woods"

(Educational)

Here is an interesting and novel little excursion into a simple branch of natural history that should prove to be a distinctly different film. The various birds found in the Adirondacks play the leading roles and the music they make pleasantly fills the sound track. The bird photography and the scenic backgrounds aid effectively the narration. The short was filmed by the Cornell laboratory of ornithology. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Candid Kid"

(Vitaphone)

A nicely fashioned musical. While its humor is slow in getting started, it manages to strike a satisfying note. The candid camera craze is the theme. Josephine Huston, in between pleasantly done vocals, gads about with Phil Silvers and the Anthony Morelli Sextet in an effort to get a prize-winning picture. They go from one night club to another and eventually wind up the doings in good style. The attractive Gae Foster Girls are also featured in ensemble numbers. The music and dancing is in good taste. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Gold"

(Paramount)

The mining of the precious yellow metal at Johannesburg makes an above-average short that will hold the attention of any audience. The Kaffir boys are human moles working in eight-hour shifts three-quarters of a mile below ground. They do the heavy work, and Britishers are entrusted with the more precise functions. Alois Havrilla does a good job of narrating the processes, from the "digging" to the refining and, finally, the shipments of the bullion to the world markets. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Porky's Phoney Express"

"The Maid's Night Out"

(RKO)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 20.—"The Maid's Night Out," produced by Robert Sisk and directed by Bert Holmes, is a comedy romance with an occasional laugh in dialogue or situation, but it hardly is to be counted upon to raise the mortgage on the theatre.

The original story of Willoughby Speyers and the screenplay of Bert Granet tells of the pursuit and romance of Allan Lane and Joan Fontaine, the former acceptable, the latter less so. He makes a bet with his father and goes to work as a milk driver for the family company, while she, meeting him while wearing a dust cap in the backyard, is mistaken for the maid at the wealthy home in which she is the slightly spoiled daughter.

This dual mistaken identity is carried through in rather expected fashion, including various dodges by which she prevents him from learning who she is. Her mother, incidentally, is attempting to marry her to a wealthy and insipid young man to save the family fortune, but she fails to see the point.

Eventually, after a flareup at a swank party in which they are both revealed among society, he virtually captures her, lands in jail and she dons his milkman's outfit and enables him to win the bet with his father, with the anticipated conclusion.

and have reestablished order and son public service.

In the southwest, in Canton, bus ness is very poor, with few theatr operating and these subject to sudd closing, due to almost constant a raids. In distant Yunan, theatres still carrying on, and in the west, Hankow, Changsha, Chungking ar Chengtu they are continuing with fa receipts, but the difficulties and unce tainties of the round about delive circuit via Hongkong, Canton, Ha kow make films service irregular.

On future operation most foreig distributors are emphatically pessimi tic, some even predicting that it wi take over a year to get even tl Yangtse River port cities west Shanghai to Hankow back into oper tion. Theatres generally along th line have suffered heavily from battl fire and either looting or self-impos stripping of equipment.

Should military operations perm reopening of theatres in territory no occupied by the Japanese forces, the will be much rebuilding, refurnishir and reequipping. Most of these hous used either German or American sou projectors, and unless Japanese-ma apparatus is installed, an unlikely fe ture in the larger theatres, equipme business should experience a boom 1938. However, this prediction mu be taken cautiously, everything depen ing on how soon and on what tern order is reestablished in these areas.

a move to ascertain the attitude of members to the showing of dual grams, and in the event that a ma-ity are opposed, it is expected that plan will be devised for active opsition to double bills.

In Chicago the preparation of an dinance to ban double bills already s started, and is expected to be ady for submission to the City Coun- on March 2. The decision to pro-ed with such a measure followed a ling by Corporation Counsel Barnet odes that the city had the power regulate the exhibition of duals as health measure. The action was ırted several weeks ago, when a oup of clubwomen and teachers, repsenting 150,000 school children of city, descended upon the City Hall protest duals as a menace to the alth of their children to Health mmissioner Herman N. Bundeson.

Independents Cooperate

Independent theatre owners and opators of small circuits in Chicago e known to be in favor of the elimition of duals.

Action against duals also has been ken by the parent-teacher group of ronxville, Westchester County. In at community a movement has been arted to enlist general support for e abolition of the double programs, ich, it was contended, held children the theatre too long. Similar action s been taken in the Oranges, in New rsey.

The sudden introduction of triple lls in Toledo, where, as in most of hio, double bills have long been virally standard theatre policy, has used considerable concern among hibitors.

In other widely separated sections the country women's organizations ve expressed opposition to duals, and some instances have undertaken ace campaigns to bring about the mination of the policy.

Golden Sees Danger In Dual Ban Fights

Golden observed, "apparently are unaware of the fact that they merely are serving as 'stooges' to further the interests of monopolistic groups within the industry itself, who have started this newest move only because all previous attempts to discredit the double feature have failed."

He recounted unsuccessful efforts to ban double features under the industry's NRA code, by means of prohibitions written into exhibition license agreements, through the opposition of religious groups, by audience polls and other means.

Golden asserted that if health ordinances are adopted prohibiting double features the way will be opened to municipal policing of all phases of theatre operation, such as requirements for fumigation and sterilization after every performance, rigid regulation of ventilation and air-conditioning, all of the physical aspects of the theatre and, possibly, regulation of the type of picture permitted to be shown, giving rise to municipal censorship of the screen.

Golden also warned of the economic consequences which he sees resulting from any eventual elimination of double featuring, such as a reduction of employment throughout the industry with 200 fewer features being made annually; loss of revenue from foreign markets, and control of rentals and admission scales by the distributors of the fewer number of features produced. He recalls, as well, that production would suffer from the absence of a talent discovery and training field such as that now provided by "B" picture production.

G. N. Finance Deal Cools Over Weekend

The $1,000,000 financing for Grand National which was to have included Phil Goldstone, Arnold and Robert M. Bernstein and Ira Greene, president of Continental Film Industries, cooled over the weekend.

Arnold Bernstein, a son of David Bernstein, Loew's vice-president and treasurer, said he had discussed the matter recently with Edward Peskay, G. N. vice-president, but the discussions had not reached the status of a deal. Bernstein is a member of Loew's legal staff and associated with Peskay in some theatre ventures.

Bernstein stated that his visit to Hollywood, from which he returned last week, apparently led certain quarters interested in the future of Grand National to believe that he went to the coast to further the discussions started with Peskay. In any event, it was said, nothing could be done about the matter until the return from Florida of David Bernstein, about March 1.

Greene today will attempt to obtain more information on the status of the reported deal. It is reported, however, that Goldstone has pledged an investment up to $250,000 provided the balance of $1,000,000 will be forthcoming from others.

Official Denies Any Plans to Drop CRCK

MONTREAL, Feb. 20.—Rumors to the effect that the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. planned closing its Quebec City outlet, CRCK, now that the high-powered CBF is in operation at Vercheres, Que., have been scotched by Gladstone Murray, general manager of the corporation.

Murray admitted hearing such rumors, but denied any proposal had been made. "It is purely speculative. We couldn't possibly reduce the number of stations in that area until we are quite sure that CBF is giving equally good coverage. And again, there are a certain number of English programs carried on CRCK."

CBF is a French-language station.

The decision was based on the fact that the words on which the suits were based were not included in the complaint.

SPITZ TO REMAIN AS HEAD OF RKO

McDonough Is Elected as Vice-President and Board Member

Deliberations on RKO management were formally concluded late Monday with a definite and final decision by Leo Spitz, president, to continue in that post, and with J. R. McDonough, former president, being elected a vice-president and director of RKO Radio Pictures.

The decisions fulfill the basic management program advocated by Irving Trust Co., RKO trustee, for the past several weeks. The retention of Spitz as head of the company was the keystone of this program and, as reported in Motion Picture Daily of Feb. 10, included the addition of McDonough to the company management and the continuation of Pandro S. Berman in charge of the studio. As reported in the same issue, the post of RKO theatre operating head vacated by Nate J. Blumberg on Jan. 1 was not involved in the discussions and, it is believed, no appointment to that post will be made for several weeks.

McDonough's election is understood to give him pre-defined duties in the nature of an executive aide to the trustee, which presumably means that his designation is for the period of

Nebraska Game Ban Wins in High Court

Omaha, Feb. 22.—Bank Night is now definitely outlawed in Nebraska, according to a ruling by the Nebraska State Supreme Court.

The court denied a motion for a rehearing made last Nov. 30 by attorneys for the Fox Midwest Circuit, operating the Fox at Beatrice. On Oct. 22 the court had upheld a lower court decision calling Bank Night a lottery and in violation of the state lottery laws.

Hearing in the Beatrice case was regarded as a test case. District Judge Fred Messmore ruled in lower court that any consideration involved, whether time, money or even going out of one's way to be at the theatre for the drawing, brought it under the lottery laws. It was this decision the state high court upheld.

A rehearing had been asked on the ground that the court ignored a rule of law in the Beatrice case laid down

Hollywood Preview

"Accidents Will Happen"

(Warners)

Hollywood, Feb. 22.—The fake accident racket, which occasionally becomes a scandal in many localities, has been adapted as the subject matter of "Accidents Will Happen." While hardly of caliber that will attract attention in the bigger houses, the picture should prove effective in the neighborhood and small town theatres.

In theme and in the manner in which the expose is effected the story follows the honest-man-who-turns-crooked-for-a-purpose formula. Ronald Regan, an insurance investigator disillusioned by his faithless wife, Sheila Bromley, goes into the fake accident racket with Gloria Blondell. The clever pair, knowing all the angles, soon are accepted as legitimate allies by the big boss, Addison Richards. Action and situations illustrate the various ruses through which insurance companies are mulcted. Regan finally gets all the evidence necessary to expose Richards and his henchmen. While the melodrama is going on, Regan becomes more closely attached to Miss Blondell and when, following the expose, he is reinstated in his company, plans are formulated to divorce Miss Bromley so that the hero may marry Miss Blondell.

The picture is told realistically and with quite a bit of exciting punch. Good performances are contributed by the leads and supporting players. The film is based on a story by George Bricker which he, Anthony Coldeway and Morton Grant adapted. William Clemens' direction is gaited to keep things moving.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

There should be little difficulty i selling this serial to youngster Where the first "Flash Gordon" wer over this will do the same. Trade Unites For Fight on English Bill quota obligations of American distributors to one-third those imposed on exhibitors.

The exhibitors forecast that the normal quota figure on a year's films of 97 would be reduced under the new plan to 33. In other words, 64 fewer films would be produced, which would result in the exhibitors' quota needs going unfilled and leave a consequent shortage of product.

The Stanley amendments would reduce to £15,000 the minimum cost of those films which may be counted as eligible under the proposed reciprocity clause, and would permit films costing £30,000 to be counted a triple in valuation for the distributor quota.

The exhibitors contend that enactment of the Stanley plans would have the effect of putting many independent theatre owners out of business.

A deputation of exhibitors yesterday visited the Board of Trade in an effort to persuade Stanley to withdraw his amendments. Stanley was absent and his office offered no encouragement to the exhibitors. The theatre owners have expressed their intention to fight the plan through to the end.

Metcalfe Asks Assistance

Charles P. Metcalfe, president of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, told an emergency press conference yesterday that he needed their assistance, declaring he would agree to deferring the Stanley plan for consideration later by the Films Council. It is contended that the only support for the proposal is coming from the interested producer section which has circuit release for expensive films.

A new Stanley amendment to be proposed stipulates that the distributors' quota productions must be made in the United Kingdom by producers in business there during the periods of production. This would have the effect of barring distributor quota films made in Canada, Australia or India. Another Stanley proposal would allow two foreigners to work on any production under the labor cost clause, thus permitting one foreign star and one foreign director or technician on a picture.

The A. F. of A. complied with a recent order of the Four A's and returned $1,400 in dues which it had collected from burlesque actors to the Burlesque Artists Ass'n. The dues were collected during a brief period last summer when the A. F. of A. claimed jurisdiction over the burlesque workers, a claim which was later denied by the Four A's.

Asks Probe on Game Insurance

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Feb. 22.—Frank N. Julian, Alabama Superintendent of Insurance, has suggested Grand Jury investigation of a practice of guaranteeing collections of theatre Jackpots, asserting, "it is clearly against the insurance laws of Alabama unless the operators are authorized guaranty companies." Julian said no individual or corporation had been authorized to engage in the "jackpot guarantee" business, and none would be, "unless they can post $100,000 cash and meet other requirements of the law."

Theatre Jackpots recently were held to be lotteries by the Alabama Supreme Court.

"Our members may rest assured that when the time is propitious for the introduction of this type of legislation in this territory, we will open up on it with all our guns."

The bill, as introduced, provides that no theatre could do business in Massachusetts if it were "owned, controlled, managed, or operated, in whole or in part, by any producer or distributor of motion picture film, direct or indirect, legal or equitable, through stock ownership or otherwise."

Ticket Tax Shows Big January Drop

amusement industry. The loss of $900,000 from December to January was more than $200,000 greater than the decline from December to January a year ago.

For the seven months of the current fiscal year—July through January—admission tax revenues were $12,807,432 as compared with $11,725,853 in the corresponding period last year, the bureau reported.

Holiday admission tax collections in the Broadway district were slashed drastically, it was disclosed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue in figures showing January receipts from the Third New York District.

Total collections for the month were but $339,074, a drop of $417,000 from the December total of $756,524, and nearly $160,000 under the January, 1937, receipts of $498,924, it was reported. Box-office collections, which totaled $425,863 in January, 1937, and $668,327 in December, dropped to $271,505 last month.

Reductions were noted in all other categories except permanent use or lease of boxes and seats, from which collections jumped from $3 in December to $6 in January.

Collections from free or reduced rate admissions dropped $9,467 to $4,965; tickets sold by brokers, from $18,300 to $15,535; tickets sold by proprietors in excess of established prices, from $2,441 to $244, and admissions to roof gardens and cabarets, from $57,985 to $46,819.

reorganization. It was reported in usually reliable quarters, in this connection, that McDonough had been given a one-year contract with renewal options. His first assignment is expected to be at the studio where he will concern himself exclusively with financial matters. Decisions involving production affairs will remain with Berman, it is believed, and where they may conflict with financial decisions final rulings, presumably, will be made in New York.

The deliberations on a change in RKO management were begun shortly before the first of the year and were participated in originally by the principal creditors, Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros., trustee's representatives, Spitz and Berman. The discussions continued in Hollywood for four weeks, ended in an impasse, and were then transferred to New York where they have continued since, without, however, Atlas and Lehman participation.

Presumably, the inability to reach an earlier decision since the deliberations were begun here was due to the trustee's basic desire to have Spitz continue as head of the company while insisting upon the addition of a financial aide. According to informed sources, Spitz was wary of the development of a situation which might lead to divided authority and executive conflict within the company. Therefore, all proposals which were advanced during the three weeks of deliberations here were of a tentative nature and depended for permanence on their acceptability to Spitz. For this reason, the setup arrived at Monday is assumed to have his approval.

Boston, Feb. 22.—"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" at the RKO Memorial proved to be the biggest thing to hit Boston for months, socking over normal by $20,500 with a total take of $42,500. Georges Campo, Vic Hyde and an assembled unit worked the stage. All-time records for Saturday and Sunday catapulted the Memorial to a terrific start. "Man-Proof" and "I'll Take Romance" was slightly over par at both Loew's Orpheum and Loew's State. At the RKO Boston, "Happy Landing" held up well in its fourth week. It was dualed for a second week with "Charlie Chan at Monte Carlo." The Boston grossed $8,000, under the level by only $2,000.

The Metropolitan, putting on its last stage show before going into double features and therefore holding expenses down, had one of the poorest weeks of its career, grossing $9,000.

"Snow White" Stirs Ohio Factory Rush

Columbus, Feb. 22.—"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" has precipitated an unusual industrial spurt in northern Ohio. From Toledo it is reported that the Libby division of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. has been operating at capacity for several weeks producing practically millions of tumblers with "Snow White" characters blown thereon in color, while at Akron the Seiberling Tire & Rubber Co. is turning out rubber models of "Snow White."

It is understood that both industries are having difficulty in supplying the nationwide demand.

The picture will be given a midnight "Hollywood premiere" when it opens at the RKO Palace Feb. 24, according to C. Harry Schreiber, RKO city manager. Fireworks and bombs will be set off, local department stores will feature a "Snow White Fashion Show," and there will be a special broadcast of the musical score over WBNS. City, county and state officials will attend, and one of the celebrities will cut the massive "Snow White" cake just before the picture opens. Girls dressed in white will act as hostesses.

Kennedy a Diplomat Before Departing—He Won't Talk

By AL FINESTONE

Even before he reaches the Court of St. James's in London, Joseph P. Kennedy is the cautious diplomat. He parried all questions put to him by newspaper reporters before he sailed on the Manhattan yesterday at noon.

"Did President Roosevelt give you any instructions during your conference with him at Hyde Park yesterday?" he was asked.

Kennedy shook his head negatively. "No," he said, peering through his eyeglasses.

"Do you have any comment on the new British film quota proposals?" the MOTION PICTURE DAILY reporter persisted.

"I just got bounced out of one job and thrown into another," Kennedy replied with a grin. "I don't know anything about it. That's what I'm going over there to find out."

Mrs. Kennedy and other members of the family were with the Ambassador when reporters and cameramen crowded his suite seeking "coverage." A white-haired spokesman emerged from a private room and notified the press that Ambassador Kennedy would see them in a stateroom down the hall. Meanwhile, James Roosevelt tried to pry his way into the Kennedy suite, and when he found ingress blocked, he exclaimed:

"My God, is this a press conference?"

Tax Talks Include Control of Radio

ALBANY, Feb. 23.—Pending legislation to put the radio industry in this state under the supervision of the Public Service Commission was brought into the conference of Democratic senators who are discussing taxation to defray the $386,000,000 budget, MOTION PICTURE DAILY has learned.

Senator John T. McCall, Manhattan legislator, who introduced the measure last week, was among those attending the conference. No criticism of the McCall bill was uttered in rebuttal, it is understood.

Radio stations and corporations are planning a drive to beat the bill, and may demand a public hearing.

Revenue from radio utility and franchise taxes under the proposed law would amount to between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000 annually, Senator McCall estimated.

"Chicago" 6-Week Take Is $101,400

"In Old Chicago" has grossed $101,400 in six and a half weeks of its two-a-day run at the Astor, according to 20th Century-Fox. Opening on a Thursday night, the film did $11,000 in its first three days, and full-week takes for the subsequent six weeks were as follows: $17,700; $16,500; $16,400; $14,800; $14,200; $10,800. The picture will complete a 12-week run late in March.

"Tom Sawyer" garnered $95,000 in its first week at the Music Hall, ending last night, and was held for a second week. "Bringing Up Baby" will follow on March 3.

Miami "Snow" Starts Riot

Miami, Feb. 23.—Over 1,000 children at the last performance of the Sonja Henie Ice Ballet at the Burdine Stadium staged a near-riot when they became too enthusiastic over their first snowball experience. Most of the 3,000 under-privileged children present as guests of a local man grabbed handfuls of artificial ice from the ski slide and pelted each other, the skating star and onlookers. A policeman was injured.

The melee was stopped only when a fire truck turned on a hose, drenching a swank crowd as well as the kids. The riot lasted 20 minutes. Miss Henie was posing for publicity stills when the first snowball landed. She was rushed to a dressing room by a wedge of performers.

The kids had the last laugh by cutting the fire hose.

McDonough Going West On Financial Matters

Guilds Vote Common Front Against I. A.

Hollywood, Feb. 23.—The formation of a guild front to preserve the boundaries of the Screen Actors' Guild from encroachment by the jurisdictional extension drive of the I.A. T.S.E. definitely was set last night when the writers' and directors' organizations signified their intention of aiding each other and the Screen Actors' Guild, if the I.A. pushes its demand for control of all film crafts, made last Sept. 10.

At a meeting of the Screen Writers' Guild called to pass the new constitution giving autonomy to the guild, and making it an affiliate rather than a member of the Authors' League of America, the writers voted to stand with the other two talent groups, whose members the I.A. claims, along with the rosters of the other organizations.

The board of directors of the director group voted to aid the other guilds in the event of an attack by the I.A. Although the Screen Actors' Guild also met Monday night, there was no disclosure of the business transacted. However, it is said that the Screen Actors' Guild may not join actively in a common front with the writers and directors, since some leaders fear that such action may endanger the 10-year contract with producers obtained last year.

plans are subject to day-to-day change at this time. Ned E. Depinet and Jules Levy will accompany him west to discuss new season production plans with Berman. The status of Lee Marcus, in charge of "B" picture production, continues unchanged.

Berman will leave the coast by train tonight for New York conferences which will extend over an indefinite period.

Present indications are that RKO theatre operations will continue without change indefinitely. It is virtually certain, at least, that no new head of the theatre department will be appointed until after Spitz returns from the coast. Theatre operations, therefore, will continue under the direction of John O'Connor and L. E. Thompson.

Schlesinger and Rapf Take Cruise and—Make a Short

By JOSEPH PRIORE

When the Rex sailed a few weeks ago "Ace" Williams, a cameraman, was abroad, assigned by the Italian Line to film the ship's cruise from New York to Rio de Janeiro, since it was the first vessel of large tonnage to make the South American jaunt. Williams was plentifully supplied with film.

Now it seems that Leon Schlesinger, Warner producer, and Harry Rapf, M-G-M executive, who should know how these things are done, also were on the ship.

Word probably got around, as it will on shipboard, that Williams would have quite a bit of footage to spare in the course of his recording of the daily seagoing events. Since it was film news there were at least two sets of ears that it reached and what should Schlesinger and Rapf do but get the impromptu idea of making a picture during the voyage. They probably consulted the social director and with his aid recruited from among the passenger list a more or less complete cast and with the Italian liner as a setting, they wrote, directed and produced a detective story. The passengers thought it an excellent diversion.

It is reported that during the voyage home the film was assembled, cut and printed and one evening it had its shipboard premiere. So, Rapf and Schlesinger called it a vacation.

The first two films will be in color and will feature Edwin C. Hill as commentator.

The films have been in production for several months under the direction of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, company advertising agents. They will cost more than $200,000.

Billboard Tax Bill Introduced in N. Y.

Works Dept. as agents of the Taxation Dept.

The Burchill bill, now resting in the Senate taxation group, adds a new section, including "signs or advertisements or advertising devices maintained and displayed on or in any car, station, subway or structure of a corporation subject to the provisions of the Public Service Commission Law." The bill provides that the number of square feet in an advertisement or advertising device shall be computed by measuring its longest horizontal and vertical dimensions.

Buffalo exhibitors went on record against specification of the number of matrons for children in theatres in a blast against the Rossi bill.

Federal Radio Tax Hearing to Be Held channel transmitters assessed at the highest.

The tax would not apply to stations operated by a Governmental instrumentality or to non-profit stations.

The measure, it is estimated, would raise from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 a year, under the proposed rates, the Crosley station, WLW, with a power of 500,000 watts, the highest in the country, would pay $1,500,000 a year in tax, and it is believed if the measure is given serious consideration a "ceiling" will be incorporated which would prevent excessive taxation of any station.

tary to his father, finally was able to wedge himself in and have a private talk with the Ambassador.

After the press was made comfortable in Stateroom A-7—down the hall from Kennedy's A-41—the Ambassador eventually appeared.

"Hello, boys," was his greeting. "I have nothing to say. Not a thing. I have been asked so many questions already that I feel questioned out." He beamed through his spectacles and started to shake hands all around. His brown suit harmonized with his ruddy complexion and russet hair. His air was that of a man who was very busy and very anxious to get it over with. He was genial about it, though.

Some of the newshounds started to pop questions.

"I haven't a thing to say," was his general reply. "I'm just a babe going over there to find out what it is all about."

"Mr. Ambassador," ventured one of the reporters. "Will you wear knickers when you get to London?"

"I've been waiting for that to catch up with me," Kennedy responded.

"I don't know whether I'll wear 'em or not."

"You know, Mr. Ambassador," another newsman piped up, "one of the greatest rebels wore knickers when he got to St. James's."

"Who was that?" Ambassador Kennedy asked.

"George Harvey," he was informed.

All Ambassador Kennedy said was: "Oh, yes."

Takes Leave of Wife

The MOTION PICTURE DAILY reporter handed Kennedy a copy of yesterday's edition. The Ambassador thanked him, folded it and slipped it in his coat pocket. Then he excused himself and went back to his quarters to say goodbye to Mrs. Kennedy and his children.

There were a number of men connected with maritime affairs around. One of them, who seemed to be an official spokesman, was a young man who identified himself as Harvey Klemmer, chief of special studies for the U. S. Maritime Commission. He confided that he would be attached to the Embassy in London as a special secretary in charge of maritime affairs.

When Kennedy boarded the boat, he found Sir Gerald Campbell, British consul general, waiting to say goodbye. The Ambassador posed for the newsreels on the pier, but had nothing to say.

Mrs. Kennedy is due to follow her husband shortly with seven of their nine children. The other two, it is planned, will continue their studies at Harvard.

Union Can't See It

Hollywood, Feb. 23.—Paul Snell, publicity director for Sol Lesser, wanted to hold the preview of "Hawaii Calls," on board the Matsonia, in keeping with the Hawaiian spirit of the film starring Bobby Breen. All arrangements were made for a four-hour cruise, dinner and showing of the film on the ship. Snell agreed to pay the boat's crew overtime for the journey.

The sailors' union issued an ultimatum, declaring that a new crew of 300 must be hired for the journey. So the film is being previewed at a local house.

Alperson-Wright to Act as Co-Trustees

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—Edward L. Alperson and Loyd Wright will act as co-trustees in the reorganization of Grand National under Section 77B of the bankruptcy act as a result of the court proceedings here Monday.

Alperson made the appointment possible by signing the petition for the reorganization in proceedings before U. S. District Judge William James. The court set March 12 as the date for a hearing and gave Alperson and Wright 30 days in which to develop a plan of reorganization.

Alperson's consent to the reorganization followed long conferences with the court and the failure to raise funds to carry on production. Harold Fendler, an attorney, indicated that if no consent were given he would institute involuntary proceedings in bankruptcy.

Peskay Going to Coast

Edward Peskay, G. N. vice-president, is scheduled to leave by plane for Hollywood tonight for reorganization conferences with Edward L. Alperson, president. Peskay also will sit in on financial discussions with Alperson and Phil Goldstone.

The Bank of America is reported to be interested in discussions on new capital. G. N. has been paying off its indebtedness to the bank and by the end of this week will have reduced this debt to $17,000, it was said. The original indebtedness to the bank was $500,000.

Saul J. Krugman, assistant to Peskay, has been appointed New York branch manager, succeeding Morris Epstein, who recently joined Republic in a similar capacity. Krugman has supervised southern exchanges. Sol Edwards, eastern division manager, will spend more time in the field, it is planned, and may include the southern territory.

Renters' 3-1 Quota Killed in England

Stanley's proposed Films Council, but the amendment ultimately was defeated. Wallace claimed the trade is opposed to a commission and declared the Government believes that a small, autocratic body would be disastrous. The Labor and Conservative members supported the Williams amendment, but could not carry it.

Meanwhile, exhibitors, producers and technicians massed in the corridors engaged in lobbying among members of Parliament.

Consideration of the Films Bill had been postponed from yesterday because the cabinet crisis had occupied the attention of the Commons throughout yesterday's session. The general trade viewpoint here is that Stanley has capitulated to the Americans. Exhibitors for the past two days had reached every member of Parliament by telegram expressing alarm and predicting a reduction of production, an increase in unemployment and the greatest setback the industry here ever has received. Labor and producer interests circularized all members, protesting against the alleged inadequacies of the film measure, which was described as subordinating the protection of the industry to a small minority.

A.B.P. Files Action In Ostrer-G.B. Case

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Action has been filed in the King's Bench Division by Associated British Pictures Corp. against Isidore, Mark and Maurice Ostrer, claiming damages for alleged misrepresentation in connection with the agreement made in August, 1936, by which John Maxwell of A.B.P. was to purchase shares in Metropolis & Bradford Trust, holding company of Gaumont British.

It was alleged that the claims regarding the status of the securities were incorrectly represented. The Ostrers have filed a denial of the charges. Laurence Howard also claims £50,000, which he alleges was agreed as remuneration for the negotiation of the stock sale. The defense has denied liability.

Call Creditors on Rock's Liquidation

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Creditors' meetings have been called for the Rock Studios and Soskin Productions, the latter by Paul Soskin, to appoint a liquidator to close out the business.

The bankruptcy petition was filed by John Henry Iles, backer of the Rock Studios, with £250,000 involved. The British production situation was blamed for the firms' failure.

Brandt Delays Trip

Harry Brandt, president of the Independent Theatre Owners' Association, has deferred his scheduled trip to Washington for conferences with Government officials until later in the week, it was said yesterday at his office. He had planned to leave for the capital on Tuesday. Extension of Government credit to small exhibitors is one of the purposes of his trip.

A meeting of the I. T. O. A. is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at the Hotel Astor.

Ontario Exhibitors Hit Film Broadcasts

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—A protest against the policy of Hollywood producers in broadcasting screenplays and similar programs was entered at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Independent Theatres Association of Ontario, the resolution pointing out that "this type of competition forced on independents by Hollywood producers is placing an unwarranted strain on the theatre business." During the discussion on this subject it was asserted that theatre grosses ranged from 25 to 50 per cent lower on the broadcast nights than on any other comparable night of the week.

The association also decided to take action against the growing menace of Bingo and other prize games conducted in church halls and lodge rooms, many of which are tax-free properties. These games are organized by promoters who sell the prizes for profit and also collect a percentage of the revenue, only a small amount being turned over to religious or charitable organizations, it was declared. The meeting decided to refer the matter to the Toronto Board of Trade.

Clearance Criticised

The subject of booking clearance aroused considerable discussion. N. A. Taylor, general manager of the association, declared: "Clearance, as it exists in Toronto today, is diabolical and is used as a weapon by circuit interests against independent exhibitors." Taylor pointed out that the representatives of the independents on the conciliation committee, made up of film exchange men and theatre managers, had taken the position that, until clearance had been dealt with, the independent theatre owners would refuse to cooperate on any other subject. The meeting voted against the continuance of the score charge imposed by exchanges after it had been described by Harold Kay and Harry Firestone, Toronto exhibitors, as a "gag for additional film rental."

Regarding changes in the standard rental agreement, suggestions for which had been asked by the Motion Picture Distributors' Association of Canada, it was pointed out by Taylor that suggestions for amendments offered in previous years by independents had been ignored but that the board of directors of the Independent Theatres Association were ready to offer recommendations before any joint committee of exchanges and exhibitors which might be appointed for the purpose of revising the form of film contract.

Meyer to Study Color

Possibilities of making available a new color process for 35 mm. film will be investigated in Europe by Dr. Herbert Meyer who will sail tomorrow for a six-week trip. He is a partner with C. King Charney in the distribution of 35 mm. Agfa film in the United States. Dr. Meyer said he will spend some time in London surveying laboratory advances in the production of color film. Meyer arrived yesterday from the coast with Charney. The latter plans to return to Hollywood March 1.

"Merrily We Live"

(Roach-M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—Here are gathered together in congenial confusion as fine a collection of brainy zanies as has been set before King Public in this comedy-conscious season. Here, too, is humor without taint, hilarity without vulgarity and a continuous flow of dialogue, situation and incident, provocative of laughter untinged with blush and unabashed by absurdity. "Merrily We Live" may or may not prove to be, as advertised, "The comedy that tops 'Topper,'" but the point is debatable enough to justify a widespread display of exhibitor ad copy to that effect and box-office profits derived from the same may be pocketed with a clear conscience. It is probably a better, certainly a sounder, picture.

The burden of entertainment is distributed with rare impartiality between such competent performers as Brian Aherne, Constance Bennett, Billy Burke, Alan Mowbray, Patsy Kelly, Bonita Granville, Clarence Kolb, Ann Dvorak, Tom Brown, Marjorie Rambeau and Willie Best.

Aherne plays a novelist who is mistaken for a tramp by Miss Burke, the light-headed but well-meaning mother of a luxury-ridden family, and thrust forthwith into domestic service with a view toward reformation. In a series of uproarious developments he wins the respect of the addled family and their equally temperamental servitors, marrying the elder daughter, of course. The developments leave the beaten track, their treatment is fresh, the humor shades down in skillful graduation from genteel banter to outright slapstick of the original Hal Roach variety, and the result is surefire all-purpose entertainment.

Milton H. Bren, executive producer; Norman Z. McLeod, director, and Jack Jevne and Eddie Moran, writers, have here duplicated the physical aspect of their record-breaking "Topper," the high gloss, the sheer splendor, the kinkless continuity of narrative, without in any particular duplicating or paralleling the subject matter, plot or point of that hit. They have turned out another upper bracket picure quite capable of earning as much or more money and more than likely to find a wider and much happier public.

Running time, 95 minutes. "G."

"Hawaii Calls"

(Principal-RKO)

Colorful Hawaiian backgrounds and native players are introduced interestingly by producer Sol Lesser and director Edward F. Cline, to add to the entertainment values of this new Bobby Breen picture. The voice of the juvenile star provides the strongest selling appeal, his songs holding together a casual and secondary narrative of spies and stowaways.

The story, adapted from the novel, "Stowaways in Paradise," by Don Blanding, and the screenplay by Wanda Tuchock, describe the adventures of the homeless Breen and his Hawaiian comrade of similar age, Pua Lina, in stowing away on a Honolulu-bound boat from San Francisco. Discovered, they are befriended by Ned Sparks, member of the ship's orchestra and song writer. Also friendly to the youngsters are Irvin S. Cobb, in the part of the ship's captain, and Warren Hull, who plays the naval commander on a secret mission to the islands around which the spy sequences revolve.

In Honolulu, the two boys jump ship and eventually make their way to the home of Pua's aunt, where, with Sparks, who has missed his boat, they are sheltered from the police. Here the youngsters stumble upon the hidden rendezvous of the spy ring and when the inevitable "plans" are stolen from Hull, Bobby leads the Government forces to the spot and aids in the rescue of the papers. As a reward, he is brought back to the States in style, and, homeless no longer, the finale finds him established and assured of a brighter future.

Raymond Paige and his orchestra perform pleasingly during the usual ship's concert and well produced also are native dances and celebrations. Special songs listed are "Hawaii Calls," "Down Where the Trade Winds Blow," both by Harry Owens, and "That's the Hawaiian in Me," by Johnny Noble.

Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Film Measure Gets Approval Of Commons

Bill Now Will Be Sent To House of Lords

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The English Films Bill today was passed by the House of Commons on third reading, and now will go to the House of Lords.

In general, the bill went through as originally planned by the Government, most of the outside amendments having been rejected. The belief that the measure, which will supplant the current Films Act, expiring this year, would take the form originally outlined by Oliver Stanley, was confirmed.

The quota provisions, which were the most controversial, provide that the exhibitors' quota shall be 15 per cent for the first year, rising gradually during the 10-year period of the new law to a high of 25 per cent. The distributor's quota will run from 15 per cent in the first year to a final high of 30 per cent. The present distributor quota will expire at the end of March of this year.

The separate quota for short subjects will rise during the term of the "Mad About Music"

[Universal]

The Deanna Durbin who started her career auspiciously in "Three Smart Girls" and took a bounding, lilting step upward in "100 Men and a Girl," makes another prodigious step upward in Universal's "Mad About Music." As the fatherless school girl who picks a parent out of the air, so to speak, Deanna puts on a show for which the star is entitled to all her deserved bows. They will be many.

Fortunate is Miss Durbin in the story for having selected Herbert Marshall to serve as her father. And Universal also has occasion to feel likewise, for this is shrewd casting. Marshall expertly sustains the warming human qualities of the picture's unfolding. It is a bang-up job he does.

The rest of the casting is in keeping. Producer Joe Pasternak and Director Norman Taurog have surrounded the two principals with able craftsmanship personified by the ever-reliable Arthur Treacher, in the main laugh role, and important to the story, a delightful crowd of young boys and girls, the star's schoolmates. Standouts among the youngsters are Marcia Mae Jones, Jackie Moran and Helen Parrish. Gail Patrick and William Frawley carry out their assignments with precision, and, for the trade, Sid Grauman plays himself amusingly in a theatre manager bit. Christian Rub, too, is entitled to a vigorous nod.

The story is an original by Marcella Burke and Frederick Kohner, and the screen play, by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson, moves along on ball bearings.

Briefly, the story centers around a school in Switzerland which Miss Durbin attends. Her mother is a Hollywood glamour-girl who because of her career is convinced by her manager that it would be best to keep under cover the evidence of a 14-year-old daughter. She does not communicate with her daughter, nor can the child admit to this highly-publicised parent.

To maintain the prestige of a fitting family background before her schoolmates, Deanna invents a big-game-hunter father. When she is crowded by skeptical schoolmates, Miss Durbin fastens herself to Marshall, a composer, who comes to the Swiss town with his man, Treacher, for a rest. He gets little rest, but wins a daughter and eventually, a wife, through the laughable and heart-warming involvements created by Miss Durbin.

Weaving through the story are three song numbers by Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson which the star takes in her stride. "I Love to Whistle" is immediately due for widespread attention on the air and otherwise. "Chapel Bells" and "A Serenade to the Stars" are noteworthy, as is Miss Durbin's rendition of "Ave Maria" by Gounod. There is also an enjoyable novelty number by Cappy Barra's harmonica band.

There was a fine air of optimism around the Universal offices after the screening. There should be.

"Mad About Music" will do a whale of a lot of business.

Running time, 96 minutes. "G." Vogel

"Chicago" Is Pittsburgh's Top $10,500

Pittsburgh, Feb. 24.—Business last week kept up the brisk pace it has maintained since the first of the year and even the roadshow engagement of "In Old Chicago" at the Nixon, which did a nice $10,500 in its first week, didn't slow down trade at the regular houses. The Stanley was well out in front again with "True Confession" and Duke Ellington's band, the combination getting around $22,500, while "Victoria the Great," on a double bill with "Beg, Borrow or Steal," helped the Warner to a nice $6,000.

Technicolor Record

Technicolor is marking a record this week with four color features on Broadway. These are "Goldwyn Follies" at the Rivoli, "Tom Sawyer" at the Music Hall, "Gold Is Where You Find It" at the Strand and "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" at the Palace.

Previous commitments for 7,000,000 feet of film to be processed at the Technicolor plant in Hollywood this month have been increased to 7,500,000, the largest in the company's history, says Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus.

"Follies" Has Speedy Start, Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—With the help of a premiere, "Goldwyn Follies" knocked off a top-notch $18,000 for its first week at the Aldine.

Likewise given a fanfare sendoff, "In Old Chicago" took in $16,500 for its first roadshow week at the Erlanger and is set, according to A. R. Boyd, for seven more weeks.

The stage and screen combination at the Earle—"No Time to Marry" and Ted Weems—grossed a good $19,000 and "The Buccaneer" took enough in its second run at the Karlton to warrant another week.

On the other side of the picture were "Yank at Oxford," which got $14,000—good, but more was expected—at the Boyd; "Radio City Revels," which died at the Fox with $10,500, and "Everybody Sing," with a weak $12,000 at the Stanley.

Omaha, Feb. 24.—Omaha's first new theatre in 10 years has just been opened. It is the Muller, a 700-seat neighborhood house, owned and managed by Lawrence Grobeck.

The Muller features the first installation here of hard-of-hearing equipment and a "crying room."

Fr. Ahern Talks on Sale of Novel Films

"There may be gold in them there hills, but there is also gold in telling people the truth about the things they know little about," said the Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S.J., of Boston at the Ampa luncheon yesterday in stressing that there is a market for films dealing with subjects not ordinarily treated by producers.

The luncheon, which was at the International Casinò, was a testimonial to Father Ahern, who had much to do with preparing "Monastery" for the American screen. The attendance was 125, including leaders of the clergy. Father Ahern spoke at length on the film, which will have a New York opening soon. He exhibited a copy of Der Film, German trade publication, which in bold headlines attacked "Monastery" as "a film of hate against Germany" and "Cardinal Mundelein's reply to Hitler." The picture depicts the life of Catholic monks.

Rabbi Asks Supervision

One of the speakers, Dr. Hyman Judah Shachtel, rabbi of the West End Synagogue, pleaded for "higher standards" in films and proposed "supervision at the source by a committee representing the public." Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, director of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, speaking as a Protestant churchman, told of the role of the screen and the church in promoting amity.

Ralph Rolan presided and Jack Alicoate was toastmaster. Among those present were John J. Downing, chairman of the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus; George Hecht, publisher, Parents' Magazine; Dr. Joseph J. Reilly, Hunter College; Rev. Charles J. Deane, vice-president of Fordham University; Mrs. Mary Harden Looram, film chairman, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae; Terry Ramsaye, editor, Motion Picture Herald; F. X. and Maurice Ahern, brothers of Father Ahern; George Kraska of Boston and others.

Warners to Discuss New Cartoon Feature

Whether Leon Schlesinger, cartoon producer for Warners, will make a feature-length cartoon, on the basis of the appeal of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," will be decided in coast conferences with company executives.

Schlesinger, who returned Wednesday night from a South American cruise, said yesterday that he favors the idea, and further discussions will be held when he gets to the coast, March 3. He will discuss the matter with H. M. and Jack L. Warner and Norman H. Moray, short subjects sales manager. Schlesinger estimates the cost of such a feature at $700,000.

The company's short subjects program for next season will be mapped in studio conferences by the Warners, Hal Wallis and Moray, who is expected on the coast March 7. Moray is on a tour of key cities en route west, conferring with branch managers and making a survey of exhibitor preferences on shorts. He may prolong his field trip and arrive on the coast about March 15.

While details remain to be set, a substantial increase in the number of patriotic short subjects is anticipated for 1938-'39.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 48
(20th Century-Fox)

Six clips of varying appeal are strung together under a general heading of "Around the World with Movietone," and the narrators attempt to give the whole a semblance of continuity. The idea may be good, but the current issue does not prove that it enhances interest.

Included in this division are Australia's 150th anniversary celebration; Britain's $10,000,000 base recently opened at Singapore; machine gun practice and tank maneuvers by British forces in the desert near Suez; H. M. S. Walrus stranded by a storm on the English shore; a mammoth elephant modeling for child artists at Miami, and, finally, an aerial view of New York's skyscrapers. The latter is something even for New Yorkers to see. The mid-winter regatta at Los Angeles, showing some fast sailing and fine photography; fast and furious socking at the Golden Gloves tournament, and a polo match in California make up the sports clips. Lew Lehr is caught being inducted into the Saints' & Sinners' Club and, later, in his usual stint becomes confused over a "duck census" at Miami. Ambassadors Kennedy and Biddle, voiceless, are shown prior to sailing abroad, and Paul V. McNutt is caught on arrival from the Philippines. Vyvyan Donner and Helen Claire do a good job explaining how "junk jewelry" is worn. The ladies will like this. Running time, 9 mins. F.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 246
(M-G-M)

An "expose" of the dope traffic gets considerable footage in this release. While not a topical news break, it leads in interest. The vendor's tricks of the trade and the ingenious devices by which he peddles the narcotics are clearly demonstrated. The clip ends with an appeal for public support, by Major Williams of the Government's narcotics bureau in New York. This is out of the routine and offers selling possibilities to exhibitors.

The "sporting page" has fast action in the Golden Gloves fight bouts at Madison Square Garden, spills in skiing at Lake Placid and shots of film stars at the Santa Anita Derby. The personalities department includes the sailing of Ambassadors Joseph P. Kennedy and Anthony J. Biddle, Jr., and the King of Sweden displaying fine prowess in a tennis set, upholding his title as "the grand old man of the courts." There are also air shots of Britain's naval base at Singapore and bathing cuties counting ducks at Lost Lake, Miami.

Issue No. 59
(Paramount)

If all the newsreels are going to use the same negative they should call a meeting of their commentators. One reel this week shows workmen inspecting the Coliseum at Rome and brushing off the stone faces on the Arch of Constantine and calls it the usual inspection of historic monuments. In Paramount's showing of the same subject Gabriel Heatter gives a lugubrious discussion of Hitler's forthcoming visit to Mussolini and makes an oratorical effort to create an international incident out of the fact that a flock of pigeons has been roosting on an archway.

In a lighter vein socialites learn to ski at North Conway, N. H., and Joseph P. Kennedy demonstrates he knows about film technique as he starts to board a ship for England.

Snow on a fruit tree in Texas is made properly catastrophic by the commentator, and the launching of the Louis Pasteur, French liner, gets a fine vocal sendoff.

Senators Nye, Ellender and Bone, Representative Maverick, Dr. Mann, an exiled German author, and William Dodd, former German ambassador, discuss international relations.

The two most entertaining clips are Shirley Foster, a little girl, skating at Rockefeller Center, and the amateur boxing bouts at Madison Square Garden. Running time, 9 mins. J.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 63
(RKO)

Paul V. McNutt is photographed surrounded by a crowd of reporters with note paper and pencils in hand. He screens like a matinee idol, but all he has to say is that he is not "a candidate for any office." This is good for a laugh.

The three principal action shots include tests of chemical warfare apparatus at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., the skating of eight-year-old Shirley Foster at Rockefeller Center, and the amateur boxers in the Golden Gloves Tournament. Those amateurs put on more exciting fights than do the professionals.

The other five clips are interesting but not particularly exciting. One shows the re-enactment of the raising of the first British flag in Australia, the results of a landslide at Rio de Janeiro, a train wreck at Worth, Ill., and honors being paid Jack Knight, one of the original air mail flyers. Running time, 9 mins. J.

Universal Newsreel
No. 644
(Universal)

There are 14 events in this reel, which is something of a record in the quantity of material that generally goes into an issue. A regular release usually averages eight or nine events. The makeup has a number of timely news events. The coverage given each sequence is adequate and the narration by Graham McNamee is lively and to the point.

The lead offers scenes of a train wreck at Worth, Ill. It is followed by a dog sled race in Quebec, bathing girls taking a wild duck census at Miami for sweet publicity, tea tasters doing their noisy tasting, Trubee Davison exhibiting the largest star ruby in the world at the American Museum of Natural History, the havoc caused by a sleet storm in Ohio, Joseph P. Kennedy and Anthony Biddle sailing on the Manhattan, the winner of the Old Gold cigarette contest the former Empress of Ethiopia embarking at Calais for Palestine, an upstate New York cat on its 23rd birthday, spring hat fashions cleverly presented with a dissolve effect and th finals of the Golden Gloves boxin matches, an exciting bit.

The varied material should hol audience attention.

;anada Houses Not Helped by Ausic Tax Law

Toronto, Feb. 24.—Theatre companies and exhibitors are disappointed the Dominion Parliament did not ovide relief for the film business in e statute curbing the privileges of e Canadian Performing Rights Soety, Ltd., which was adopted withit a dissenting vote and amid genal applause in the House of Combns yesterday.

The measure, sponsored by W. K. ling, prohibits the society from colcting its annual fee from restaurants, tels, stores and other minor places business for the use of radio or amophone instruments in such prems, whether public or not. Further, e society cannot now collect a fee the use of music in skating rinks sport structures, but the situation th respect to theatres has been left before, which means that the soty can impose a levy on a seat basis ch year for stage or screen music.

The Esling act also requires the ciety to register or list all of the 00,000 musical works on which it s claimed copyright control and bids the society to collect a perming rights fee for any composition listed. This long has been a sore nt in the musical royalty situation the Dominion because the society viously had listed only such comitions as it desired, other works ng "claimed" with respect to nership. The Canadian Government rges a fee of $2 for the registra1 of copyright on each musical comition and the sum involved for the cial registration of all rights by society would reach a huge total.

Phonograph Discs Excluded

)f interest to theatre owners is that new act disallows the claim of the ety to collect royalty on phonoph records on the ground that mu1 copyright for discs has been sat-d by the manufacturers of records re the marketing of the product. s is exactly the argument of the tre men—that the imposition of erforming rights fee is a duplicaof the score charge paid by extors and that film producers had music royalty in the making of s. The theatres will have to cone to pay the impost to the Perning Rights Society unless the legion is amended before the close of present session of Parliament.

eputations representing theatre cirand independent exhibitors aped last December before the Ap Board of the Dominion Govern to protest against the schedule ees for 1938 filed by the society, here was no result for the theatre ness.

"Housemaster"

(Associated British)

London, Feb. 24.—This quiet but very human adaptation of Ian Hay's play is as placid and as sentimental as the country of its inspiration, and although it boasts an American star in Otto Kruger, it is the pure dramatic metal of England. A sympathetic study in character, with a background of tradition and ivy clad antiquity, it is, despite the excellence of its supporting portrayals, and alternately robust and sinister movements of its background, a one-man film with its backbone a character to whom one warms and in whom one believes.

Kruger's role as the aging and loyal housemaster who finds himself in conflict with his deliberate dehumanized headmaster (a gem of characterization this by an English actor, Kynaston Reeves) leads him through a battle for his boy's rather than his own good name, kindles briefly a smouldering romance of yesterday, but brings him to the top at last as head of his beloved school. It is a refreshing creation.

There are, of course, details of public school life which provide laughs and a sob or two, athletic form masters and impulsive boys, and a background of old stone and stained glass. There is Phillips Holmes as a bespectacled science master and some charming girls, notably Diana Churchill and an engaging youngster, Rosamond Barnes. There is polish in production and a nicely knit script. It should please the better class American audience even if it does not thrill them.

Running time, 95 minutes. "G." Flanagan

"Port of Missing Girls"

(Monogram)

The innocent fugitive from justice theme is again offered in "Port of Missing Girls." It is standard melodrama and probably will find a place in subsequent runs and on double bills. The featured players, Harry Carey, Judith Allen, Milburn Stone, Betty Compson and Jane Jones do their best with uninspiring roles and an unconvincing story. The production, atmosphere and color of the yarn will make fairly good exploitation material with which to sell it.

Miss Allen plays a night club singer who is implicated in a murder. She hides on Harry Carey's freight ship and is discovered later, when the vessel is at sea. Her story convinces Captain Carey and Wireless Operator Stone and the pair agree to help her. Arriving at an Oriental port, Miss Allen is placed in the care of Jane Jones. Her beauty attracts William Costello, the villain of the piece. In order to insure her safety Carey agrees to take Costello, a batch of native deck passengers and a cargo of arms and ammunition to Amoy. En route Costello and his gang try to storm the ship, but Carey is informed by Miss Allen in time and beats them at their game. Miss Allen, however, must return to the States. She embarks on Carey's ship and en route word comes clearing her of any connection with the killing, which, of course, leaves her free to complete her romance with Stone.

Karl Brown directed. The supporting cast includes Matty Fain, George Cleveland, Sandra Kortina and Lyle Moraine.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"The Sneezing Weasel"

(Vitaphone)

The reliable ingredients of barnyard cartoon comedy are present in this one. The action concerns a family of chickens terrorized by a weasel, and their ultimate disposal of the would-be assassin. The film is in Technicolor and should have an all-around pleasant reception. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"In the Swim"

(RKO)

Fencing and high diving, always dependable for audience attention, are featured in this exhibition by Olympic champions, and others as skilled, in various Florida scenic spots. Underwater camera shots catching the divers as they finish their dives, add further interest. Aquaplane riding furnishes a thrill finish. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 45"

(Universal)

Here is another geographically well-scattered assortment of oddities that entertainingly lend themselves to popular attention. The audience will have little difficulty in becoming intersted in scenes of the manufacture of "break-proof" eyeglass lenses, an ostrich feather "plantation," and girl butchers at work in their father's store, among others. The comment is enlightening although some of the gags are painful. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Down on the Barn"

(Mentone-Universal)

Save for its location in a typical country barn, this is just another routine two-reel musical film. Such reliable entertainment as eccentric dancing, a hill-billy orchestra, a French songstress and the inanities of Ernie Hare and Billy Jones will manage to entertain in a lesser degree. Running time, 17 mins. "G."

Hint CBC May Confine Work To Regulation

policy of the CBC in placing restrictions on socalled local studios.

By limiting its actual broadcasting features and the discarding of plans for the erection of further costly high powered stations, the corporation would not require a higher license fee from radio owners nor would it be necessary to draw upon the public treasury for "loans" of a half a million dollars or more.

The campaign against the increased fee and the importation of commercial network programs from the United States has been sponsored largely by the Danforth Businessmen's Association of Toronto, which took a ballot poll through the medium of coupons, the result being an overwhelming total of votes against the fee increase and also opposing the continuance of the broadcasting corporation in its present form. The ballots have been presented to the Government.

Parliament has authorized an investigation into the broadcasting situation in the Dominion when private radio station operators, radio manufacturers, national advertisers, newspaper publishers and others will be given an opportunity to register their views and complaints, after which the authorities are expected to reorganize the whole broadcasting setup.

Plea for High Court Ruling Refused CBC

Montreal, Feb. 24.—The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. today was refused permission to go to the Supreme Court of Canada to establish the fact that it is a Government department rather than a separate company. The corporation refused on the grounds that as a Government department its employes were exempt from having their salaries seized.

Judgments in both Superior Court and the Court of Appeals had previously gone against the corporation.

Coast Leaders Pay a Tribute To L. B. Mayer

Jack L. Warner. Schenck, presiding, introduced George Jessel, Hollywood's favorite M of C, who presented Archbishop John J. Cantwell of the Diocese of Los Angeles. He was followed by Gov. Frank F. Merriam of California, who said of the guest of honor:

"You—his associates—know him as a genius who has already achieved, while comparatively a young man, a shining and permanent place in the history of the motion picture world. You are here, as I am, to pay spontaneous tribute to that genius, but I know him not only as a thoughtful and kindly friend and a wise and far-seeing counsellor, I have likewise encountered him as a public spirited American whose faith and courage and devotion have been dedicated generously and energetically to the welfare of his country, his state and his community. We know he possesses so wide a range of capabilities, and his capacity for hard work is so remarkably developed that he can direct his energies and his attention tirelessly to all phases of his own complex business, and at the same time maintain a keen and compelling interest in practically every aspect of national, state and local public affairs. We are proud of the fact that Louis B. Mayer is known among us and throughout the nation as one of California's truly great citizens. He is a tower of strength to all of us in time of need."

Hays Stresses Service

Will H. Hays, president of the M.P.P.D.A., parent organization of the A.M.P.P., spoke in intimate, glowing terms of Mayer's untiring service during the most trying period in the history of the organization.

Cecil B. DeMille dipped back into his long career as producer for anecdotes and incidents, bringing out sidelights on Mayer's professional genius and faculty.

Mayer closed with an address of response deprecating the praises heaped upon him but expressing manifestly deep gratitude.

Outstanding on the entertainment program was the singing of the "Italian Street Song," one of Mayer's favorite numbers, by Jeanette MacDonald. Allan Jones, Edgar Bergen, Bob Burns and others contributed their diversified talents to the lighter side of the exercises with Edward Ward in charge of the orchestral accompaniment.

Dignitaries Present

Among city and state officials present were: Gov. Frank F. Merriam, U. S. District Judge Harry A. Hollister, U. S. District Attorney Ben Harrison, Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco, Lieut. Gov. The statement said that depreciation and amortization of fixed assets for the period amounted to $370,286 and that state and federal taxes for the year 1937 amounted to $234,509.

United Amusements 1937 Net $246,125

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—United Amusements Corp., Ltd., subsidiary of Famous Players Canadian Corp., has reported net earnings of $246,125 for the calendar year 1937, before depreciation charge, as compared with $254,268 for the previous year. Net profit was figured at $1.24 on each of the 80,629 outstanding shares, as compared with $1.33 for 1936.

An interesting revelation in the annual statement just released was that no less than 22 per cent of gross receipts during 1937 were absorbed by taxes and licenses paid to municipal, provincial and Federal Governments. The balance sheet showed current assets of $307,524 against liabilities of $142,570. United Amusements, which operates a circuit of 26 theatres in the Montreal territory acquired a substantial cash interest in the six theatres of Greater Montreal owned by Confederation Amusements, Ltd. A new theatre, the Savoy, will be opened within a few weeks at Verdun, which is a short distance from Montreal.

eliminate the two per cent gross income utility tax.

Transportation lines of both the trucking and passenger types are understood to have made strong efforts to block continuance of the impost.

At the same time, the Assembly Taxation Committee reported favorably all of Governor Lehman's taxation measures except the utility levy, on which there may be some debate in the House before passage.

The four per cent gas tax was put over until Monday night's calendar in the Senate to give Democrats a chance to muster the necessary 26 votes for this controversial issue.

Asks Operator Licenses

RICHMOND, Feb. 24.—Senator A. L. Bivens of Newport News today introduced into the Virginia legislature a bill requiring projectionists to be licensed, and to undergo examination before a board.

law from five to 15 per cent for exhibitors and from 10 to 20 per cent for distributors. The feature quota for both distributors and exhibitors under the current law is 20 per cent. The present exhibitors' quota will expire Sept. 30, 1938. The new law is expected to go into effect April 1, 1940.

The first amendment today proposed by Capt. Euan Wallace, Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Trade, who appeared in place of Stanley, who is ill, was aimed to exclude Canadian, Indian and Australian films from the quota. To this the House of Commons agreed. The clause has the effect of concentrating British quota film production within the United Kingdom.

The labor motion to permit the operation of booking combines was withdrawn on the Government assurance that the matter would be referred to the Films Council later.

Amendments Withdrawn

Opposition efforts to increase the distributor quota were averted and amendments proposed by Captain Evans, Conservative, after a lengthy discussion, finally were withdrawn. Wallace pointed out that the bill followed the suggestions of the Moyne Committee, which issued its report and recommendations on new film legislation last year.

Wallace declared the American market could be attained only by large scale films, and said he was unwilling to overburden the exhibitors. That concluded the report stage, and the bill, as finally amended, was read formally for the third time.

Wallace pleaded the cause of the bill, which is aimed at assisting the industry to produce films for the world market, with the United States its especial aim. He declared, "We believe we have done our best, and the matter ultimately is up to the industry itself." Various speakers expressed the need for spreading the English viewpoint via the screen.

Exhibitor interests are watching the progress of the measure, and have organized resistance to any attempt to increase the quota schedules. The House of Lords is expected to act on the measure next week.

With respect to the latter, the employer may make a "fair estimate" of all royalty payments that will ultimately be paid with respect to services performed during the year and, if it calculates less than is actually paid, the tax on additional payments will be subject to interest charges; if overcomputed, a claim for credit or refund may be filed.

Studio Unions Request Work Be Staggered

IATSE Proposes Plan to Cover Slack Period

Hollywood, Feb. 25.—On the heels of drastic retrenchment in film production today came a move for staggering the work of studio technicians by limiting working time to four days per week per man. The proposal comes from the I. A. T. S. E. It would, in addition to limiting work, reduce considerably the studio preferential lists.

Harold V. Smith, international representative of the I. A. T. S. E. in charge of the local offices during temporary absence of Harlan Holmden, proposed in a letter to Pat Casey, producer labor contact man, that the procedure be instituted immediately "in an effort to bridge the present low production period." The move will affect approximately 12,000 I. A. T. S. E. members and may possibly be used by producers for crafts outside of the alliance, with the exception of talent. Studio managers at a meeting

The net represents a profit of eight per cent on gross income of $112,639,497.78, up in dollar volume by 11.3 per cent from the 1936 figure of $101,186,309.90. Opening costs increased 8.4 per cent. The net profit increase

Film Bill Is Read In House of Lords

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, Feb. 25.—The Films Bill, which was passed on third reading by the House of Commons yesterday, went to the House of Lords today where it was formally read.

It is expected that the second reading of the measure, and the debate on it, will take place in the upper chamber on next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Appeals have been made to the Government by the Premier of New South Wales in Australia to reconsider the clause, inserted in the measure virtually at the last moment by Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, that films designed for quota eligibility must be produced in the United Kingdom. The clause has the effect of banning for quota purposes all films produced in the British Dominions of India, Canada or Australia.

Meanwhile, the Warner studios at Teddington will resume production on March 28, according to studio officials.

"Follies" Zooms to $40,000 at Rivoli

Prosperity was in evidence at the Rivoli this week, "The Goldwyn Follies" zooming the theatre's gross to $40,000 for its initial week, ending last night. The film is set for two more weeks.

"Gold Is Where You Find It," in its second week at the Strand, garnered $16,400, as compared with the first week's $28,000. The second week of "The Girl Was Young" at the Criterion took $9,500. The first week's gross was $13,500. "Dangerous to Know" will start at the Criterion March 3, following the completion of the current run of "She Married an Artist."

Further Delay On RKO to Be Asked Monday

Creditors Not Agreed on Proposed Amendments

A further postponement of hearings on the RKO reorganization plan appeared inevitable yesterday following a meeting of representatives of some of the company's largest creditor groups at which no agreement on proposed amendments to the reorganization plan was achieved.

A hearing on the plan is scheduled for Monday before Federal Judge William Bondy. It is believed that attorneys for Atlas Corp., proponent of the plan, will again petition the court for a further adjournment of the hearing at that time. Indications are, however, that only a short postponement will be asked in order to provide the creditors time in which to complete their study of the possibilities of devising amendments to the plan which would expedite the reorganization. Inasmuch as the postponement involves an effort to hasten the reorganization of RKO it is not believed likely that serious objections will be advanced by either the court or smaller creditors.

The basic amendments to the plan which have been considered include

"Sally, Irene and Mary"

(20th Century-Fox)

Light and lively musical fare, "Sally, Irene and Mary," which, incidentally, was merely suggested by the original stage musical of that name, is tuneful, popular screen material, which should find a wide audience.

The film is handsomely mounted and contains a cast of names which should serve a useful box-office purpose. Alice Faye, who is rapidly becoming 20th Century-Fox musical lead, fills the top spot, more than satisfactorily assisted by Fred Allen, known to radio, who turns in a neat performance. Other assistance is rendered by Tony Martin, who is a personable singer of good voice; Gregory Ratoff, who is his usually engaging self; Jimmy Durante; Joan Davis and Marjorie Weaver, who are the "Irene and Mary" to Miss Faye's "Sally," and Louise Hovick, who wears clothes attractively.

William Seiter directed for pace and laughs, and succeeded for the most part. The screenplay of Jack Yellen and Harry Tugend, from an original by Karl Tunberg and Don Ettlinger, is simple enough and ingenious enough to keep out of the way of the music and the comedy, while a handful of new tunes by Bullock and Spina, Gordon and Revel and Raymond Scott appear to strike the bell for a fair "hit" average.

Sally, Irene and Mary are a trio of manicurists who have a pining for the musical stage and a manager, Fred Allen. He is long on words and promises, but short on performance. Sally meets and falls in love with Martin, club singer, and Allen promotes a bankroll to back a show because Miss Hovick would like to do something for Martin. But when Sally and Martin indicate their mutual attraction she ducks out until the new roll, Ratoff, arrives, filled will noise and love of Sally. Eventually the show goes on, but only after Sally has promised Ratoff and Martin has promised Miss Hovick. But, with song and dance and general entertainment, Allen fixes everything—with the help of Durante.

The deal was set by Arthur Dreifuss who has returned to F. & M.'s Hollywood studio to get production under way. Neal said the company's plans will be revealed at an "open house" to be held at Caravel's offices in the Heckscher Building next Friday.

Decision Reserved On Time Injunctions

Decision was reserved by Justice Ferdinand Pecora in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday on a motion for a temporary injunction made by the district committee of the National Maritime Union and three members of the crew of the Algic, to restrain Time, Inc., from further exhibition of the March of Time reel which deals with conditions at sea.

The union is suing for $200,000 damages for alleged slander, and the individual plaintiffs ask $50,000 each. It is claimed that the trial of the seamen who are under indictment in the Brooklyn Federal Court for alleged mutiny will be prejudiced by the continued exhibition of the film.

Seeks Judgment Against Metro

Basil Kibalchich, as director of the Russian Symphonic Choir, will ask Justice Samuel I. Rosenman in the N. Y. Supreme Court on Monday to strike out the answer of M-G-M and grant him summary judgment in his $250,000 libel suit. Kibalchich claims that the choir was hired in 1935 to make six choral recordings for use in the picture "Anna Karenina." The six recordings were made but the defendant substituted three others by another choir, which were found more satisfactory.

It is alleged that the screen credit indicated that all six songs heard in the picture were rendered by the plaintiff. He claims slander, disparagement of reputation, unfair competition, piracy and trespass on the use of the organization's name.

Set Local 802 Trial Date

March 7 was set yesterday as the date for trial of the injunction suit brought in the N. Y. Supreme Court by 11 members of Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, against the local to restrain enforcement of a bylaw which prohibits members earning more than $54 weekly from holding more than one job. The plaintiffs contend that the regulation violates the union's constitution. The test suit was brought with the consent of the union.

Files Test on Sale of Rights

Eugene Pauker, agent, filed a test suit against the Federal Government in the U. S. District Court here yesterday to determine whether sale of film rights by foreign authors and publishers residing abroad are subject to United States income taxes. Pauker seeks the return of $3,600 which he paid under protest.

The petition alleged that he arranged the sale of world film rights on the plays "Hotel Imperial" and "The Light That Failed" by Lajos Biro for $21,500; on the play "Great Love" by Ferenc Molnar for $17,000, and on the play "Silent Knight" by Eugene Heltai for $26,000. He was ordered to retain $3,600 for taxes and he paid under protest. Pauker contends that he acted only as agent and that the contracts were consummated abroad. Biro is said to reside in London, and the others in Budapest.

The Show Goes On

San Francisco, Feb. 25.—Kenneth Udell, manager of the Harvey Amusement Co. McCloud at McCloud Cal., used five skiis to bring his film 25 miles through the snow to his theatre. He used three skiis as a sled for the film and used two himself. The entire journey to Shasta and back to McCloud took 24 hours. He wired the office that he had not been forced to close his theatre.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25. — Mae West opened at the Palace today to record business, breaking the mark held by Eddie Cantor. Today's gross is expected to be $5,000.00 for six shows. Saturday and Sunday Miss West will do seven shows and a gross near $40,000.00 for the week is expected.

Plan Altec Warehouse

A Los Angeles warehouse to serve the western area will be established by Altec Service Corp., making a total of 45 shipping points established throughout the country. More than $100,000 of sound equipment parts and testing equipment will be stocked, the company said.

And Sleepy Fell Asleep

Montreal, Feb. 25.—The crowd of more than 500 persons waiting at the Windsor Station today for the arrival of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" had reason to change the expected chuckles to a wholehearted laugh when the characters arrived.

"Sleepy" took his part too seriously. A small local youngster, wearing a three-foot papier-mâché head of the cartoon character, through which he could barely see, staggered down the platform toward the door into the concourse, missed completely and crashed into the wall.

Palace Manager James O'Loghlin and Henry Moss, publicity man, met the group as they were handed down from the baggage car in which they rode from Westmount, a suburb.

the possibility of reducing the fixed charges of reorganized RKO and revising underwriting provisions for the new company so as to overcome unfavorable market conditions. If there is a prospect of an early agreement among creditors on these matters, it is believed likely that the proponents of the plan will ask the court to return the reorganization plan to Special Master George W. Alger for hearings on the amendments.

Meanwhile, all RKO home office executives have deferred their planned trips to the studio to confer here with Pandro S. Berman, who is scheduled to arrive from the coast early next week. Formal designation of Berman as production head of the company is expected during his conferences here with Leo Spitz, president, and representatives of the Irving Trust Co., RKO trustee. J. R. McDonough, newly elected vice-president, is slated to accompany Berman to the studio on the conclusion of the conferences here.

sources here, however, say the difficulty arose between the sponsor and the studio over production of the program, with the studio wanting the entire control of the program without sponsor strings.

Another reported sore spot was the agency's action in bringing in outside film talent for the program, instead of using Warner players exclusively.

Bob Taplinger, Warner studio publicity director and coordinator between the agency and studio, said yesterday that the studio program idea will lie dormant at present, but that a deal would be made with another sponsor "if the studio is given control of the show."

Labor Acute Worry For Mexican Trade

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 27.—If much more labor trouble, particularly the demands of local film workers' unions, beset them, many Mexican producers and independent distributors will be driven out of business, trade circles here have indicated. Demands for increases in wages, which are already at a high level for this class of work in this city, and augmented personnel, have become a plague for this branch of the industry, it is said. Some wage demands are so high that they call for jumping weekly pay of an employe receiving from $14 to $16.80 to $36.65. Several employers have granted wage increases of nearly as much as these figures, for the sake of peace. But it is obvious that they cannot afford to continue making such liberal concessions.

Another thorn is the union's demand for larger staffs. Higher pay and more workers is a very heavy burden for small members of the industry,

Delay in RKO Plan Affects Bondholders

Continued delay in the reorganization of RKO again brings to the fore the question of whether or not the company's $11,600,000 of debentures outstanding will continue to have a secured position following the final retirement of the $6,000,000 prior issue of secured gold notes, reorganization principals pointed out on Saturday.

The final $50,000 payment on the gold notes held by the Bank of America is due May 1. Virtually all of RKO's assets are pledged to secure the gold notes. The $11,600,000 of debentures have a second lien on the

Myers Going West to Aid Dakota Fight

Fargo Hearing Put Over Until March 8

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 27.—Abram F. Myers, Allied States board chairman, is expected here this week to aid the North Dakota attorney general and Allied resident attorneys in this area with final preparations for the defense of the North Dakota affiliated theatre "divorcement" law against the temporary injunction petitioned by Paramount and its theatre operating affiliates here.

A hearing on the injunction action scheduled for March 1 before a Federal statutory court at Fargo has been postponed to March 8 at the request of Allied and North Dakota attorneys upon the agreement that the effective date of the law also be postponed one week, from March 15 to March 22.

Paramount and its theatre affiliates affected by the North Dakota statute, the Minnesota and American Amusement companies, have petitioned the temporary injunction for the purpose of restraining North Dakota from enforcing the law against Paramount theatres in the state until the company's basic action to determine the constitutionality of the state law has been tried on its merits. This action, already filed, is expected to go to trial in about six weeks.

Will Need 500 'Snow White' Prints for Domestic Runs

Holdovers on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and the consequent shortage of prints for quick circulation will result in a total of 500 prints to be made for United States distribution, it was said by a Walt Disney spokesman over the weekend. This is said to be a record order, 260 being the usual number of prints on a film for domestic distribution. The printing is being done by Technicolor on the coast.

The film will be dubbed in a record number of languages, it was said. Roy Disney, business manager for Walt, is due here this week and plans to leave for Europe March 9 or 11 to make a survey of the extent to which dubbing will be needed. Several foreign versions are already under way at the Disney studios and others are planned, with a worldwide circulation in view. Disney will be abroad several weeks.

The deal on the cartoon feature set by Phil Reisman, RKO foreign head, with the Gaumont British circuit in the British Isles will bring a total rental of more than $500,000. This contract includes a minimum run of 20 weeks at the New Gallery in London, where "Snow White" opened Thursday night. This was the European premiere. A contract calling for a run of this period is said to be unprecedented.

The five-week run of the film at the Music Hall brought a rental revenue to RKO and Disney of $175,000.

Jersey Paper Scores Talk of Film Censor

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Feb. 27.—A political maneuver is seen by the Asbury Park Press in a reported move to establish state film censorship in New Jersey.

"Now they are talking of a state board of censors to decide what motion pictures we may view," the paper says. "Patently, of course, a high-minded zeal for decency on the silver screen is the motivating force behind the movement to censor entertainment. Probably more accurate, however, is the assumption that a group of politicians sees an opportunity to exert a profitable regulatory power over the motion picture industry and its patrons."

same assets while the gold notes are outstanding and unpaid. At present, only $150,000 of the original $6,000,000 issue of secured notes remain unpaid, and these are being retired at the rate of $50,000 monthly. Presumably, the question of whether or not the debentures will be entitled to a secured position after May 1 will have to be determined in the near future.

The question was raised 18 months ago when Irving Trust Co., RKO trustee, petitioned the Federal court for permission to retire the $850,000 of gold notes outstanding at that time on the ground that retirement of the notes would effect an appreciable saving of interest. The principal RKO debenture holders, Atlas Corp. and RCA, opposed the petition at that time and Federal Judge William Bondy deferred action on the trustee's proposal, which is still pending before the court. In the meantime, however, the monthly payments toward the retirement of the notes have continued and the question originally raised by the trustee's petition will again confront the debenture holders when the final payment comes due in about 60 days.

Postponement Plea Likely

The general assumption among reorganization committees when action on the trustee's petition was deferred 18 months ago was that the question of the secured position of the debentures would not arise again, as all indications pointed to completion of the RKO reorganization prior to the due date of the final payment on the gold notes. Obviously, however, this can no longer be viewed as a possibility. A further postponement of the Federal court hearing on the RKO reorganization plan appears likely to be asked by proponents of the plan today. Indications are, therefore, that the RKO trustee will petition the court for instructions on the procedure to be followed in connection with the final payments on the gold notes in the near future.

Pandro S. Berman arrived from Hollywood yesterday for final conferences here with Leo Spitz, RKO president, on the former's scheduled designation as production head of the company. His stay here is expected to be a brief one and, on his return to Hollywood, he will probably be accompanied by J. R. McDonough, newly elected vice-president, and Jules Levy, sales manager, who will confer at the studio with Ned E. Depinet on forthcoming product and new season's plans. Depinet left for the studio over the weekend.

Labor Acute Worry For Mexican Trade

those who only handle from two to 10 pictures a year. The unions demand that every producer or distributor, no matter how small his business, must have the same number of employes and at the same wage rates.

These small operators have sought to remedy the situation by establishing a central distribution service. But the unions are vigorously opposing this proposition. Some small operators plan to propose to American distributors operating in Mexico that they handle their products.

The entire industry here, including Americans, noted with concern the statements in the speech of President Cardenas delivered to the Confederation of Mexican Workers and Farmers, the nation's most powerful labor organization, in which he declared that the Government will continue to favor the workers.

Labor conditions in Mexico at the present time require that all workers shall belong to a union. The Government seeks to cooperate and urges labor elements to forget internal differences and work for the common good.

The unions deny that they are making exorbitant demands upon these producers and distributors, saying that they are merely protecting the interests of their members and are not making a racket of syndicalism. They deny charges that they are coercing the industry into increasing wages to an inordinate extent or that they are trying to overload the employers with workers.

The unions have voted to boycott producers, distributors, exhibitors and players of all pictures that make fun of labor or spoof the proletarian movement.

deeply into the revenue of foreign distributors that some arrangement will have to be made whereby the playtime situation can be better controlled, Hutchinson feels.

There has been a considerable growth in the independent distribution of films made in Mexico and South America which, while sold on low terms, are doing outstanding business, due to the public's increasing support of films with a domestic flavor and in the native language, and this is making the market more difficult for the foreign companies, it was said.

AGRAP Charge to Be Heard March 21

A charge filed some time ago with the National Labor Relation Board by the American Guild of Radio Announcers and Producers, alleging violation of the Wagner Act by WMCA, will come up for hearing before Mrs. Eleanore F. Herrick, regional director of the N. L. R. B. on March 21.

A. G. R. A. P.'s complaint charges that the station management discharged one production man and two announcers, allegedly for their activities in behalf of the announcers' and producers' union. The men were discharged May 14, June 7 and Oct. 4, respectively, 1937.

WMCA signed a contract with the guild June 1, covering announcers and producers employed at the station, on wages, hours and other points. The contract was for six months, expiring Dec. 31, 1937, but according to the guild offices here, the contract is still in effect because of its stipulation that it be considered so until another contract has been effected.

Guild officers here state that a new contract is now in preparation, and may be signed sometime next week. Under no circumstances, however, states the guild, will the charges against the station be dropped, unless the men involved are either reinstated or compensated with back salaries.

Radi

★RADIO GOES TO COLLEGE... published January, 1938 by CBS. We will be glad to mail you this study on request.

oes to College

TURN where we may, investigate whom we will, radio is discovered an intimate and important and active part of daily living!

College investigators, last Spring, at the request of the COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM, studied the radio habits of college students. They found that over 95% of the students listen regularly to radio. Even more interesting is the amount of college-time spent listening to radio. The average male student reports listening 3 hours each day The average woman student listens 2 hours and 52 minutes each day. This is remarkable when you consider what a busy person the undergraduate is! And conclusive evidence, once again, of how well radio reaches everybody: young and old—and class-markets as well as mass-markets.

The complete study* shows that America's million-odd undergraduates are remarkably like everyone else where radio is concerned. They are today's leaders of young people everywhere; tomorrow's leaders in business and society. And radio—without special effort—without extra cost reaches them at the same time it reaches the rest of the country. For everybody likes to listen!

But this is no surprise. It confirms the findings of radio advertisers—and other radio research. (A year ago the CBS study of "THE VERY RICH—AND RADIO" arrived at much the same conclusion as the college-study. Like everybody else, the Very Rich also like to listen—and do!)

Yet, in the cloistered halls of learning we unearthed fresh material on a fine point. Everyone knows a few people who habitually do more than one thing at a time. Such people read while they eat, write while they telephone and—if they're at college—they study while radio-listening. But not all people double-up their activities. If we take the undergraduate as a guide, we find that most people prefer doing one thing at a time. Of the 2,487 college students interviewed, 61.3% stressed the fact that they do not listen to their radios while studying. But there's another simpler way of determining how well people concentrate when they listen to radio. Make a deliberate mistake of any kind on the air. Or make an offer. You will then quickly learn, from billowing bags of mail, just how intently the average listener listens when his radio is tuned-in! And that is a basic reason for radio's brilliant record of success.

RKO Plan Amendments Aim To Hasten Reorganization

Amendments to the RKO plan of reorganization designed to hasten the rehabilitation proceedings are expected to be agreed upon by principal creditors of the company by the end of this week. Hamilton C. Rickaby, attorney for Atlas Corp., proponent of the reorganization plan, told Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday in petitioning a postponement of the scheduled reorganization hearing to March 11.

Rickaby explained that following the anticipated agreement attorneys would require an additional week in which to put the amendments to the reorganization plan in form for submission to the court. The Atlas attorney attributed the need for the proposed amendments to changes in RKO's financial status which have occurred since the plan was first proposed about 18 months ago.

Judge Bondy not only agreed to the further postponement of the reorganization hearing, but took to task a Boston creditor of the company, Nathan Berenson, for entering the sole objection to the adjournment. Judge Bondy pointed out that the favorable report

British Say U. S. Films Caused Loss

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The failure of Hollywood to produce a sufficient number of outstanding pictures during the year is blamed for the fact that English patronage did not increase during the 1937-'38 season, it was declared in the annual report of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, released over the weekend.

The organization expressed confidence that if producers supply good pictures, greater patronage than ever will be attracted. Rentals now stand at a peak level and are endangering the whole structure of the industry, the report declared.

The report contended that the inclusion in the Films Bill of provision for a Films Council, was the result of C. E. A. efforts in complaining to the Board of Trade over the attempt of the distributors to grade films. Elsewhere the report suggested that in the future the Films Council may be of value in settling such trade problems.

The report criticized the overbuilding situation, pointing out that 228 new theatres have been registered with

Sees 20th-Fox '37 Net at $8,500,000

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—A net profit after all charges and taxes of between $8,500,000 and $9,000,000 will be shown by the annual report of 20th Century-Fox, Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, declared here today.

The estimated net would equal, after preferred dividends, between $4 and $4.30 per share on the common stock. The net income for the fiscal year of 1938 of $7,722,955 was equal to $3.55 per common share.

Selznick-U. A. Deal Unchanged: Whitney

The status of Selznick International's negotiations for a new releasing deal with United Artists and for acquisition of the controlling stock ownership in the company in conjunction with Samuel Goldwyn was not altered during John Hay Whitney's ten-day visit here, the Selznick International chairman stated yesterday just prior to his departure for the coast by plane.

Whitney stated that negotiations on both deals were still in progress and would be continued on his return to Hollywood.

"There is nothing further that I can say on either subject at this time," he said.

The deal for acquisition of a controlling interest in United Artists involves the purchase by Selznick International and Goldwyn of the three-fifths stock interest in the company held by Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charles Chaplin.

Miss Pickford told MOTION PICTURE DAILY recently that a deal was "imminent" but that tax problems involved in the transaction loomed as the most important obstacles remaining to be overcome.

ITOA Hits at Neely Measure As 'Headache'

"Not 10 Exhibitors" Are Interested, Is Claim

Expressing the opinion that the Neely-Pettengill bill "will never become a law," the Independent Theatre Owners Association yesterday came out in flat opposition to the proposed anti - block booking legislation.

A statement in The Independent, organ of the association, which was circulated to members yesterday, said: "There is more legislation pointed at the motion picture industry this year than ever before in the history of our business. Added legislation will do nothing more than to add cost and give us headache in a business already overridden with headaches."

The I. T. O. A. believes that "there are not 10 exhibitors in the United States, independent or otherwise, who are interested in block booking" and that every exhibitor "is satisfied to buy pictures more than one or two at a time." With respect to the blind buying features of the bill, the I. T. O. A. believes that exhibitors "want to buy a known quality," but finds the provisions as written impractical.

"Whoever wrote this bill could not

Michel's Testimony Is Ordered in Suit

William C. Michel, executive vice-president of 20th Century-Fox, was ordered to appear on March 4 for an examination before trial in connection with the $50,000 "piracy" suit brought by Grosby George, author, against 20th Century-Fox by Justice Bernard L. Shientag in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. George had asked for an examination of either Frank Underwood, present head of the scenario department, or Joseph C. Shea, former story editor.

George alleges that he submitted his story, "Little Miss Nobody," which was published in the February, 1931, issue of Modern Romances, to Shea, and that it was rejected. Subsequently 20th Century-Fox produced a film of the same name based on an original story by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan. George claims $50,000 for use of the title and also seeks an accounting of the profits.

Paine-Erpi Suit Dated

The $211,743 breach of contract suit brought by John G. Paine, as agent and trustee for approximately 100 music publishers, against Erpi was ordered to trial in April by Federal Judge John C. Knox in the U. S. District Court here yesterday.

At the same time, Judge Knox permitted Homer H. Breland, attorney for Erpi, to withdraw his motion for summary judgment dismissing the complaint.

The publishers claim that certain royalties remain unpaid under a licensing contract with Erpi for the reproduction of their music in films exhibited in foreign countries. Erpi contends that the publishers did not own the international copyright and that nothing is due under the contract.

Anti-Dual Hearing In Chicago Fizzles

asked to comment, declared she "came only to listen." Theatre executives and women's club leaders were present but no one offered to take the stand against duals, and the meeting lasted only three minutes. There was considerable comment to be heard afterwards, but it was unofficial. As a result, the meeting was a victory for those backing double bills. Golden had three doctors present to build a strong case in support of duals. It has been indicated that plans for an ordinance banning duals will be dropped following a meeting of the City Council committee in charge of the matter.

Milwaukee Officials Study Duals' Effect

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 28.—In response to a request from the local Parent Teachers' Association, Mayor Daniel W. Hoan has placed in the hands of Dr. John P. Koehler, Health Commissioner, the task of determining whether double feature programs are causing physical harm to children.

Dr. Koehler has named Dr. Claude S. Beebe, eye specialist, as chairman of a committee to conduct a survey. The Independent Theatres Protective Association of Wisconsin has sent a committee to Chicago to study the proposed ordinance banning duals in that city. The association has indicated it will cooperate with the P.T.A. in its campaign.

Circuits have voiced their opposition to a proposed ordinance prohibiting double features. H. J. Fitzgerald, general manager of Fox-Wisconsin, declared that attempts at single feature policies at the circuit's Downer and Varsity had resulted in decreased business. Both Fitzgerald and Jack Keegan, district manager for Warners, declared that the public demands double features.

Sparks to Test Single Bills

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 28.—The Sparks circuit has started a single feature policy at one theatre and will go to a single feature policy in other theatres later, in an effort to ascertain the wishes of the public in St. Petersburg regarding double feature programs. If it is found that the public does not want double features they will be discontinued. The Roxy will be used to make the first test of the drawing power of single features of the best type.

National Group Plans No Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—"Our organization will act on the matter when it is brought up by a member group," Mrs. J. L. Pettengill, President of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY when queried on the double bill question.

"Oomph," Plus

When Toscanini wants a drum with sufficient "oomph," he gets it. Or need one be told that the maestro gets anything he wants?

The other afternoon, during a rehearsal of the NBC Symphony Orchestra, Toscanini decided that the drum in use did not roar sufficiently loud. NBC fervently searched New York for a drum big enough to please the maestro but such a one could not be found. Then a heroic-minded NBC official recalled the drum owned by Chicago University and used at football games. It is now rolling New York-ward aboard a special car. It is eight by four feet in size and, reputedly, can roar as loud as Toscanini.

The new drum will be used at the Carnegie Hall concert Friday night.

have been a motion picture exhibitor," the statement reads. "Picture the proposition of a film salesman sitting down and, to quote the exact language of the bill, telling the exhibitor as follows: 'We are selling you a group of pictures and the following are the stories, incidents and scenes which are to be depicted. The dialogue depicting vice, crime and sexual passion is contained in the following statement,' and then he hands the exhibitor a statement. What a lot of poppycock, what a lot of ridiculous nonsense.

"The film business and the sales methods today are bad enough; picture what would happen where the individual exhibitor should try to analyze for himself whether he wanted to buy a picture based on dialogue, etc., as mentioned above. Sure, we are in favor of the elimination of blind buying. We would like to know the stars and the directors and the authors of the pictures we are buying, but we sincerely believe that this is an industry problem and has no place in legislative halls. . . .

A. F. Myers Criticised

"But not knowing how much product to count on is like building a swimming pool without knowing whether or not there is water enough to fill it. Under the Neely-Pettengill bill the cost of sales to exhibitors would mount to terrific heights and would make the cost of all film to exhibitors prohibitive."

The I. T. O. A. editorial says that "if we could get rid of A. F. Myers, we could work out harmoniously within the industry the problems that are so necessary to be worked out." The New York group intends to hold a trade practice conference, regardless of Allied States' unwillingness to participate, with the M. P. T. O. Several Conditions Imposed Operation under licenses would be subject to conditions, including a requirement that officers be stockholders, and that no bonus or commission in addition to salary will be paid to any officer or director except after a stockholders' meeting and vote. Adoption of monopolistic practices or violation of any of the conditions set forth by the Trade Commission would be cause for revocation of license.

the C. E. A., but the belief was expressed that the building wave is waning.

Regarding the Films Bill, the report expressed gratification at the inclusion of the clause requiring a viewing board on quota eligibility. The report expressed regret at the lack of unity current in the industry today, particularly within the exhibitors' own camp. Citing the new labor policy, the report urged that members settle their own problems and set up a conciliation board.

Kenneth A. Nyman of the London Branch will become president of the C. E. A. on March 8.

Lords to Seek Film Council Substitute

London, Feb. 28.—Members of the House of Lords with labor leanings are expected to introduce a motion in the upper chamber of Parliament seeking to substitute a Films Commission for the Films Council in the Films Bill, which has been passed by the House of Commons.

The Films Council provision is incorporated in the measure as it now stands. It is anticipated also that the same members of the House of Lords will seek amendments providing for additional safeguards for labor with respect to fair wages. The House of Lords is expected to receive the measure for second reading on Thursday, with the committee report stage to follow within a few days thereafter.

Crick, a native of Australia, joined the company in Sydney in 1919, about two years later becoming managing director. His future plans are not known here.

Edward A. Lomba, formerly managing director in Spain and later central European assistant head, has taken over the duties formerly supervised by Hake at the home office.

Boston, Feb. 24.—This year's two film censorship bills should reach the public hearing stage this week. Joint consideration before committee was postponed last Wednesday. RKO Plan Amendments Aim To Hasten Reorganization on RKO reorganization plan submitted to the Federal court last fall by Special Master George W. Alger was based upon RKO's earnings for 1935, 1936, and the first half of 1937, and included the supposition that the company's earnings would continue at the same rate of improvement as had been recorded during 1935 and 1936.

The court pointed out, however, that there had been a "material change" since Alger's report had been submitted, and that the RKO financial picture now was such as to completely invalidate the special master's report insofar as the feasibility of the reorganization plan in its original form is concerned.

RKO's 1936 net earnings amounted to $2,514,734. The net for 1937 is estimated at approximately $1,900,000, most of which was earned during the first half of the year, with the exception of theatre earnings, which continued on a fairly even level throughout last year.

"If the creditors could not agree on a new plan now," Judge Bondy observed, "we would have to liquidate the business."

Cites Need of Amendments

"We don't need an entirely new plan," Rickaby interposed, "merely some amendments to the present plan and considerable progress has been made on these already."

The basic amendments being sought by the creditor groups include a reduction of the fixed charges to be met by the new company under the capitalization and interest and dividend charges set up in the original plan and revision of the underwriting terms for a new $1,600,000 stock issue to increase the attractiveness of the investment in view of prevailing market conditions.

Replying to Berenson's protest against a further delay in the reorganization hearings Judge Bondy exclaimed: "It is inconceivable for anyone who has the interest of this reorganization at heart to oppose an adjournment of this kind."

Joe Goetz Is Reelected

Cincinnati, Feb. 28.—Joe Goetz, manager of the RKO Paramount, and founder of the Cincinnati Bookers' Club, said to be the only organization of its kind in the country, was reelected president for the third consecutive year at the annual meeting last week. The club will hold its second annual dance and frolic at the Hotel Alms April 19, according to Charles Weinberg, chairman of the entertainment committee.

It looks finally as if James Hood MacFarland is to show a profit on his 105-acre farm at Red Bank, N. J. The operations themselves are in the red, the agricultural situation being what it is. But Uncle Sam has promised to pay MacFarland $100 on account of soil conservation and the state of New Jersey, plus the Federal Government, owes him $125 for a condemned cow. Now all MacFarland has to do is to collect.

Republic's Studio Changes Complete

Hollywood, Feb. 28.—Realignment in the duties of the executive personnel at the Republic studios on the coast has been completed, with Moe J. Siegel, president of Republic Productions, taking on the duties and title of managing director of the producing company, in complete executive charge of the studio.

Moe Siegel will now have less to do with active production, and Sol C. Siegel is moved up to the post of producer of all features. Charles E. Ford completes the executive producer roster, stepping into Sol Siegel's old spot as producer of all westerns and serials. Republic has about 40 features, 24 westerns and four serials scheduled for 1938-'39 production.

The changes were announced with the arrival on the coast of Moe Siegel and Ford from New York, following conferences with H. J. Yates. All associate producers and producer-directors will be answerable to Sol Siegel and Ford.

Preparing "Internes"

Hollywood, Feb. 28.—Reaction to "Prison Nurse" has impelled Republic to advance production of "Internes Don't Tell," based on the novel, "The Interne." Martin Van Laas is preparing the adaptation. The film has been stepped up in the release schedule.

20th-Fox Selling Its New Series of Shorts

Twentieth Century-Fox sales staffs are already selling the new season's shorts program, along with 1938-'39 features, although production on the shorts will not begin until summer. The present releasing contract with Educational will terminate July 31.

While plans will not be officially announced until the company's sales conference in Kansas City, April 1 and 2, it is known that 20th Century-Fox will make 52 one-reelers to be released on the basis of one a week. There will be series featuring Lowell Thomas, Ed Thorgerson and Lew Lehr. No titles are scheduled in contracts.

A period of two years will be required for liquidation of all Educational shorts accounts served through 20th Century-Fox, but no Educational releases will be set beyond the present season.

Conferences looking to the designation of Pandro S. Berman as head of the RKO studio are expected to be concluded by the end of the week, a high company official stated yesterday. The conferences have been proceeding daily and considerable progress has been made already, it was said.

Also involved in the deliberations under way is an initial assignment for J. R. McDonough, newly elected vice-president of RKO Radio Pictures, with present indications pointing to a post as financial liaison between home office and studio. McDonough's studio assignment will not be a permanent one, however, and his future work will involve establishing headquarters here as well as in Hollywood, it was learned.

Circuit Deals on "Snow" Are Closed

National Theatres yesterday closed a deal with RKO on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" at 35 per cent of the gross. A national deal was also set with the Warner circuit on substantially the same terms. The terms asked by the distributor called for a higher figure and negotiations resulted in a compromise.

RKO announced that these contracts "represent in gross rentals one of the most important single feature deals in the history of the industry." A contract with Lucas & Jenkins in Atlanta also was closed yesterday, it is understood. With major deals consummated, selling on the film is now opened for the rest of the country.

Circuit contracts closed so far provide for the picture to be single featured and admission price increases in Washington, March 1.—Investigations of operations in the film industry which have been under way for the past year or more are nearing completion and may result in the initiation of a number of anti-trust prosecutions against the major distributors, it was learned today.

Field agents of the Department of Justice are said to have visited every exchange territory in the country to look into charges filed by independent exhibitors against block booking practices and the alleged inability of independents to secure first class product because of producer-distributor theatre ownership.

Film Houses Target Of Managers' Union

Work Increase To Be Problem At Union Meet

Wages to Be Secondary At IA-Studio Talks

Methods of spreading and increasing employment of studio union members looms as the most important subject on the agenda when producers and heads of the international labor unions convene here late this month for their annual wage and hour negotiations under the five-year basic agreement.

For the first time in years wage increases loom as a secondary bargaining issue for the negotiations. The approximate 20,000 members of the unions included in the basic agreement won 10 per cent increases in 1936 and 1937. With studio labor costs near their all-time peak and with theatre grosses in a decline, union leaders this year avowedly are more interested in measures for spreading employment than in bargaining for sweeping wage increases.

The I. A. T. S. E. already has put forward its proposal for a four-day week to spread studio employment and the American Federation of Musicians has been studying means of increasing studio employment of musi-

Chicago Dual Bill Fight in a Muddle

CHICAGO, March 1.—Members of the City Council, local club women and exhibitors here were in a quandary today as a result of yesterday's hearings on the double bill situation, which was a dismal failure. The next move is up to the council committee which was named to investigate the duals problem, and if there are any plans for the introduction of an ordinance designed to end duals, it probably will be revealed when that group makes its report.

The withdrawal of Parent-Teacher Association support from exhibitors who are opposed to duals was a serious blow. Mrs. Louis Perlman, organizer of the "All Chicago Mothers' Club," designed to fight duals, was charged by several persons attending yesterday's hearing with being a paid representative of an independent producers' group. The charge was denied later. The indications are that the dual bill battle here will be relegated to the background, at least until a new method of combating the practice is devised.

HELD OVER 2nd BIG WEEK!

Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 49

(20th Century-Fox)

Expert handling of feature material produces such diverting results for this release that the scarcity of spot news of consequence, if noted at all, is no cause for disappointment.

On the feature side, and all good of their kind, are the rescue by a ski squad of a Wyoming calf lost in the snow; a pet dog assured an unfailing supply of dog biscuits when willed $30,000 by his Chicago mistress; Robert Wadlow, 8 feet, 8½ inches on his 20th birthday with another year in which to grow, and Lew Lehr in a diverting bit of spoofing of the so-called wrestling bouts.

Feature material of lesser interest includes a Chicago welding school presided over by a woman and a snow fight by bathing beauties on a California beach.

In the news category are the return of the Army's six "flying fortresses" to Langley Field, Va., from their 12,000-mile flight to South America and back; Herbert Hoover receiving Belgium's citations; General Franco and the Spanish insurgent cabinet after the Teruel victory; the new Roumanian officialdom; James Roosevelt departing for Puerto Rico in his capacity as a lieutenant-colonel of Marines, and the arrival in New York of the three sisters of King Zog of Albania. Sports events include the outstanding winners at the recent A.A.U. meet in Madison Square Garden and individual ski-jumping styles at a New Hampshire meet. Running time, 10 mins. K.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 247

(M-G-M)

Flood scenes from the Red River district of Arkansas lead in interest in this feature-laden release. The reel includes a good variety of subjects and is of average entertainment quality.

The sweep of water, resultant damage and flood prevention work in the inundated Arkansas area are well photographed and constitute an impressive bit of camera reporting. Considerable footage is given over to England's rearmament activities, defenses and war drills, with King George VI on an inspection tour with military leaders. Highlights of General Pershing's career, pointed by his critical illness, are included. Glimpses of New Orleans' Mardi Gras celebrations are without novelty. The arrival in New York of the three sisters of King Zog of Albania, a staged snow fight by bathing beauties at the Venice, Cal., beach; an Idaho "mushing" race with dog teams; Navy bouts at Long Beach, Cal., and shots of the principal events at the A.A.U. indoor track meet at Madison Square Garden complete the reel. Running time, 10 mins. K.

Paramount News

(Paramount)

A well-rounded issue, this number offers numerous clips of general interest, and although none is outstanding, all are adequately covered and reproduced. The reel opens with the highlights of the National A.A.U. Meet in New York, with the amazing Glenn Cunningham setting another world mark.

George VI is seen inspecting an English arms factory, working at top speed, while Ishbel MacDonald is shown with her new husband, a house painter, in an English village. Dr. Townsend leaves Los Angeles amid the cheers of many, and arrives in Washington to be greeted by Congressmen, as he seeks reversal of his contempt jail term. Throngs of visitors watch the floats in the New Orleans Mardi Gras, and a small dog gets his dinner elaborately, for he has been willed $30,000.

National affairs are covered with the return of the six Army bombers on a good will mission to Buenos Aires, and are seen in that South American capital, while Admiral Land of the Maritime Commission speeds studies of new ships. Fast action on the basketball court pictures Army beating Navy and Notre Dame trimming N.Y.U.

Running time, 9 mins. A.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 64

(RKO)

Eleven items have been crowded into this issue. The effect is interesting. Outstanding clips include shots of flood victims harbored by the Red Cross in Arkansas, while workmen raise the levees; former President Hoover emerges from the tomb of the late King Albert of Belgium, and the new seagoing tank, designed for flood rescue work, is shown in action at Clearwater, Fla.

The rest of the reel includes a 16-year-old winning the National Senior Women's Figure Skating crown in Pennsylvania; the arrival in New York of the three unmarried sisters of King Zog of Albania; Dr. Townsend arriving in Washington to fight a contempt conviction; Democrats listening to Robert H. Jackson, a New Deal leader; James Roosevelt embarking for Cuba to engage in training with the Marines; shots of the annual Mardi Gras at New Orleans; European ski stars competing in the Alps, and good camera work on the winning of the Santa Anita Handicap by an eight-to-one shot.—Running time, 8½ mins. A.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 645

(Universal)

There is plenty of variety in this issue. It ranges from the return of six Army bombers from South America to the winning of the Flamingo stakes at Miami.

In between there are shots of a flood at Fulton, Ark.; bathing beauties throwing powdered ice at each other at Venice, Cal.; Robert Wadlow, the eight-foot 20-year-old boy, at home; the arrival of King Zog's three sisters; Dr. Townsend arriving at Washington to serve a 30-day jail sentence; King Farouk of Egypt doing something or other; Ishbel MacDonald with her new husband; Deanna Durbin arriving in New York· the Mardi Gras parade at New Orleans; the A. A. U. track meet at Madison Square Garden and a basketball game between Notre Dame a New York University.

The two last named sport numb are really exciting and well pho graphed, but some of the others just filler. Running time, 9 mins.

Hollywood Preview

"Dangerous to Know"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, March 1.—This is at heart a gangster picture in the original sense of the term, derived by William R. Lipman and Horace McCoy from a play by the late and somewhat bloodthirsty Edgar Wallace. But it is less as such than as a vehicle for the oncoming Akim Tamiroff of "The Buccaneer" and the always picturesque Anna May Wong that the film has box-office significance. Gail Patrick, Harvey Stephens, Lloyd Nolan, Anthony Quinn, Roscoe Karns and Hedda Hopper are other players in prominent roles. The performances of the not at all commonplace leads combine with certain novel production angles to distiguish the picture from others in its essential wavelength and promise better than average reception.

Miss Wong is household hostess for Tamiroff, teetotaler gangster risen to political and financial control of his city and ambitious for social acceptance. He is making headway in this direction when he falls in love with Miss Patrick, socialite, whom he forces to the brink of marriage by framing her sweetheart on a robbery charge. When his affairs have become nicely snarled and he has issued orders for the murder of his ninth victim, Miss Wong commits suicide and he is accused of her murder by a police inspector who knows he is innocent but is determined to get him hanged on one false conviction rather than see him escape eight merited ones.

Tamiroff puts a lot of sound acting into his role. Miss Wong does well in a somewhat restricted portrayal. Support is adequate. Associate Producer Edward T. Lowe, Director Robert Florey, or somebody, saw fit to stop the picture at what might have been its high spot to incorporate a gramaphone chorus of "Thanks for the Memory," from the "Big Broadcast of 1938," and from there on things get a bit act-y. Only one of the eight murders credited to the gangster is committed in the presence of the audience, and it's a bloodless matter of forcing his victim at pistol point to dive out of a window. The gramaphone interval could be, and with the aging of the song number may well be, eliminated to the considerable benefit of the narrative quality.

Work Increase To Be Problem At Union Meet

cians for some months past. Indications are that both unions will bring their proposals to the fore when the negotiations formally get under way here.

Pat Casey, producers' labor representative, is expected in New York from Hollywood in about two weeks to prepare for the annual negotiations which have been tentatively set for the last week of this month. Included in the negotiations in addition to the I. A. T. S. E. and the A. F. of M. are the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Carpenters and Joiners. The Screen Actors' Guild, with its separate 10-year contract with producers, is not included in the basic agreement with the other unions but has the right under its own contract to negotiate wage and hour schedules annually in April, when desired.

Six-Hour Day Expected

The continuation of the six-hour day is expected to be asked by the studio unions and, while wage increases will be sought for several labor classifications, wage scales in themselves are not expected to loom as importantly in the negotiations this year as they have for several years past.

The Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators & Paperhangers is expected to renew its bid for reinclusion in the basic agreement, from which it withdrew in 1932, but has made no formal declaration to this effect yet. The brotherhood's application for readmittance last year was granted on condition that it apply only to workers over whom the union had jurisdiction at the time of its withdrawal, but the union rejected this condition. During the past year the jurisdictional angle in Hollywood was simplified by I. A. T. S. E. extension, which is believed likely to lead to a renewal of the painters' application this year.

The I. A. T. S. E. claim to jurisdiction over the actor unions is not expected to concern the negotiators here.

initial meeting of the franchise holders in Hollywood during the first week in April. In addition to conferring on new season production plans the St. Louis meeting also will decide on a date and place for the company's national sales meeting. At present, home office officials favor April 21, 22 and 23 in Cincinnati for the national convention.

Scott Dunlap, Monogram production head, will arrive in New York from the coast today to attend the annual meeting of the company's stockholders at the home office this afternoon. No changes in the company's directorate are expected at this meeting. Dunlap will accompany Johnston and Leon Fromkess, Monogram treasurer, to St. Louis tomorrow, and will return to the coast following the franchise holders' meeting. Edward A. Golden, sales manager, who is now in Chicago, goes to St. Louis from that city.

More than 300,000 business enterprises in all lines of industry and trade would be affected by the measure, he declared. Under the bill as written, he pointed out, failure of concerns rigorously to follow the many conditions which are to be laid down in the licenses would subject innocent stockholders and employes to punishment for the acts of individuals over whom they had no control.

The bill carries no exemptions and would apply to every concern doing an interstate business, including distributors of films.

Outlining the accomplishments of the theatre project which she administers, Mrs. Hallie Flanagan disclosed that the WPA plans to make extensive use of broadcasting facilities, in which it has already conducted a number of experiments, believing that radio offers an important field to the unemployed actors and actresses working on the project.

The theatre project, which at its peak employed 12,700 people, now has 8,739 on its rolls, about 50 per cent of whom are actors, she said. These workers are employed in theatre companies operating in 40 cities in 22 states, the largest projects being in New York, with 4,011 workers; Los Angeles, with 1,289, and Chicago, with 768. The Federal theatre competes with neither the commercial stage nor the motion picture, she added.

The Fultograph Co. will begin sending pictures and text by facsimile to newspapers in Capetown and Johannesburg, South Africa, on June 1.

New Shows on the Air

"Voice of Firestone"

It has received little of the publicity accorded the Toscanini orchestra, nor has it the tradition behind it of such units as the Philadelphia Orchestra or the New York Philharmonic, but the Wallenstein orchestra in the "Voice of Firestone" series, brought up to full symphonic proportions since the death of Harvey Firestone, is comparable to any of America's great symphonies.

Monday night, the orchestra, now numbering 70 men, offered a program of superlative musical quality, beginning with Wagner's prelude to "Die Meistersinger" and concluding with offerings from "Cavalieria Rusticana." Conductor Wallenstein, with an orchestra such as he now guides, rapidly should achieve an eminence second to none in orchestral circles.

"Voice of Firestone" is presented Mondays from 8:30 to 9 P. M. on the NBC-Red. The Firestone Rubber Co. sponsors.

Drum Returned

The Chicago University drum that NBC and Toscanini sent for the other day is now on its way back to Chicago, because the drum was too big to fit into the elevator to the studios.

It's going back without even a tryout, despite the fact that it cost the network $1,200 to freight it both ways. Maybe the publicity was worth the $1,200.

Levy Tells Terms Of Circuit Deals

Disputing the report published yesterday that RKO had closed deals for Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" with the Skouras National Theatres Circuit and with the Warner Circuit at 35 per cent of the gross, Jules Levy, general sales manager, said the deals were under arrangements that will return to the company the greatest revenue ever earned by a picture.

Conditions of the national circuit deals included the playing of the Disney feature on a single bill policy with guarantees for the longest playing time ever accorded a picture in each situation. In many instances the runs will be for periods two or three times the length of top grossing pictures that have played in the past. Increased admission prices, and particularly the matter of increased prices

Maxwell Aids Triple Quota In Film Bill

Independent Exhibitors Roused by Action

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, March 2.—John Maxwell, head of Associated British Pictures, and perhaps the dominant individual figure in the British industry, today lent support to the triple-quota plan of Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, in the course of comment on the quota proposals in the Films Bill, passed by the House of Commons and now before the House of Lords.

Independent exhibitors were greatly perturbed over the Maxwell statements, fearing that the Government's hand is thus strengthened for a new attempt to introduce the amendment in the House of Lords.

The exhibitor group is known to be planning a wholesale rebellion against the quota in general. They are believed determined not to fulfill their quota obligations should the Stanley proposal become law. The revolt is entirely unofficial as yet, but it is widespread. For the moment it is

Canada Not to Act On Britain's Quota

TORONTO, March 2.—According to officials of the Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce, the Dominion Government has no intention of appealing to the United Kingdom for the inclusion of Canadian-made features or shorts in the category of British films in the amendments to the British Film Quota Act which have passed the House of Commons at London. The stand is taken that the matter is wholly for the consideration of the Imperial Government and one in which Canada has no say.

The official Canadian view is that

Four A Votes Opposition to IATSE Moves

Actors' Federation Also Takes Same Stand

A unanimous endorsement of a resolution that the Associated Actors & Artistes of America maintain its jurisdiction over actors' unions and combat any efforts which the I.A.T.S.E. may make to wrest any performers' unit from the Four A's was given by the international board of the latter organization at a meeting yesterday.

Joining in the endorsement was the American Federation of Actors which had been accused earlier of "flirting" with George E. Browne, I.A.T.S.E. president, in connection with the latter's jurisdictional claims over actors. At the same meeting, the Four A's board awarded the A. F. of A. jurisdiction over night club and presentation house performers, which was held heretofore by Chorus Equity.

Under the conditions imposed on the A. F. of A. with the granting of the disputed jurisdiction, the Actors Federation agrees to interchangeability of Four A's cards within its domain; agrees to submit to the Four

Insiders' Outlook

By A-MIKE VOGEL

TO maintain that the length of a double feature show is injurious to children's health is rank poppycock. The exhibitor who allows himself to be stampeded by so doubtful a premise is giving ground unnecessarily. There are few theatremen unwilling to give heed to practical suggestions for improvement of juvenile programs. Much in this direction has been accomplished by enthusiastic cooperation. But that is as far as it should be expected to go.

Collapse of the Chicago campaign to ban double features as a health measure must serve to curb unwarranted interference from outside sources. It is obvious by now that trade problems can best be solved by the industry itself.

Law won't do it. Neither will "well-intentioned" clubwomen with time enough on their hands to be inspired by those with personal axes to grind.

Picture making, comedy or otherwise, is a very serious business. But in the case of "Bringing Up Baby," the mild insanity in the script development affected the cast to the extent that the highest of high jinks were in order between "takes," with Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant, the ringleaders. It is evident that the finished picture reflects these spirits. The story sets out to be nothing more than a continuous howl interrupted by a few necessary intervals for breathing purposes. And reaches its goal with plenty of margin to spare.

Miss Hepburn's sensational entrance into the field of farce comedy should mark a red letter day in the star's career. As it should for RKO. As it should for exhibitors.

Para. Infringement Suit Is Dismissed

The copyright infringement suit brought by Paramount Productions, Inc., and Exclusive Movie Studios, Inc., against Benjamin Leder, who does business as Leader Motion Picture Film Co., and Nathan Leder, was dismissed by Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum in the U. S. District Court here yesterday because the plaintiffs were not ready to proceed with the trial.

The suit charged infringement of 20 cartoon shorts produced by Fleischer Studios, Inc. It was alleged that the defendant sold 16 mm. prints in violation of a license granted to Exclusive Movie Studios. A permanent injunction and damages were asked.

Claim Against Orpheum Allowed

Bankruptcy Referee Oscar W. Ehrhorn yesterday filed a report allowing the claim of Electrical Productions Corp. of California at $8,015 against Orpheum Circuit, Inc., in the U. S. District Court. Dividends on the claim, however, were limited to $6,015. Electrical Products filed a claim for alleged breach of a contract for an electric display sign, but Referee Ehrhorn dismissed it on Aug. 19. In September Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson reversed the referee and ordered a hearing on the claim. An appeal from the last order has been filed.

20-Fox Asks Examination

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. will ask Justice Bernard L. Shientag in the N. Y. Supreme Court today for a bill of particulars in the $60,000 negligence suit filed against it and Deon J. de Titta, an employe, by Anna Greeves, George Greeves and the estate of John Greeves. The complaint alleges that Twentieth Century-Fox negligently maintained a film storage warehouse at Little Ferry, N. J., and that John Greeves was killed and the others injured by an explosion on July 9, 1937.

Oscar Morgan Wins Eastern Air Award

According to Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, general manager of the line, Morgan wins two round-trip tickets between Atlanta and New York. The contest was based on the number of trips made by passengers between June 1 and Dec. 31.

M. L. Patterson, manager of the Federal Department, Sperry Gyroscope Co., won first place, two round-trip tickets to Miami and a week's accommodations at the Miami-Biltmore.

The opening will be sponsored by "The Daughters of Mary, Health of the Sick," created by Patrick Cardinal Hayes, and the committee will include: Alfred J. Talley, chairman; John P. O'Brien, Alfred E. At the last mo- nt, before the House of Commons ed on the Films Bill, the Govern- nt withdrew the proposal, which used a storm of controversy, es- cially among exhibitors.

He indicated that the same plan was ggested in the original report of Moyne Committee on film legis- ion revision in 1936, claiming that nerican distributors are unable to ry the burden of producing or re- sing 15 to 18 first class pictures an- ally. The same proposal was put ward by the Federation of British dustries (producer group), to the ard of Trade in October of last ar.

Reassures on Big Films

Maxwell reassured exhibitors who r too sharp a reduction in the num- of available films, declaring that film costing £60,000 would ensure re playdates and playing time, thus setting a smaller number of cheap- pictures.

Maxwell appealed to the Board of ade to permit the three-for-one dis- butor quota plan count in similar hion in the exhibitors' quota and allow relief for exhibitors un- e to fulfill their quota obligations.

The Films Bill will reach second ding and debate in the House of rds tomorrow, with a prospect that triple-quota plan will be revived, well as the idea of a film commis- n replacing the Films Council and possible increase in quota percent- es.

The position of Australian and Ca- dian films is certain to be raised in w of the protests and appeals re- ved by the Government from the w South Wales and Queensland vernments in Australia. KRS, CEA Not Near Solution on Grading

London, March 2.—The distributing organization, the Kinematograph Renters' Society, now has considered two plans presented by the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association as a solution to the problem of the grading of films, and has intimated diplomatically, while admitting the practicability of the plans, that grading must be continued.

The exhibitors probably will not meet the distributors before next month, but they are firm in the matter, and the C. E. A. may threaten to publish a list of "A" films, advising its members on the booking of them.

"Tom Sawyer" Gets $65,000, 2nd Week

"Adventures of Tom Sawyer" grossed $65,000 in its second week at the Music Hall, ending last night. The first week's take was $92,000. "Bringing up Baby" will open at the Music Hall today, and the following attraction will be "Jezebel."

The second week of "The Buccaneer," plus Mitzi Green and Clyde McCoy and his band on the stage, garnered $38,000, a drop from the first week's $62,000. The bill is being held a third week, to be followed by "The Big Broadcast of 1938" and Cab Calloway.

"A Yank at Oxford" may go three weeks, on the strength of the first week's take of $32,000. "Merrily, We Live" is penciled in for March 10.

Milwaukee Clerics Move Against Games

Milwaukee, March 1. — Agitation against games of chance in theatres here which culminated in visits by the police to some 20 houses in January for evidence without a single warrant being issued, has been renewed with a request to the state attorney general by the Milwaukee Ministerial Association for an opinion on the legality of such games.

The city attorney's office refused to issue warrants in the action and the district attorney had declared he was awaiting an opinion from the attorney general before moving in the matter. Such an opinion was to have been handed down by Jan. 15.

The attorney general's office has declared that it is still studying the statutes.

Preview Fire Picture

Kansas City, March 2.—The first reel of a new fire film was previewed by firemen here the other day. Entitled "Who's to Blame?" the three-reeler dramatizes various types of fires caused by carelessness. T. J. Hardwick, fire chief, wrote and directed the picture. It will be used to show property owners how to cut down fire losses.

Two "Dr. X" for Karloff

Hollywood, March 2. — Warners have revived the sinister "Doctor X" character and will star Boris Karloff in the title role of two films based on the theme created five years ago by Lionel Atwill. The first production will start about May 15 and will be titled "The Return of Doctor X." Director and supporting cast have not been chosen.

British preference for Made-in-Canada features is unnecessary under the revised quota law because Canadian films can still be shown on the screens of theatres in Great Britain without the blessing of quota privileges. Any thought of a quota stipulation in the Dominion has been frowned upon ever since the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa in 1932 when the subject of a film quota for the whole Empire was tossed out by the delegates.

Central Films, Ltd., of Victoria, B.C., which is closely associated with Columbia, has protested that the new British quota setup will bar its Canadian-made features from the British market. President Kenneth J. Bishop of Central Films declared that Canada's only feature producing enterprise would suffer a serious setback unless official action were taken, pointing out that his company had spent $600,000 on 12 features under quota requirements during the past 30 months.

The answer from the Canadian Government is that, quota or no quota, the entertainment value of Canadian films will decide whether or not there is a market in Great Britain for pictures made in this country.

Alexander Renamed Film Company Head

Colorado Springs, March 2.—J. Don Alexander has been reelected president of the Alexander Film Co. by the board of directors, following the annual stockholders meeting.

Other officials reelected were: D. M. Alexander, vice-president; M. J. McInaney, vice-president in charge of sales, and J. T. White, secretary-treasurer. Sam T. Foster, Denver, and W. C. Theleman, Colorado Springs, were elected to serve on the board of directors with officials of the company.

McInaney reported that the company's January business equalled that of the same month a year ago, and said February reports would compare favorably with those of a year ago. He said the company served nearly 10,500 retail clients with commercial films in 1937 and increased its number of theatre cooperators to an all-time high of 7,400.

Korda to Stay In U. A. Fold, Asserts Sutro

last weekend, but said that the discussions were entirely "personal."

Sutro said he may return here soon, but that Korda does not plan a trip here in the near future, having spent three months here on his last visit and now being engaged in directing his production program. Sutro hoped that London Films' $9,000,000 program now under way would obtain a greater reception in the American market than London Films have in the past.

Sutro for the last five years has been devoting all of his time to London Films, he said, because of his family's investment in the company. He also is an underwriter for Lloyd's. While here he went over exhibition contracts with Emanuel Silverstone, the company's American representative, with chief stress on the contracts with the large circuits.

John E. Otterson talked with Sutro just before the boat sailed. The former Erpi and Paramount president also said goodbye to Capt. Edouard Corniglion-Molinier, French producer, with whom he is associated in a company which will make English language versions of several French films.

Also sailing were Clarence and Mrs. Brown, headed for a 10-week tour of Austria, Hungary, Southern France and Italy. Brown said his next picture would be "Idiot's Delight." Among other passengers were Jean-Claude Bernard, French independent producer; Mrs. Irving Asher, the former Laura La Plante, and Jascha Heifetz.

Production Abroad Awaits Quota Bill

Production activity in England is at a virtual standstill, with studios working only spasmodically, because both British and American companies are awaiting final passage of the new quota act, said David A. Bader, former American film man and now a London representative, on his arrival yesterday on the Berengaria.

While the quota provisions will affect chiefly the American companies, Bader said, production by British companies has been curtailed mainly because the banks have been inclined to withhold financing to some extent until the pending law is enacted. Distribution and exhibition, however, are unaffected, and Bader described them as in "marvelous condition."

Bader plans to be here a week, then will go to Hollywood for a month or more. He will spend a few weeks in New York before returning to London. He was accompanied by George Pal, producer of one-reel puppet films, who will also go to Hollywood. Pal lectured on his films to the students of Columbia University last night.

low ground, as the vault and camera department was flooded, making the lot a veritable lake. Only slight interruption in shooting was caused there, but at M-G-M, Culver City, all shooting stopped. M-G-M sent a flotilla of 26 rowboats out on the streets of Culver City to rescue hundreds of families stranded in their homes. Scores of motorists were trapped in their cars. Some were bound for the studios and sat on their cars waiting rescue.

The $250,000 bridge over Ballona Creek was washed out and the back lot of M-G-M flooded by the angry water. At least one motorist was trapped when the bridge collapsed, but his identity is unknown.

Universal was marooned from the San Fernando Valley side as all bridges over the Los Angeles river, normally dry, were closed to traffic. The river washed out banks and threatened the side of the Universal lot. Farther out from Universal, in Saugus, the tunnel through the mountains was reported collapsed and several cars trapped.

Film Notables Marooned

Madeleine Carroll and many other film people living at Malibu Beach were isolated and Walter Wanger's "The River Is Blue" company stopped shooting. Technicians on the picture were asked to rescue Miss Carroll, star of the film.

The Columbia studio this morning was cut off from telephone communication as the lines went dead. Columbia is situated two miles below the Hollywood hills, watershed for the vicinity.

The latest word from Warners was that their lot situated between creeks normally dry, is completely marooned and 700 to 800 persons may be bedded down there tonight if the torrents do not subside. The "White Banners" set was wrecked by the flood and all shooting stopped.

A humorous angle to Warners' situation was the artificial whale, being used for "When Were You Born," which was washed down the raging creek. It was made of papier mâché, glue and wood.

The 20th Century-Fox shooting schedule was revised when some actors failed to reach the studio. Shooting on "The Battle of Broadway" was cancelled as George Marshall, living at Malibu, was unable to get to studio. Executives living in Bel and Brentwood Heights could not through to the studio because o landslide. One-half of the worker the Selznick studio, Culver City, ported to work this morning and w informed they might not be able leave inasmuch as the only r through the vicinity is about to blocked by flood waters.

The entire Roach lot in Culver is completely closed as Washing and Venice Blvds. are blocked to t fic.

No Report Made on Two-Operator Bill

ALBANY, March 2.—Contrary to expectation the two-man-in-a-booth bill was not reported out of the Cities Committee at yesterday's meeting. Word was forthcoming that it was discussed and a public hearing was asked, but no decision was reached.

Owners of the three Gammell theatres in Buffalo and the Lyric in Endicott today exhorted their legislators to oppose the two-men-in-a-booth bill, saying that enaction would impose a real hardship and cause additional expense.

The bill apparently has some support in the committee, but one legislator commented that the principal flaw in the legislation from his point of view was the mandatory provision. He pointed out that a permissive bill would have a better change of passage.

A bill which aims to prevent the sale of tickets when seats are not available was introduced yesterday by Representative Daniel Flynn of New York. An out for exhibitions is the exception clause permitting the sale of tickets for standing room only where local ordinances relating to safety permit the practice. The bill provides a $50 fine for each ticket sold and says local licensing authorities have the "duty" of revoking the licenses of proprietors flagrantly violating the law.

Bennet, former member of the U. S. Attorney General's staff; Lucien H. Bogges and members of the Florida attorney general's staff, may not be completed the same day.

Opposition Voiced To Pepper Measure

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Opposition to the Pepper bill for creation of a Bureau of Fine Arts was voiced today by witnesses appearing before the Senate Education and Labor Subcommittee on the ground that the bill was a relief measure only.

In the opinion of Gutzon Borglum, sculptor, and Walter Damrosch, conductor, the Sirovich bill is preferable to the Pepper measure because the former provides for a separate department for the arts.

Charges that the Pepper bill is merely a relief measure, in which Senator Ellender of Louisiana who, with Senator Pepper of Florida, conducted the hearings, were based on a provision that the proposed bureau should give employment to artists at pay of not less than $30 a week.

The fight over the bill came as E. L. Oliver, representing labor's Non-Partisan League, declared that all unemployed artists should be taken care of by the bureau. Ellender figured that there are 19,000 artists who would be employed, the salary list running to approximately $570,000 a week.

"If this bill is passed without any additional funds being given for relief generally," he said, "it will mean that the artists will get increased aid with money which must be taken from the unemployed bricklayers."

A telegram was received by the committee from Mary Pickford, endorsing the bill.

said there was "nothing to say" and comment was refused on reports that efforts were being planned to induce Representative Wright Patman (Dem.) of Texas to include film theatres in his bill imposing prohibitive taxes upon chain stores.

So far as could be learned the group plans to confer among themselves and with friendly members of Congress regarding both the future course of the Neely block booking bill, now on the Senate calendar with a favorable report from the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, and the legislation which it was decided at the January meeting should be drafted for introduction in Congress as a substitute for legislation now pending.

Among those attending today's meeting were Abram F. Myers, H. A. Cole, Ray Branch, Sidney Samuelson, Nathan Yamins, Al Steffes, P. J. Wood, Arthur Hogard and Edward Mertz.

In New York the Palace and Albee are holding over for third weeks and will play concurrently with the RKO Metropolitan circuit. Holdovers into second and third weeks are the rule in every key city in which the picture is playing.

Denver Row Brewing Over Daylight Time

DENVER, March 2.—Theatres and radio stations will lock horns in a battle over daylight-saving time. The radio stations are already devoting several short periods weekly to boosting the idea, and Harry Huffman has been made chairman of a committee of theatre and other business men opposing the plan. Several lines of business are lined up behind the radio stations.

Last year the ordinance was passed by the council, but was vetoed by the mayor. Denver had daylight-saving time about 15 years ago for a little over a year, but when the proposition was submitted to a vote it was beaten.

Coast Flood Hits Stations

HOLLYWOOD, March 2. — Floods caused by the worst storm in recent years this afternoon forced KNX, NBC station, to leave the air for an hour because of failure of the power line.

Women workers at KFI and KECA were sent home at noon by Earle C. Anthony, manager, who feared that the rising waters might isolate the station.

The special shortwave broadcast crew which was to have been sent to the Tehachapi Mountains to aid in the search for the lost TWA airliner, was ordered to remain here and aid in the special broadcasts of flood danger by the Mutual network.

Rico Marcelli in New York

fied the stations involved to furnish the commission with copies of Smith's talks. The commission's action is based on the grounds that, contrary to F. C. C. regulations, the "Committee of One Million" allegedly solicited contributions from listeners for allegedly unwarranted purposes.

"The Committee of One Million" sponsored Smith's talks over an independent network of approximately 40 stations, beginning in November, 1937. The Albert M. Ross agency originally handled the contract for the deal, but subsequently the account was obtained by Transamerican. The program, it is believed, was signed for 13 weeks on the air, but it left the air after a few broadcasts.

The program was carried locally by WHN. Herbert Pettey, WHN executive, admitted that he had heard reports that the F. C. C. intended to ask for copies of Smith's talks, but he said that WHN had not yet been asked by the commission.

Set April 18 for Purdue Hearing

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Federal Communications Commission has set April 18 as the tentative date for an examiner's hearing on the application of Purdue University's broadcasting station, WBAA, for authority to move from Lafayette to Indianapolis, Ind., increase time from specified hours to unlimited, and increase power from 500 watts night, 1,000 watts day, to 1,000 watts night, 5,000 watts day.

Fire Coverage

A fire which started in a small store, and threatened Proctor's Theatre at Lexington Ave. and 58th St., yesterday inspired WNEW to give to its listeners a flame-by-flame description of the event. Bill Harding and Don Dunphy set up their microphone across the street from the theatre and broadcast from 3:15 to 3:30. WNEW is located within a half block of the scene.

exemption granted in the Revenue Act of 1932 to news material transmitted by wire should be extended to similar material by radio.

"The radio is now being widely used in news dissemination," the committee pointed out in its report. "All news dissemination should be encouraged, and accordingly the amendment extends the exemption to cover payments for services or facilities utilized in the collection of news for radio broadcasting or in the dissemination of news by means of radio broadcasting."

As anticipated, the new bill provides relief from the undistributed profits tax for the great majority of corporations, those with net incomes not exceeding $25,000 being taxed at rates ranging from 12½ to 16 per cent, and those with greater incomes at a rate of 20 per cent; with credit to be allowed for four per cent of the amount distributed in dividends. Adjustments are made in the case of companies just over the $25,000 limit, so that the jump in taxes may not be too abrupt.

NBC Plans to Add Two New Stations

Two new stations will be added to the NBC combine on or about March 15, when KSEI, Pocatello, and KTFI, Twin Falls, both in Idaho, join the North Mountain group. The additions will bring the total number of stations affiliated with NBC to 146.

KTFI is owned by the Radio Broadcasting Corp., 1,240-kilocycle, full-time regional, with a day-and-night power of 1,000 watts.

KSEI definitely will join the network on March 15. KTFI's affiliation, expected at the same time, may be delayed a few days by the installation of transmission circuits, now being erected.

Japanese Government Plans Control of Film Industry

By TETSUYA MORI

TOKYO, Feb. 10.—There is every indication that the Japanese Government shortly will initiate legislation designed to control all phases of the film industry. Earlier rumors of such moves now appear based on fact.

Following the promulgation of a three-hour limit on theatre performances, which became effective Feb. 1, the Government has undertaken a wholesale investigation of the industry, covering details of every phase of film activity.

An attempt had been made to bring out a film regulation measure in the last session of the Diet, but it became too heavily involved in Government ministry conferences. However, after consideration by the various ministries concerned including Education, Foreign Affairs and Commerce and Industry, the measure will go to the legislative bureau of the Cabinet and is expected to be brought before the Diet at the next session.

The movement obviously is one designed toward nationalization of the Selznick and John Hay Whitney, with Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn, of the United Artists stock ownership held by Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and Charles Chaplin calls for substantial cash payments, Miss Pickford indicated yesterday on her arrival here from Chicago for a six-week stay.

While terms of the sale are being worked out, with nothing arrived at that can be made public, Miss Pickford said, she declared that delays have been occasioned by the necessity of ironing out the tax situation attendant on the sale of preferred stock by the three partners. The Government, she said, would consider the stock transfer an outright sale, and the taxes to Critics, critics' friends, trade paper writers, fan magazine editors and their assistants journeyed across Manhattan late yesterday to the River House at the edge of the East River where they have private landings for yachts at the end of 51st St.

All of them had received personal letters from Deanna Durbin, with engraved cards enclosed, inviting them to a party in her honor.

Film parties have been held at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, the Waldorf-Astoria, the Ritz Towers and other places, but this was the first time at the River House. Even the news photographers had their trousers pressed and their shoes shined.

Coast Storm Hits Studios; Damages Sets

Academy Awards Banquet Postponed One Week

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—Production activity at all studios was severely hampered and damage to sets, buildings and equipment increased as rain and high winds continued to lash the film community and Southern California today.

Republic, contacted tonight by MOTION PICTURE DAILY, stated that all shooting has been suspended and its workers sent home. The studio is situated on the border of a creek which overflowed and flooded the lot.

Weather forecasts offered little hope of a cessation of the storm for another 24 hours.

Workers in the offices of the I.A.T.S.E. were sent home at noon following reports that a worse storm is impending.

The Academy awards banquet, scheduled to have been held tonight, was postponed for one week to March 10.

The Scotch village set on the 20th Century - Fox lot being used for "Kidnapped" was damaged to the extent of $20,000 by the heavy rainfall and high winds. Damage to permanent sets on the Paramount back lot was estimated at $50,000. Floods caused a temporary power line failure at Warners and work on the "Four's A Crowd" set was suspended for several hours.

Air Programs Not Affected by Storm

Radio programs emanating from Hollywood were not unduly affected by flood conditions on the west coast, although for many hours yesterday it appeared that substitute programs would have to be inserted.

industry, and both domestic and foreign distributing companies are believed to be considering a definite trend toward cultural, rather than entertainment films, in line with the nationalization program.

Some leading distributors are of the opinion that it would be well to begin immediately to offer a certain percentage of cultural films, along with the usual entertainment product, in order thus to forestall the possible banning by the Government of all entertainment product in favor of cultural screen material.

A total of 285 features were released in Japan during 1937, 53 less than the total during 1936, and a decrease of 26 as compared with the 1935 total and 35 in comparison with 1934. Tightened restrictions on the importation of foreign product were responsible for the decrease in 1937. American product led the list in 1937, followed by French films, while during 1936, second place went to Germany.

copyright groups to license public performances, compels the publication of prices on sheet music and gives the purchasers of the music the right to perform without further fees. It also invalidates the present Ascap contracts.

Louis Frolich, New York attorney, closed the arguments for Ascap by denouncing the Florida law as a clever subterfuge to prevent the composer from getting his rights.

Florida attorneys attacked court jurisdiction and insisted the injunction should not be directed against the attorney general of that state since he was only involved in the criminal angles of monopolies.

Theatre Bill Reported Out

ALBANY, March 3.—A bill by Senator John J. Howard giving state troopers and sheriffs jurisdiction to enforce safety provisions in certain upstate communities today was reported out of the Senate Labor and Unemployment Committee. The bill stands on general orders, together with Howard's proposal to give 24 consecutive hours of rest to employees, including some classifications within the theatre field.

Another theatre bill was introduced by Senator A. S. Feld, Manhattan Democrat, in companionship with Tuesday's act to amend the law in relation to the sale of seats when there is none empty in theatres. The Feld-Flynn bill allows the sale of tickets beyond seat capacity under certain conditions, but also permits aggrieved parties to sue exhibitors in civil suits for recovery of $50.

A TRIBUTE TO GENIUS

I rarely sign my name to advertisements, but I insisted that this advertisement be a personal message from me to exhibitors.

I have just seen "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and words cannot fully express my enthusiasm for this great picture. From every angle it is definitely not only Shirley Temple's best to date, but is one of the finest pictures our company has ever made.

Shirley, herself, has never been more appealing. Furthermore, the picture is made to order for adults. The cast is a cast of grown-ups—grown-ups not only with name appeal, but also with great acting ability. All of them, whether they make love, sing or dance, give exceptional performances.

The story, too, is strong in adult appeal. Darryl Zanuck has streamlined Sunnybrook Farm by putting in a modern Radio Center. He has filled it with romance, comedy and up-to-the-minute songs and dances. Those songs, I believe, are among the finest I have ever heard in a musical.

But the best proof of "Rebecca's" quality is seeing it. Therefore, we have arranged special trade screenings in all our exchanges. Every exhibitor who has booked this picture should see it at these screenings.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 50

(20th Century - Fox)

There is much interesting material in this issue which has been given good treatment. The assorted items are widely scattered, geographically. It is a well balanced and timely reel.

The opening sequence is devoted to the recent opening of the King George VI naval drydock in Singapore. There are scenes of battleships and waterfront ceremonies. Alexander Kerensky, interviewed by Lowell Thomas, speaks strongly on what he thinks of the current Soviet state of affairs. The late Gabriele D'Annunzio is seen in some of those scenes that make the newsreel of real historical value. It is in the form of an obituary. The King and Queen of England are shown attending an industrial fair.

The ruler of Denmark sails his boat on the French Riviera and the result is a number of appealing photographic compositions. New fashions for army officers are displayed by members of the service in Washington. Lew Lehr's vocal tomfoolery describes men knitting in Czechoslovakia. Ed Thorgersen's sports offer hockey in Europe, trout fishing in Missouri, skiing in Colorado and baseball training in Louisiana. Running time, 10 mins. P.

News of the Day

Vol. 9, No. 218

The floats, papier mâché figures and general atmosphere of merriment at carnival parades in Nice and Viareggio make an exhilarating lead for this number. The rest of the material is interesting, lightly educational and entertaining.

That highly publicized telescope mirror is seen being polished at the California Institute of Technology. There are advance scenes of a new aquarium at St. Augustine, Fla. The ceremonies attendant on the opening of the new naval drydock are similar to those in the 20th Century - Fox reel. Alexander Kerensky delivers himself of some forceful opinions in a shipboard interview that has waterfront sound effects. The Woman's Page has Queen Mary and King George of England at an industrial fair in London and army officers modeling new dress uniforms. The sport division covers the Giants in training at Baton Rouge and a number of experts demonstrating unique billiard shots. Running time, 9 mins. P.

(Paramount)

A varied collection of news and feature material makes this release of about average interest. It is lacking in spot news representation, such as coverage on Southern California storms which have been raging for five days, and some of the feature material included suggests more entertaining possibilities than that actually realized by the cameramen—for example, the clip on the New York City windstorm, which even fails to picture a pedestrian's lost hat.

The issue leads off with shots of the opening of Britain's new naval base at Singapore; shows Florida's new "deep sea" aquarium; the sisters of King Zog of Albania visiting in New York; new dress uniform models for U. S. Army officers; an interview with Alexander Kerensky, in which the former Russian dictator predicts the downfall of Stalin; a Chicago motor boat show; a new German helicopter in indoor demonstration maneuvres; Herbert Hoover visiting in Belgium; the New York windstorm, and illustrations of the Cherry Hop, a new dance fad. Running time, nine mins. K.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 65

(RKO)

Grimly impressive pictures of a small segment of the Spanish civil war highlight this release. The photographic record of desolation and human suffering in and about Belchite will leave few members of any audience unmoved.

The remainder of the reel is along routine lines with the possible exception of a feature clip showing Austrian kayak riders in an exciting test of skill on river rapids. The other subjects cover the New York Giants in spring training at Baton Rouge, La.; John D. Rockefeller, Jr., launching a charity drive in New York; a new aquarium project at St. Augustine, Fla.; an alarm worn in the clothing to foil holdups; Estelle Lawson Page, national women's golf champion, in a practice session on Pinehurst links; Prince Michael of Roumania learning motor mechanics in an automobile factory, and greyhound hurdle races at Sydney, Australia. Running time, 8½ mins. K.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 10, No. 646

(Universal)

The news breaks were apparently lacking for this midweek release, which for the most part is made up of routine clips, some of them interesting, however, and all made lively by Graham McNamee's narration.

The reel opens on fishing boats in Boston harbor covered with ice and the fishermen hard at work chopping it off. This is picturesque, as are also the carnival parade in Viareggio, Italy, and the New Orleans Mardi Gras. A "marine studio" at St. Augustine, Fla., where all sorts of underwater life abounds, provides good shots and fine photography.

The rest is run-of-the-mill: Britain's new naval and air base at Singapore; Britain's King and Queen at the Industries Fair in London; a display of the new army uniforms which officers will be wearing next fall; opening of the trout season in the Missouri Ozarks; and an elephant which assists the lifeguards at Miami Beach. The sports division includes the Giants and Athletics in training in Louisiana, a freak wrestling match and an exclusive clip of ski jumping competition in Utah. Running time, 9 mins. F.

Ampa Votes Changes In Annual Ad Award

Ampa's annual advertising awards will be changed this year, it was decided at a membership meeting at the International Casino yesterday following a report by Vincent Trotta, chairman of the awards committee.

Trotta submitted three proposals as a result of the committee's deliberations. These were that the type of awards remain as heretofore, or that a reclassification include awards for the best work done by the advertising departments in various divisions, or to make first, second and third awards to departments for best all-around campaigns. The committee was instructed to work out a compromise between the latter two proposals and report back in two weeks.

A nominating committee was named to select the slate of officers for the annual election. Ampa's constitution calls for the election to be held before the last meeting in April.

The members decided to have a dinner-dance, to be held in May. Plans for the affair will be held in abeyance pending the report of the awards committee as arrangements will include the presentation of the awards at the affair.

the program that was manifest when the series started in November, 1937. It has been learned that a considerable number of exhibitors have written letters about the program to studio officials expressing satisfaction with the series and stating their intention to cooperate with the sponsor's branch offices in all the publicity and promotional stunts that have been arranged for their benefit.

Further indication that many exhibitors are now accepting the series is seen in the various exhibitor newspaper ads that have been gathered at the offices of Benton & Bowles. Many exhibitors advertising pictures in their local newspapers which feature M-G-M players appearing in the radio series, have inserted lines calling the attention of the public to the fact that the players in the picture are heard in "Good News of 1938."

Answer Expert

Herb Glover, publicity director for Lord & Thomas, is becoming an expert, by compulsion, on "things 1 never knew till now." It all dates back to the signing of Kay Kyser's "Musical College" series by American Tobacco. Here are some of the matters Kyser wants to know the answers to:

"Did Francis Scott Key write the score as well as lyrics to the "Star Spangled Banner?" "Did Fred Waring organize the Pennsylvanians or was he merely the band's publicity director and manager?" "What is the origin of the merry-go-round?"

sodent; the Rudy Vallee show for Standard Brands; "Good News of 1938" for M-G-M-General Foods Corp.; "Music Hall" for Kraft Cheese Corp. Amos 'n' Andy broadcast from Palm Springs, Cal., instead of from Hollywood. Their 15-minute skit was carried by telephone lines to Albuquerque, N. M., and thence to the network over the regular network lines. The Vallee, M-G-M and Kraft programs emanated from the studios of KFI, Los Angeles, by long wave, thence to the RCA Communications station at Point Reyse, Cal., and over the network. Programs from the coast, while some were slightly muddled, were for the most part surprisingly clear.

CBS, with but one 15-minute sponsored show on its schedule, cancelled several sustaining periods from the coast, filling in with programs from New York. The sponsored show, George McCall's "Hollywood Screen Scoops," for Old Gold cigarettes, was replaced with a program from New York in which Dinty Doyle, radio editor of the New York Journal-American, pinch-hit for McCall.

Mutual had only one sustaining program from the coast on its schedule, and this was replaced with a show from New York.

General Foods, yesterday afternoon, had an elaborate show set to replace "Good News of 1938," but as it developed it was not necessary to use the talent, which included Eddie Cantor, Deanna Durbin, Bob Ripley and B. A. Rolfe's orchestra.

O'CONNOR IS HEAD OF RKO THEATRES

O'Connor's appointment, expected daily since Spitz made his formal decision on Feb. 21 to remain as head of RKO, was confirmed as a week of conferences by company officials on executive appointments neared its close. On his return from the studio in January, Spitz had declared himself as favoring an appointment "from the ranks" to fill the top theatre post. To the New York trade this meant O'Connor, who was regarded as being in line for the post both by virtue of his record and his ranking position in the circuit. For the past three months he has been in virtual charge of theatre operations for the company, with some additional departmental functions handled by L. E. Thompson, who continues in his post as consultant on labor affairs for the circuit.

O'Connor has not yet designated his own successor as head film booker, but probably will do so on Monday. The new RKO theatre head started as a film booker for the old Peerless Booking Corp. in 1921. That organization did all of the booking for Keith, Proctor and Morse circuits. With the

Allied Men Silent On Board Meeting

Returning members of Allied States' board of directors and others who attended the directors' legislative meeting in Washington this week refused comment yesterday on the activities or decisions at the conference.

Among them was a Minnesota delegation including Al Steffes, national leader, and Ben Asher, Fergus Falls, Minn., and Benny Berger of Minneapolis, both officials of Northwest Allied. Steffes said that any statement would have to come from A. F. Myers, general counsel, or Nathan Yamins, president. The meeting was called to line up Congressional support for the Neely bill and other legislation.

Berger has been complaining to distributors about alleged price-slashing on the part of Baer Bros., his opposition in Bemidji and a nearby town in Minnesota, and it is understood the Minnesota group conferred here yesterday on that situation.

Whitney and Swope Stranded in Nevada Worry Over Santa Anita

Salt Lake City, March 4.—John Hay Whitney and Herbert Bayard Swope left here today for Oakland on their second attempt in two days to get through to Los Angeles. The two were passengers on the Union Pacific's streamliner which left here on schedule Wednesday. After the crack flier had been halted at Acoma, Nev., for a day, it returned to this city in the hope of getting through to the coast over the northern route.

Swope displayed some anxiety over the possibility of his missing the running of the Santa Anita Handicap on Saturday, declaring that the race was the only attraction which had drawn him to the west and that, unless the event was postponed because of the Southern California storms, he would start back to New York from the coast on Sunday or Monday.

Whitney plans to remain in Hollywood for another month at least.

"Sponsored" Short Bows in And Producers Throw Party

By J. M. JERAULD

"Sponsored" shorts are about to invade the industry. The name has been borrowed from radio. Heretofore they have been called commercial shorts. Some have been good, some not so good; others have been something less than fair. The types of theatres that have played them have been just as varied but, in spite of the variation of quality, those in the know say more than 4,000 theatres are showing them regularly.

Caravel Distributing Corp. has gone off on a new tangent and has produced a 9½-minute Technicolor cartoon number called "Boy Meets Dog" which is to be the first of a series. It is based on the cartoon strip, "Reg'lar Fellers," by Gene Byrnes, has a story by Victor McLeod, animation by Rudy Zamora and Frank Tipper, lyrics and music by Frank Churchill who worked on "Snow White," score furnished by an orchestra under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, and direction by Walter Lantz.

As the film progresses, some in the audience will guess the sponsor from occasional references to massaging the gums. The actual presentation of the name of the advertiser—Ipana—doesn't last more than a few seconds. Without this the film probably could be sold on the same basis as the best of the color animations; with it, it is to be paid for by the distributor on the basis of a definite sum per number of seats per performance, and Caravel is going to put a staff of exploitation men into the field with it.

Caravel officials say the best market for commercials so far has been through the south and southwest, but that with the new technique they intend to go into the middle west and northwest in big houses, offering protection in the same way entertainment films are offered. Film men turned out in force yesterday to see it at 730 Fifth Ave.

Bert Ennis put on a party as an exploitation stunt and went back to the gay '90's for atmosphere.

In the spacious quarters formerly occupied by Universal there was a bar, with a ladies' entrance; waiters in shirt sleeves with pink arm bands, their hair combed down in the middle of the forehead and then back; they sang, too. The orchestra was shirt-sleeved and mustachioed. There was a Bowery sign, gas street lights, a cop with a big gray helmet, a man with a shoe shine box, free lunch, beer glasses holding something less than a quart.

If it had been one of those super-colossal musicals they were trying to put over, nobody would have been surprised. After all, a film party had reached the rarified atmosphere of the River Club the day before. But this was a 9-minute short.

Something new happens often in the film business.

censed to use, does not represent an adequate or equitable basis for such a tax levy; nor is it equitable or proper to classify stations arbitrarily into three groups—those authorized to use less than 1,000 watts; those authorized to use between 1,000 and 10,000 watts, and those authorized to use in excess of 10,000 watts—for the purpose of fixing the rate.

"There is no consistent or logical justification for basing a tax on radio broadcasting stations solely on wattage, without regard to income, type of service, geographical coverage or other pertinent conditions," McNinch declared.

"The commission's objections to this bill should not be taken to be objections on the part of the commission to the principle of levying a tax upon, or charging a fee for, the exercise of the privilege of broadcasting, either for the purpose of reimbursing the Government for the expense incident to the regulation or licensing of broadcasting stations or for general revenue purposes.

Asks Base-Rate Relationship

"If, however, any such tax or fee is to be levied or charged, the commission is of the opinion that there should be some proper relationship between the tax base and the tax rate and the purpose for which it is imposed.

"The determination of such a relationship is not a simple matter but one which involves many complex factors. The commission will be very glad to comply with any request the committee may make."

Procter & Gamble shows, now heard at scattered periods over CBS. The P. & G. programs are "The Goldbergs," "The O'Neill's," "Mrs. Perkins," "Road of Life" and "Kitty Keene."

This is the first open full hour afternoon spot to become available on CBS since Procter & Gamble shifted part of its business from NBC to CBS. It is understood that CBS originally promised P. & G. the first open afternoon hour time as an inducement to come to CBS.

Time on NBC for the General Mills programs has not been set as yet. NBC's schedule, however, shows that no "across the board" hour time is open on the Red; therefore, it is obvious that the programs will be placed on the Blue network.

Order Hearings on Radio Applications

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Federal Communications Commission has directed that examiner's hearings be held on the applications of WBRC, Birmingham, for increase of night power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts; KOY, Phoenix, for change of frequency from 1,390 to 550 kilocycles; WNLC, New London, for change of hours from day to unlimited, and KTEM, Temple, Tex., for change of hours from day to unlimited with 100 watts power night, 250 watts day.

The commission has granted a modification of experimental authority heretofore granted KFAB, Lincoln, and WBBM, Chicago, for tests in synchronization, in order that they may employ a new method which, it is said, may lead to better results in the broadcasting of a program by two stations on the same frequency simultaneously.

Issue License for Minnesota Station

WASHINGTON, March 4.—An operating license to the Winona Radio Service for a new station, KWNO, to operate at Winona, Minn., on 1,200 kilocycles with 250 watts daytime only, has been issued by the Federal Communications Commission.

It also has been disclosed that licenses have been granted KALE, Portland, Ore., covering an increase in power from 500 to 1,000 watts, and WTAL, Tallahassee, for an increase in day power from 100 to 250 watts.

The commission tentatively has set April 5 as the date for an examiner's hearing on the application of Martin Anderson for a new 1,500-kilocycle station at Orlando, Fla., with 100 watts night, 250 watts day, and May 23 as a date for an examiner's hearing on the application of Peter J. Caldarone for a 1,270-kilocycle, 250 watt daytime station at Providence.

Plan Policy Change At KFAB in Lincoln

LINCOLN, March 4.—KFAB will go through an extensive change of policy in the next few months, leading to the classification of a farmer station, according to Don Searle, general manager, who has appointed Jiggs Miller as program director.

The other two Central States Broadcasting Co. links, KOIL, Omaha, and KFOR, Lincoln, will continue to serve the metropolitan areas with their smaller wattage.

With the many changes being put into effect, Searle also disclosed revision of the ad rates, which will ultimately bring about a 5 per cent increase. The increase is to cover the added costs brought on by recognition of the engineers' union and higher talent costs.

Chicago Allied to Resume Dual Fight

CHICAGO, March 6.—Allied here will continue its plans to fight double bills in the city, according to Aaron Saperstein, head of the local Allied unit.

Allied attorneys are understood to be preparing legal action against Balaban & Katz. The organization's active opposition to duals was halted during the recent drive of the women's clubs to combat duals, but when that movement failed, the independent exhibitors renewed their efforts to bring about the elimination of the practice, which was initiated locally by B. & K.

OMAHA, March 6.—The second district of the Nebraska Congress of Parents and Teachers, through its board of managers, has gone on record endorsing the Omaha P. T. A. campaign against double features. The statistics for cities show that Toronto, with its 102 theatres, had a total paid attendance of 22,301,324 for the year, the gross receipts being placed at $5,198,000. Montreal, with 62 theatres, had paid admissions which

Brandt Plans Vaudeville in Circuit Here

Declares Theatres Need New Stimulant

As a means of stimulating attendance, the Brandt circuit is speeding plans to introduce vaudeville in about 20 theatres in the metropolitan area, Harry Brandt declaring that arrangements are being made with the stagehands' and electricians' unions.

Brandt believes that theatres are putting too much stress on "outside attractions," like cash games, and that they have overdone such stimulants to a point where theatre operations now need a "hypodermic." This may be provided in stage shows in combination with films, he believes.

Screeno, which now runs seven days a week at some of the Brandt theatres, will be eliminated where vaudeville is

School's Survey Shows 162 Pictures Seen in 2 Months

In the two months of September and October, 1937, Brooklyn high school students viewed 162 Hollywood films, it was disclosed by a study of their picture preferences conducted by Joseph Mersand, director of the Institute of Adult Education of Boys High School, Brooklyn, and made public on Saturday.

Mersand's study was undertaken to determine the influence of films on students outside of the school building. Of the 162 films which had been seen, the students indicated the greatest preference for "Dead End" and "Captains Courageous." In noting these results, Mersand comments, "Certainly, teachers need not be pessimistic about the tastes of their pupils when the majority prefer such pictures."

Other films in the order of their preference indicated by the students were "Varsity Show," "The Road Back," "100 Men and a Girl," "Wee

20th-Fox to Increase Its Foreign List

Releases Will Run from Five to 15 Higher

Foreign subsidiaries of 20th Century-Fox will release an augmented product schedule during 1938-'39, the number of films being sold for next season exceeding the current program by from five to 15, depending on the country.

Selling has been under way for some time, and each subsidiary is offering a definite number of pictures. The Italian company is selling 30 films for next season. The increase is due to the demand for more product and reflects the popularity of the company's films abroad, the foreign department said.

The six-story building constructed by 20th Century-Fox in London to house its British organization headquarters will be opened officially in April, in time for the company's British convention to be held early in May. The sessions will be in the theatre incorporated in the structure.

The European premiere of "In Old Chicago" will be at the Tivoli in London on Thursday. The policy will be three shows a day at advanced prices for the extended run. The Paris roadshow engagement will open on or about April 1 at the Balzac. The Australasian premiere will be in Sydney within the next month.

Few Security Sales Closed in January

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Transactions of film corporation officials and directors in the securities of their own companies in January were few and relatively unimportant, it was reported by the Securities and Exchange Commission in its semi-monthly summary.

The largest transactions reported were sales by Lehman Brothers of 1,853 shares of Paramount second preferred stock held for John D. Hertz, New York, director. At the close of January, the company still held 2,700 shares for Hertz.

Disposition by Renraw, Inc., of 700 shares of Warner Brothers preferred stock, reducing their holdings to 12,800 shares; disposition by Kirk W. Todd of Pittsburgh, director, of 100 shares of Grand National common, reducing his holdings to 150 shares, and acquisition by Loew's, Inc., of seven shares of Loew's Boston Theatres common, giving it a total of 98,552 shares, were the only other transactions reported.

Reports from persons becoming officers or directors of corporations showed that neither Leon Fromkess, New York, elected an officer in Monogram Pictures Jan. 21, or Matthew Fox, New York, elected an officer in Universal on Jan. 7, held any equity stocks in those companies.

Daylight Time Again Scheduled in Canada

TORONTO, March 6.—Daylight saving will prevail once more this year in a majority of the cities in Eastern Canada, according to Toronto civic authorities who have taken the lead by decreeing the adoption of "summer time" for a period of no less than five months starting April 24.

The reply to arguments against the observance of daylight saving time for such a long stretch was that the matter was governed by the New York Stock Exchange, which turns the clocks on the April date. The Toronto Stock Exchange finds it necessary to follow suit in order to have the same hours for business each day, hence the whole city makes the change because of the stock brokers. The growing demand was for daylight saving only during the months of July and August, but in this the theatre men, women's organizations and others found themselves blocked. With Toronto adopting daylight saving, many other Canadian cities and towns may do likewise.

Two Juvenile Cases Dropped in Quebec

Toronto, March 6.—Two of the 22 actions by the city of Montreal against exhibitors for alleged admission of juveniles under 16 years of age, were dismissed by Recorder Semple on a technicality because city officials had neglected to secure authorization of the Provincial Attorney-General for the prosecutions. Those dismissed were Raymond Bergan, manager of the Centre Palace, and Joseph Cytrynbaum, manager of the Perron.

Hearing of the 20 other cases has been deferred pending the outcome of negotiations between the theatres and the Quebec Government for a reduction from 16 to 12 years for the age limit of banned juveniles. The argument has been advanced that, under Quebec prohibition, children are prevented from seeing many valuable historical and educational features as well as entertainment programs.

The report champions classroom use of films and intimates that in addition to their educational value they may assist in elevating the entertainment preferences of students, thereby increasing the potential patronage for classical film themes. Mersand deprecates the significance of the numerous studies which have been made in an effort to trace the influence of Hollywood product on the manners and emotions of adolescents, characterizing them as "generalizations" and declaring that "their reliability is questionable." That films do exert an influence on students, however, he does not deny.

"Although a critic like Professor Mark Van Doren of Columbia may state that 'movies should have but one purpose—entertainment'," his report concludes, "the teacher knows that they mean much more to his students. They entertain, yes, but they teach; they may inspire; they often, unfortunately, degrade. They may spur to action. Above all, they may deserve scientific study because they are definitely an instrument of education."

NEELY BILL WON'T WORK, SAYS KENT

Declares Independents Will Rue Day When It Becomes Law—Asserts Selling Will Have to Be Done in Exchanges

"Independent exhibitors of this country will rue the day the Neely bill becomes a law," declared S. R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, in a statement issued yesterday.

"Setting aside for a moment the question of exhibitor grievances that may be legitimate, let me say that any exhibitor leader who tells his following that this legislation is for their good is either ignorant or false."

The remainder of the statement is equally biting in tone. Kent said it will be impossible to sell a picture that is not actually shown to an exhibitor; that it will also be impossible to furnish detailed synopses; that circuits will maintain buyers in exchanges, and that independents will be compelled to do the same.

"An article published this week states 'exhibitors can still buy in blocks under the Neely bill as before.' This is also misleading," Kent's statement continued. "Yes, they could if any producer were stupid enough to try and write an accurate description of the kind called for in this bill and run the risk of criminal prosecution and to be fined in addition. Actually the bill itself will make any sale impossible except the sale of a finished picture after screening. There isn't a man in the industry today who could take a finished picture, let alone a projected one for the future, and based on the finished picture write a descriptive analysis that would be safe or stand up—not that one couldn't be picked to pieces technically if someone wanted to—and, in my opinion, no producer would run the risk or could afford to run it."

Kent asked the question: "Where are the pictures to be sold?" and answers it by saying, "in the exchanges."

"And what can be sold under this bill?" he continued. "Nothing but

Kleckner Urges RFC Aid for Exhibitors

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Adoption of the legislation proposed to extend the Reconstruction Finance Corp.'s financial facilities to small business was urged here today by Joseph B. Kleckner, president of Motiograph, Inc., in testimony before the R. F. C. subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee.

"If the proposed measures are adopted, it will be the first time since 1928 that exhibitors will be able to get credit for the rehabilitation of their theatres," Kleckner stated.

Kleckner was the industry's sole representative at the "small businessmen's conference" recently held in Washington.

Kent Points Out . . .

High points of S. R. Kent's objections to the Neely bill are:

Exhibitors will actually have to see every picture they buy, because it will be impossible to supply correct synopses in advance.

Selling will be done in exchanges. Circuits will maintain buyers there. Non-circuit buyers will have to do the same.

The moral issue raised by backers is a "smoke screen." Thousands of exhibitors bought "Ecstasy," which failed to pass a number of censor boards, on an individual basis, and thousands are showing so-called sex-hygiene pictures which cannot get Production Code approval.

Only a few companies will be able to maintain the additional inventories involved in having so many pictures on hand for screening.

"Any independent exhibitor who believes this bill is a triumph for the independent is writing his own bankruptcy."

Para. Given Stay On No. Dakota Law

FARGO, March 7.—Paramount and its theatre operating subsidiaries in this territory today won an uncontested temporary injunction restraining North Dakota officials from enforcing the state's affiliated theatre "divorcement" law after its effective date, March 22.

The U. S. The circuits can and maintain buyers in every exchange er out of which they are served will have to. Their added cost be bad enough. Non-circuit ex- tors will have to do the same g. Does anyone think producers afford to wear out 300 or 400 ts shipping them out to be screened re they are purchased to every one the thousands of accounts they e? Certainly not. But how else to be done?

alled Worse Than British Law

t has been said that this bill is as drastic as the English law. In opinion it is twice as drastic in its lts. There you can hold a trade v which serves the purposes of the . Under this bill the producer, to safe, must screen each picture for y buyer. A trade showing for ers will not comply with the law, I see it, for the exhibitor who 't seen the picture. He must be ished with a synopsis. A picture ht have played in a thousand the- s and yet, under this bill, you ldn't lease it without screening it every account that hasn't seen it still furnish a synopsis. No com- y can maintain and service its ac- nts as it is now doing.

Where are all these exhibitors who nt or are going broke under block king? I can name all the leaders porting this bill and most of them e been in their organizations for r 20 years and have more theatres ay than they had 20 years ago. ere are major producing and ex- iting companies still in the courts reorganization, but how many in- endents are in the court or went ough them during the last three or r years? This company, for which peak, serves over 10,000 accounts I know the great and overwhelm- majority we sell to prefer to buy product as they are now buying it. is is a minority bill, worked up a minority with punitive purposes mind. Back of it is the old false of 'let the community choose your duct.' Will any exhibitor consult community before he buys a pic- e?

Moral Issue a "Smoke Screen"

The origin of this bill was founded h a background of morals behind yet morals in motion pictures are issue today and every exhibitor and r-minded member of the community ows it. This bill will not prohibit exhibitor from running any pic- e he wants to run, so the moral ue is a smoke screen. There are usands of exhibitors who bought their own accord the picture stasy,' which did not pass some of state censor boards and couldn't a seal of approval of the industry; d how about the socalled social hy- ne pictures being shown around s country today without the approval of the industry Production Code Administration? All these were bought singly, not part of any block, and have been shown in thousands of theatres.

"We have the same old clique with us who want to do anything to destroy the distributor-producers, when, in my opinion, the real destruction will be in the exhibitor ranks if this bill goes through.

"There are only a certain few companies, including this one, which can survive this bill if enacted, but there are certain other companies, in my opinion, that cannot survive because they lack the finances required to double their present inventories, as they will be compelled to under its machinery.

Sees Film Supply Hit

"There are thousands of independent exhibitors who can never maintain their present position by buying their pictures one at a time, as I say they will be forced to under this act. You will find in a year or two that the supply of pictures, which you already complain is insufficient in number, will be much less in number than it is today. Any independent exhibitor who believes that this bill is a triumph for the independent is writing his own bankruptcy, in my opinion, and I am very careful in expressing any opinion upon any legislation of this or any other kind and am not careless in my statements."

"Chicago" Grosses $8,054 in 8th Week

"In Old Chicago" grossed $8,054 in its eighth week of the roadshow engagement at the Astor. It is scheduled to open April 15 at the Roxy, following the close of the run at the Astor, but the definite date will depend on the length of previous runs of "Mad About Music," which will go into the Roxy Friday, and "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which will follow.

"Women in Prison" proved a strong grosser at the Rialto. It was held an extra day and finished last night at $10,000 for eight days. This is the theatre's best figure in several weeks. Two other prison films are doing well on Broadway, "Penitentiary" at the Globe and "Prison Nurse" at the Criterion.

"The Rat" gave the Globe $5,500, below the theatre's average.

Phil Reisman Says RKO Gaining Abroad

RKO business abroad is up considerably over last year, reported Phil Reisman, general foreign manager, on his arrival yesterday on the Queen Mary. He was gone two months, during which he set a deal on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" with the Gaumont British circuit and presided over a meeting of European representatives in Paris.

Reisman brought back with him bulging scrap books indicating that the press in England gave "Snow White" a great reception. He attended the opening of the picture at the New Gallery in London, where it is guaranteed a minimum of 20 weeks. It is being presented at an admission top of $2.25.

The film will be generally released in Europe in the fall and will be dubbed in every important foreign language, Reisman said. He will confer on the extent of the dubbing with Roy Disney, business manager for Walt Disney studios, who is due here this week en route to Europe.

Reisman said theatre business has improved generally abroad, and that his own observation in London and Paris was that the international tension has eased and that war is now more remote, especially since England is seeking to patch up its differences with Germany.

No successor has as yet been appointed to C. E. Hilgers, RKO managing director in France, who resigned recently. Hilgers submitted his resignation before returning to New York.

Berman West Today; RKO Contract Closed

With his revised contract designating him RKO production head formally closed yesterday, Pandro S. Berman will leave New York by train today. He will be accompanied by J. R. McDonough, RKO Pictures vice-president.

Leo Spitz, RKO president, and Jules Levy, sales manager, left on the Century yesterday and will make stopovers in Chicago today. The quartet will confer at the studio on RKO's new season production plans and will arrange for the company's annual sales meeting. Ned E. Depinet, vice-president and distribution head, is at the studio awaiting their arrival.

Berman's departure reportedly was delayed by the necessity for having the approval of the Irving Trust Co., RKO trustee, for his revised contract, the terms of which were agreed upon late on Saturday.

"Snow" Chicago Smash

Chicago, March 7.—"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" opened here Saturday in the worst sleet and snow storm of the year to record business. By noon the gross was $700 ahead of any previous Saturday, with a gross of $9,000 estimated for the day.

Eddie Silverman Wed

Yuma, Ariz., March 7.—Eddie Silverman, Chicago Essaness executive, was married here this afternoon to Velma Talbert, artists model. The couple left following the ceremony for a honeymoon at Palm Springs.

While Spitz Waited

While Leo Spitz, president of RKO, was waiting on the 16th floor of the RKO Building on Saturday night for Pandro Berman and O. C. Doering, attorney for the Irving Trust Co., a uniformed building guard stopped them in the lobby and told them they could not go up. The reason was that Berman did not have a little green pass required of those ascending to the RKO floors after hours, and issued to RKO employes.

Berman and the attorney had an appointment with Spitz to confer on Berman's producing contract, but it made no difference to the guard. "I have my orders," he insisted. Berman finally put in two telephone calls to Spitz's office and after a short wait a young man came down and verified that he had business to transact at RKO.

Columbia to Keep List at 40 Features conferences with Harry Cohn, president.

Columbia will complete its plans for producing in England under the new British quota act following House of Lords action on the measure, Cohn said. Joseph Friedman. Columbia's British manager, will arrive from London tomorrow to confer here on the production arrangements. The Columbia vice-president indicated that at the present time the company favors the sending of its own production units to England, rather than retaining British producers to make the required quota pictures. He said that the company will discontinue production in Canada and Australia immediately as a result of the new Films Act, which does not allow credit against British quota requirements on pictures produced elsewhere in the Empire.

Cohn reported that flood damage to the Columbia studio was negligible and that only a few of the sets located in a valley were damaged to any appreciable extent, although shooting schedules were interrupted for the better part of two days. Departures from the coast were difficult with no trains leaving Los Angeles for two days, the Columbia executive reported.

North Dakota "divorcement" law. The injunction remains in effect against the state pending the outcome of the trial.

Attorneys for Paramount, Minnesota and American Amusement companies, the only theatre operating companies affected by the North Dakota statute, submitted their briefs to the court today. State officials and Allied States Association, the latter the sponsor of the "divorcement" measure, did not oppose the application for the injunction and entered no pleadings. The procedure eliminated all oral arguments before the court.

Spokesmen for Allied declared that the North Dakota statute litigation is regarded by the organization as a test case and that their desire to have the constitutionality of the law determined explained their failure to oppose the application for a temporary injunction.

Gensler Leaving Paramount

HOLLYWOOD, March 7.—Lewis Gensler, Paramount associate producer for the past two years and who has produced such pictures as "The Big Broadcast" and "Artists and Models," will leave the lot April 15, having been unable to reach an agreement with the studio over terms for a new contract. Gensler is now guiding the cutting of "College Swing." He plans a European vacation with his wife before announcing a new affiliation.

Test a Chimpanzee

Al Wilkie and Herb Berg of Paramount and representatives of four newsreels—Paramount, Movietone, News of the Day and Universal, with a flock of still cameramen gave a screen test to Anna, a four-year-old chimpanzee at Central Park Zoo yesterday.

The death of Jiggs, Paramount's trained chimp, caused it all.

They rode Anna in a baby carriage, had her play a piano, dressed her up, and had her eat at a table. The studio will decide whether or not she gets a job.

Freeman to Fix Date For Paramount Meet

A date and place for the spring meeting of Paramount theatre partners and associates will be decided upon within the next few weeks, Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president and theatre head of the company, stated yesterday on his return to New York from two weeks of conferences at the studio. Earlier plans for holding the meeting at the studio in the late spring have been definitely abandoned, he said, due to the fact that it would command too much of the time of studio officials at one of their busiest seasons.

Freeman conferred with Adolph Zukor, William LeBaron and other studio officials on picture types favored by the company's theatre operators and will present the conclusions reached during the studio conferences to Barney Balaban, Paramount president.

The Paramount theatre head denied reports that the company contemplated a change in its theatre operating relations with Joseph H. Cooper. Freeman attended a meeting with Cooper and Joseph W. Bernhard of Warners on current management changes being made in houses of the Standard circuit in Oklahoma City in which Warners and Paramount share an interest with Cooper. The latter will leave New York today for Oklahoma City.

LOBBY LUXURY CANNOT MAKE UP FOR PROJECTION POVERTY

All modernizing is progress; but the picture on the screen is what you sell and the most important place to modernize is in the projection room. And the way to do it is with High Intensity projection — already adopted by over 5000 theaters.

Simplified High Intensity projection positively gives two to three times as much light on the screen for so little more than low intensity costs, that one extra admission per show will pay the difference.

Snow-white light improves black and white and is essential for color projection. Every theater will be showing color regularly before long.

If you are still using old style, low intensity projection because you believe it economical, you may be astonished to learn that you are paying too much for what you are getting.

Write us for free booklet, "The Eternal Triangle in Picture Projection," giving you all the facts.

Spots de Luxe

Philadelphia, March 7. — There is an epidemic of production on spot announcements in local radio circles. Sound effects, trick gadgets and agency production men are commonplace on 30- to 100-word spots.

They range from the "moo" of a cow and the "crow" of a rooster to the sound effects of a ball game. But the best of the lot thus far was the deal signed by a soft drink sponsor for a 100-word announcement, including three sound effects: the pop of a cork, clink of glasses, and fizz of soda water.

DES MOINES, March 7.—Judge Russell Jordan of the District Court here has ruled in the $100,000 damage suit of Harold M. Cooper, involving a radio broadcast, that the acts complained of did not constitute libel because they were not printed or written.

Cooper had brought the libel suit against the Iowa Broadcasting Co.; WMT of Waterloo; Verne Marshall, publisher, and the Gazette Co. of Cedar Rapids. Judge Jordon stated the Iowa Broadcasting Co. was merely furnishing a medium by which Marshall's speech was transmitted to listeners.

Expect Triple Quota to Be Reintroduced

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, March 8.—It is now considered probable that the controversial triple quota proposal, for inclusion in the Films Bill, will be reintroduced next week before the House of Lords committee which then will begin consideration of the measure.

It is indicated that the proposal may be offered in a somewhat modified form, however. The proposition already has been discussed at an unofficial meeting of members of the House of Commons.

Meanwhile, Lord Strabolgi, who has pronounced labor leanings, has proposed the abolition of the distributors' quota, with distributors permitted,

Winning campaigns in the 1937 Quigley Awards were examined by 24 industry judges yesterday at the Hotel Astor, where the committee met to study the entries eligible for the annual Quigley Grand Awards. Declares U.S. Films Meeting Latin Advance

"There is a wave of native film production and exhibition in Latin America today, but the American distributors have nothing to be disturbed about because Hollywood films, by their superior quality, are serving as a cushion upon which the bulk of Latin American exhibition rests and will continue to obtain most of the playtime south of the Rio Grande," declared Walter J. Hutchinson, 20th Century-Fox foreign distribution chief, on his return yesterday on the Santa Rosa from a seven-week inspection and sales trip.

At the same time, Hutchinson disclosed that his company's business abroad generally is running 20 per

New Postponement For RKO in Offing

Hays Office Protests on Neely Report

Says New Sentiment Has Grown Since Hearing

Protesting that no hearings were held by the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce on the Neely anti-block booking bill prior to the committee's favorable report on the measure, the M.P.P.D.A., on behalf of its 26 producing and distributing members, made public its reply to the committee's report yesterday.

Pointing out that two years have elapsed since hearings last were held on the Neely bill, the report states that the moral fabric of motion pictures has been further safeguarded in that time through the operations of the industry's Production Code Administration and that the resultant improvement has been such as to give rise to a reasonable doubt that organizations and individuals who endorsed the bill two years ago on moral grounds would feel compelled to do so today. This situation, the report says, bears directly upon what is described as the primary purpose of the Neely bill, which is said to be "to establish Hollywood, March 8.—Phil Goldstone, through his Criterion Pictures, Inc., will produce for Grand National distribution three "Renfrew of the Royal Mounted" films under a court order filed today and approved by Federal Judge William P. James and involving Section 77B of the bankruptcy act which affects the reorganization of the distribution company. Philip Krasne, vice-president of Grand National, will be associate producer.

Grand National originally had announced four Renfrew films but only one was completed. Today's order authorizing the remaining three was obtained by Edward L. Alperson and Loyd Wright, co-trustees, upon representation that the G. N. distribution machinery should be kept active.

Spitz Is Named Head Of Palestine Drive

Leo Spitz, RKO president, has been appointed chairman of the amusement division of the Greater New York campaign of the United Palestine Appeal for aiding the Jewish settlement in Palestine. The division's activities will be started March 23 at a luncheon at the Astor honoring Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, national chairman.

Fred Meyers RKO Film Buyer

Fred Meyers yesterday was named film buyer for the RKO theatres by John J. O'Connor, newly appointed operator of the circuit. Max Fellerman was promoted to the post of first assistant to Meyers in charge of film booking. There will be no other changes, O'Connor said.

Meyers will continue to supervise Syracuse, Rochester and Providence theatres. As booker for those cities he was assistant to O'Connor. Fellerman has been booking the New York circuit and other situations.

Now It Is a Cocoanut; Not Long Ago 'Twas a Pineapple

The arrival of a boxed cocoanut from RKO with an invitation to a party in honor of Bobby Breen and his new picture, "Hawaii Calls," follows closely the receipt of a pineapple from the same source. Custard pies were sent around some time back by Educational to call attention to the higher and "pieless" quality of the company's new releases.

On behalf of Paramount's "Romance in the Dark," the "squishiness" of ripe tomatoes from various gardening areas was tested and duly noted in the press. The same company, in the interests of the coming "Her Jungle Lover," arranged a screen test of a chimpanzee from the Central Park Zoo, attended by reporters and the newsreels.

The unadorned form—within police requirements, of course— was not so long ago employed by the Selznick coast publicity forces in a traffic-stopping endeavor on the Los Angeles streets in behalf of "Nothing Sacred." And the success of the "Snow White" campaign in Chicago encouraged a unique form of picketing by a woman who shed her clothes as a protest against what she termed the dummy actors in the picture.

From these bewildering press agent devices it might be interesting to suggest the composite goofy gag to top, if not end, all screwball gags. Here it is. No, on second thought and remembering the cocoanuts and pineapples, as well as the ripe tomatoes, your reporter refrains.

N. Y. Asembly Gets Anti-Ascap Measure

Albany, March 8.—An anti-Ascap bill, sponsored by Assemblyman R. Foster Piper of Erie County, has been introduced into the Assembly, on behalf of the small theatre owners in Piper's district who have been seeking relief.

The bill declares that any "combination," which is defined as authors, composers, publishers, owners of copyrighted vocal or instrumental musical compositions, is unlawful if it have determination and fixation of license fees or other imposts. The bill is modeled after the Florida law, which Ascap is now contesting.

Report Moran Bill Killed

Albany, March 8.—Motion Picture Daily was informed authoritatively today that the Moran five mills per foot film tax has been killed, as heretofore predicted. It is also understood that the bills to end discrimination have been killed in Assembly committees.

Assemblyman Charles Breitbart of Brooklyn and Senator Elmer Quinn of New York jointly are sponsoring a theatrical agency regulation bill modeled on similar lines to that of the DeMatteo resolution, claimed to have Commissioner Paul Moss' benediction.

Legislation sponsored by Senator John J. Howard and Assemblyman Harold Armstrong, strongly favored by the Labor Department, to give state troopers and sheriffs power to enforce safety and sanitary laws in isolated upstate communities was laid aside on order of passage both Monday and Tuesday. Passage is expected.

Opponents of the "full crews" bill, which requires two projectionists in New York and Buffalo in every booth, claim they have a majority on the Cities Committee, although the position of some members is not certain. Insiders claim, however, that the bill is likely to be referred to the Rules Committee without recommendation as a compromise gesture. The showdown will come Wednesday due to today's delay in committee meeting.

"Jezebel"

unlikeable as skillful writing can make a heroine. Her playing of the part puts her at the top of the 1938 list of Academy nominations as of now. A less than perfect portrayal would have wrecked the picture and the player with it.

Henry Fonda, George Brent, Donald Crisp, Fay Bainter, Margaret Lindsay and Richard Cromwell are the other principals, playing remarkably balanced roles with finely measured precision. There is not an acting flaw in the entire footage.

Miss Davis plays a headstrong belle of New Orleans in 1850-'53 whose perversity results in the breaking off of her engagement to Fonda, an earnest young banker. When he returns from a trip north, bringing a northern bride, Miss Davis sets out to win him away from her, using her wiles on Brent to kindle Fonda's jealousy and inciting a duel in which Brent is killed. Family and friends turn against her. Then yellow fever comes to the city and Fonda is among the victims to be taken to an island leper colony for isolation. Miss Davis, repentant, persuades Fonda's wife to let her go along with him to what seems certain death, arguing that her superior knowledge of southern ways better qualifies her to save his life.

The plot coincides in no particular with popular pattern. Surprise twists of great dramatic impact arise from circumstances and develop naturally from characterization. Emotional passages are genuine and are not theatrically protracted. Historical background is immensely interesting for its own sake and figures vitally in the affairs of the characters.

"Jezebel" is a picture for any man's theatre and any customer's money.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, March 8.—Just as about 100 per cent of her devotees desire that she should be, Shirley Temple is about 90 per cent of this modernized conception of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." Singing, dancing, mimicing, exercising her magic personality, the central figure of a charming story that blends the bucolic savor of rusticism with the erratic hurly burly of radioland, she is the Shirley of old. Preview audience reaction, rattling in applause continuously and erupting into a roar at the conclusion, gave emphatic evidence that Shirley's "Rebecca" should take rank with the most successful in which she has been starred. Entertainment for any kind of audience, either urban or rural, it also is highly exploitable screen merchandise for any kind of exhibitor.

The story content being entirely alien to the theme of the Kate Douglas Wiggin novel, little other than the original title has been retained. Scenarists Karl Tunberg and Don Ettlinger have contrived a refreshing yarn which in concentrating on human interest compensates drama with comedy, includes a grown-up love story, but never lets the little star get out of the spotlight. The songs contributed by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, Lew Pollack and Sidney Mitchell, Sam Pokrass and Jack Yellen, and the dances (Shirley alone and with Bill Robinson) arranged by Nick Castle and Geneva Sawyer skillfully accentuate the various moods. And as Allan Dwan has directed his material, star and supporting personalities there is showmanship for all.

Instead of being the Wiggin "way down east" heroine, Shirley is presented as an entertainment genius to whom Randolph Scott looks as the salvation of a radio program. Complications, brought about by Jack Haley's comic stupidity, cause the genius to be lost. Actually she has been dumped on Helen Westley at Sunnybrook by William Demarest, her stepfather, who no longer sees her as a meal ticket. As she softens the stern heart of Miss Westley, she becomes acquainted with Scott who, on vacation and not knowing her identity, uses her as a liason to promote his romance with Gloria Stuart.

Accidentally, Haley again discovers the voice, and, over the objections of Miss Westley, Shirley is presented on the breakfast food program which emanates from Scott's farm home. Preceded by comic sequences involving Miss Westley and Slim Summerville, she hears the program and against his wishes gives Shirley permission to continue. But Demarest, smelling easy money, returns to claim the child. His hopes are dashed when Shirley, impishly, loses her voice. As he walks out, she regains her talents and the finale features Shirley and Bill Robinson on the radio program as the Scott-Miss Stuart romance as well as the Summerville-Miss Westley affair culminate.

"Crashing Hollywood"

(RKO)

Here is a satire on the film industry that provides an entertaining hour. There is clever blending of comedy, action, burlesque and atmosphere, highlighted by the performances of Lee Tracy, Paul Guilfoyle, Bradley Page, Richard Lane and Tom Kennedy. The action is lively and holds interest continuously.

Tracy, a writer, is en route to the film capital when he runs into Guilfoyle and Lee Patrick, an ex-convict, and his moll, respectively. After necessary incident to establish their relations the trio descends on Hollywood with a story based on the career of a notorious gangster. They have little difficulty in interesting Producer Lane. The first film is a success and the trio begin a fruitful collaboration on similar stories. Meanwhile Joan Woodbury is introduced into the yarn as romantic interest for Tracy. Eventually the real gangster known as "The Hawk" arrives and is looking for the person responsible for publicizing his career on the screen. He catches up with the aforementioned trio and a highly entertaining series of humorous mistaken identity devices are played out. After a running gun battle with Tracy "The Hawk" is taken by the police. Tracy, it seems, was thrown off a scaffold and winds up in a hospital with the attention of Miss Woodbury to speed his recovery.

Paul Yawitz and Gladys Atwater have concocted a breezy and exciting screenplay with many laughs. Lew Landers handled the direction. The supporting cast also offers George Irving, Jack Carson and Frank M. Thomas.

It states that the com- ee was petitioned to hold hearings behalf of the industry prior to the nission of the report.

nswering Senator Neely's conten- that the primary purpose of the is to establish community freedom film selection, the producers and ributors point out that "in all but very smallest places in the United tes all of the motion pictures pro- ed are shown among the theatres ch serve any given area. The prob- of selectivity for different persons any given community is met en- ly by the achievement of an in- try which makes available all over United States expensively produced ion pictures at a low cost which mits their display at all places, and es the public so many pictures to ose from."

ims Independents Don't Benefit

enator Neely declared the sec- ary purpose of his bill is "to re- e the independent motion picture atre operators of a burdensome and nopolistic trade practice."

n their reply the film men state ly that there is no monopolistic ctice in the motion picture industry, if there were the bill would not vent it.

Nor are the present practices op- ssive or burdensome," the report es. "No exhibitor appeared who ed that he was put out of busi- s because he bought in groups or dvance of production. No producer eared who said he could not pro- e or distribute because the others tracted for groups of pictures.

It is necessary for the exhibitors know in advance the commitments y will have to make for motion ures to keep their theatres open it has been of distinct advantage exhibitors to know, for example, they can contract to be supplied the motion pictures of companies long experience and reliability."

Producers Cite Pact Demand

They pointed out that e same theatre owners had tried make the members of their asso- ion enter into five-year contracts a distributing company they spon- ed, under plans whereby the dis- uting corporation arranged for the ribution of motion pictures to these ibitors of all the motion pictures be produced for a period of five s under a franchise contract, which gated the exhibitors to take them."

n conclusion, the reply states: hat makes exhibitors and distrib- s alike wish to contract for the showing of motion pictures in advance of their production is not any monopolistic design, but the legitimate desires of each to effect some safeguards in an enterprise of extreme commercial hazards. For years they have done so to their mutual benefit, to the benefit of the American industry, and to the benefit of the public."

To Discuss Neely Bill

have been made, there still remains a substantial amount of work to be done. Present indications are that another two or three weeks may be required to complete it.

In addition to finishing drafts of the desired amendments, proponents of the plan are anxious to obtain the advance approval of the proposed changes from all of the principal creditors before presenting them to the court. When this has been done, it is believed that the court will refer the amendments back to Special Master George W. Alger for hearing. It is believed that the court will not oppose a further adjournment of the hearing on the plan Friday because of its already indicated willingness to permit the proponents all the time required to explore the possibilities of speeding the reorganization of RKO by the course now being pursued.

The general aim of the amendments is to reduce the amount of debentures and preferred and common stock which will be outstanding upon reorganization of the company so that fixed charges against RKO thereafter will be more in line with current business prospects than are the charges which would be imposed under the plan as it now stands. This would necessarily mean a readjustment of the plan's provisions for treatment of the claims of creditors and security holders and, therefore, obviously involves numerous objections and prolonged negotiations.

Berman, McDonough Leave

Pandro Berman, newly designated production head of RKO, and J. R. Quebec Children Are Admitted to "Snow"

Montreal, March 8—With certain restrictions, which are being rigidly observed because of the desire of exhibitors to secure easement of the ban on juvenile attendance in film houses of Quebec, the Government of that Province has waived the prohibitory law on admission of children under 16 years of age by granting permission for them to see "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the current attraction at the Palace.

The special provisions are that those under 16 years can be admitted only when accompanied by a parent or adult guardian, while no children can be admitted during school hours five school days of the week.

This is the second time in 10 years that juveniles have been officially permitted to see films in a theatre in the Province of Quebec. In the meantime, the fight goes on between exhibitors and the Government for a revision of the law.

Plan Wide Campaign For "Jungle Lover"

Paramount is planning a national advertising campaign for "Her Jungle Lover," which features Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland. Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of Paramount sales, yesterday stated that the campaign would follow the lines of that which advertised "Ebb Tide." The back pages of the American Weekly and This Week will be used for four-color copy. In addition, R. M. Gillham, director of advertising and publicity, will conduct a campaign in color roto sections in various parts of the country.

The combined circulation of the 52 newspapers in which the advertisements will appear totals 20,000,000.

Time, Inc., has reported a loss for the calendar year 1937 of $19,000 on the operation of the film series, "March of Time." The reel brought in $1,162,000 in revenue from more than 10,000 theatres throughout the world.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 51
(20th Century-Fox)

The flood which ravaged a large section of Southern California and did considerable damage to Los Angeles is caught with expert clarity in this reel, and serves to bring an added interest and excitement to the issue. The manner in which the flood waters ripped out bridges, tore up railroad beds, washed out roads and turned a park into a lake on which two small ducks are seen having the time of their lives is a good newsreel job.

Florida's femininity in large quantities competes for the title of Miss Florida in a bathing suit, and "Names in the News" shows the Sultan of Muscat and Oman on a visit to the White House, the new French Ambassador after presenting his credentials to the President, and the Dowager Queen Mary, still hale at 71, on a visit to a London hospital.

Lew Lehr tries a hand at describing that quintuple marriage in Maine and gets himself entertainingly involved in relationships. The remarkable and successful test launching of one plane from another in the air in England is well photographed, and the sports division pictures the Santa Anita race with its flashing finish and the victory of War Admiral at Hialeah. Running time, 10 mins. A.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 249
(M-G-M)

The outstanding feature of this reel, of course, is the scenes of the coast flood, and an excellent camera job has been done. A large part of the clip is devoted to aerial scenes, especially above Venice, Cal., and they are effective screen reporting, as are the shots of a home being swept into the rushing waters, the rescue of marooned persons and the destruction to bridges, roads and railroad rights of way.

The reel is otherwise interesting and well handled, featuring the address of Chancellor Schuschnigg of Austria to the Diet in Vienna, the successful launching of a small plane from the back of a larger one in flight in England, air scenes of the rocky and snow-covered terrain over which searchers are hunting for the still missing air liner.

The women's division features the most recent Florida bathing beauty contest, and the father and four sons from Maine who married a mother and four sisters. The thrill finish of the Santa Anita race on the coast, with no sign of a flood, and a huge bowling contest in Chicago complete the reel. Running time, 9 mins. A.

Paramount News
(Paramount)

The camera triumphs over newspaper reports of the Southern California flood, in this release giving graphic portrayal of the havoc caused by the muddy waters. Half the reel's footage is given to the flood. This release is designated the "national extra," for all exchanges except those on the Pacific Coast, where an "advance extra" was pre-leased March 3.

The shots mainly are confined to the torrent in Los Angeles and Hollywood streets, where the waters rose to eight feet. Shots of the damage done to the studios are absent. There is enough of a picture, however, to convey what happened. Background sounds of roaring floods are well dubbed in.

The rest of the issue includes the exciting Santa Anita Handicap which Stagehand won, and the equally exciting Widener Stakes race which War Admiral captured at Hialeah; a successful test of the British "piggy back" plane, and some fine pin whacking in the American Bowling Congress championships in Chicago. Running time, 9 mins. F.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 66
(RKO)

Here are dramatic pictorial representations of a number of the big news stories from the front pages of the nation's newspapers of the last few days, brought to the screen with all the essentials intact and enhanced by the realism of the medium.

The flood in California leads off. The waters are shown raging through the streets of Los Angeles, Hollywood and Venice. The camera caught the serious aspect of the inundation in its most dramatic moments. There is a fine shot of a bridge in North Hollywood being washed out. Then there are scenes of a bowling contest in Chicago, the activities at the scene of the search for a missing airliner, the Sultan of Muscat and Oman in Washington, the President attending St. John's Episcopal Church in the Capitol on the fifth anniversary of his first inauguration; the new French Ambassador at the White House, a brewery explosion in New York, the two-in-one flying boat in a test flight and the Santa Anita Handicap with the closely contested finish. Running time, 8½ mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 647
(Universal)

There are a number of thrilling and dramatic scenes in this collection of film news which give the reel exceptional appeal. The flood in southern California is filmed from interesting vantage points. The comment is vivid and to the point. The best shot of the lot is one where a large, undermined house on the bank of a river topples into the rushing water.

The Santa Anita Handicap also offered an opportunity for exciting camera reporting when Stagehand and Seabiscuit tore over the finish line in a photo finish. The rest of the reel is an interesting assembly of sport, beauty contestants, aviation, glimpses of foreign dignitaries, President Roosevelt, a midget car in Paris, the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, a bowling tournament in Chicago, and the havoc wrought by a blast in a New York brewery. Running time, 9 mins. P.

Small Towns Go Native

The increased popularity of native

Native production in the Spanish

Hutchinson pointed out that pictures this type are an exception. Fur-result that they will be unable to

Final Para. Report To Be Heard Mar. 18

A final legal echo of the Paramount reorganization proceedings is scheduled to be heard in Federal Court here on March 18, when Judge Alfred C. Coxe receives the reports of the reorganization trustees and acts upon their petition for formal discharge.

Requests by Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, trustees' attorneys, for additional fees of $7,500 with $747 expenses for preparing the final report will be heard at the same time. Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, have also filed requests for $8,190 fees and $680 expenses.

The final report reveals that a total of $297,726,993 in claims was filed, of which $208,318,416 were provided for under the plan; $44,857,398 were finally allowed; $20,351,613 were expunged; $5,779,618 were filed by wholly owned subsidiaries, and $18,419,901 had not been disposed of on the closing date of the report.

through an agreement with the Board of Trade, to produce or distribute British films on mutually agreed terms.

John Maxwell, head of Associated British Pictures, who last week startled exhibitors with a strong statement in support of the triple quota plan, returned to a defense of the proposal today, contending that quality is more important than quantity. Using statistics, he argued against the threat of shortage brought up by exhibitors, stating that 90 "quickies" were made annually in the past two years, averaging 300 playdates each of three days. Multiplying the number of playdates by length of run by the number of films, he pointed to the resulting 81,000 "quota days." A British film costing £60,000, he said, will be booked for 1,500 playdates, chiefly for six days each. Thus, Maxwell said, similar computation would give a £60,000 film 270,000 "quota days."

Meeting Called by Webb

Last night's meeting of members of the House of Commons was called by Col. Baldwin Webb to enable American distributors to appeal to exhibitors on the grounds of prestige of the British screen. Present were Fayette Allport, representative of the Hays Office in London; Sam Eckman, M-G-M head here; Francis Harley of 20th Century-Fox; Charles Metcalfe, retiring president of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association; Kenneth Nyman, incoming president; Maxwell, and Robert Morrison, member of Parliament.

Distributors Back Maxwell

Maxwell's stand was supported by the distributors, while the exhibitors were adamant, claiming that even if the triple quota is applicable to exhibitors as well as distributors, the circuits still would have a monopoly. At another meeting today, Neville Kearney of the Federation of British Industries and Capt. Richard Norton canvassed members of the House of Lords seeking support for an amendment to raise the exhibitors' quota to a starting figure of 20 per cent.

Kenneth Nyman, new president of the C.E.A., recognized Brown's presence as a formal notice of the Government's satisfaction over current relations in the trade between labor and employes, as well as the acceptable functioning of the conciliation boards. Nyman paid a tribute to the tact and cordiality of officials of the Board of Trade, and entertained the gathering with a few jokes aimed at the distributors.

The department explained that films were not included in the reciprocity pact, but that the Czech Government has expressed its willingness to bind the present import duty on exposed films and to accede to some of the other requests that have been made for more favorable treatment of our pictures in that market.

Radio Talent Union Claims Progress Made

Satisfactory progress has been made to date by the American Federation of Radio Artists in its effort to unionize radio talent, according to the Bulletin, A.F.R.A. organ, the second issue of which was published yesterday.

Both sides are pressing negotiations in "a sincere effort" to conclude an agreement, the Bulletin states. The only contract obtained locally by A.F.R.A. to date, however, is with WINS.

A.F.R.A. progress nationally, as reported by the Bulletin, is as follows:

In Philadelphia the entire announcing staff of KYW, NBC outlet there, has affiliated with A.F.R.A. Organization is continuing with an A.F.R.A. charter expected shortly.

Active in Frisco

In San Francisco negotiations are in progress all along the line, with contracts close to signing with KJBS, KQW, KFPY, KGW-KEX and KGGC. The Bulletin reports that Consolidated Radio Artists, Inc., recently attempted to establish an artists bureau in place of the defunct NBC artists bureau. In answer, the unit resolved that actors would sign no more blanket representation contracts; that contracts must contain a 30-day cancellation clause for the artist as well as the agency. Actors here now are paying agency fees only on specified shows.

In Cincinnati, A.F.R.A. reports a preliminary wage and working conditions agreement is ready for presentation to WLW; in Detroit, the A.F.R.A. roster includes every Detroit station, with 65 per cent of all eligible talent signed; in Pittsburgh, the entire announcing staff of KDKA, NBC outlet, has joined A.F.R.A. Chicago, according to the Bulletin, is 97 per cent organized; the Los Angeles chapter has a membership of 1,400; in St. Louis, 80 per cent of all eligibles have signed with A.F.R.A.; a new chapter has just been formed in Shreveport, La.; a new chapter also is reported in Denver.

The Bulletin contains a statement by Frank Gillmore, head of the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, regarding reports that the I.A.T.S.E. intends claiming jurisdiction over performers. Gillmore voices astonishment over the report. He says a strong letter of protest by him to A. F. of L. President William Green regarding the rumor brought a reply from Green with assurances that up to the time of the A. F. of L. convention in Florida no such request had come before the executive board.

NAB, AFM Discuss Independents' Pact

Philip Loucks; special counsel for the National Ass'n of Broadcasters, met yesterday with the executive board of the American Federation of Musicians to discuss the problem of the independent, unaffiliated stations relative to the A. F. M.'s demands upon them for an agreement on the employment of staff musicians similar to the pact negotiated recently with the Independent Radio Network Affiliates.

Mark Woods, NBC vice president and treasurer also appeared at yesterday's meeting on behalf of the transcription companies. A re-drafted form of the A. F. M.'s proposed license for disc manufacturers was presented to Woods by Joseph Weber, president of the musicians' union, which will be discussed by the transcription interests at a special session today. In its original form, the license met with the objection of the manufacturers on the ground that it would involve them with the government through trade restraint clauses.

The issue is expected to be settled at the next meeting, set yesterday for March 24.

Loucks Influence Strong

The appearance of Loucks at yesterday's transcription meeting gave the independent stations a voice on this matter which is so vital to their existence. Actual negotiations for a separate agreement to bind the independent stations will not be undertaken until the transcription matter is completed.

The basis of assessments for the independent stations will not differ from that used in the I.R.N.A. settlement, which was approximately 5 per cent of the gross income of each station. Weber indicated, however, that he was considering exempting stations with a gross income of $20,000 a year and less.

A delegation of phonograph record manufacturers will meet with the A. F. M. today.

Thomas Is Appointed WOR Sales Manager

Eugene S. Thomas, for the past two years assistant sales manager at WOR, yesterday was named sales manager by Frank Braucher, station vice-president in charge of sales.

Thomas joined WOR in 1934 as a member of the sales promotion staff. Prior to that he was with the H. W. Kastor agency and was manager of the National Radio Auditorium, sponsored by Atwater Kent. The sales manager's post at WOR has been open for some time.

Under the terms of the 13-week deal with Gruen, which includes options, the studio will have complete control of the program, the point which caused the dispute with Lord & Thomas and American Tobacco Co. for "Your Hollywood Parade," which will leave the air March 23. The only Gruen participation will be in the commercial announcements.

The first program will have Gloria Dickson and Ronald Reagan as the featured players in a dramatization of "One Way Passage."

Jack Warner, commenting on the new show, today stated:

"For years I have hesitated to issue any publicity regarding this Academy of ours. I thought it was not wise to bring these people to the public's attention until they were ready for pictures. The Academy has more than justified its existence. In its time it has been associated with such personalities as Wayne Morris, Errol Flynn, Patric Knowles, Anita Louise, Olivia de Havilland and Priscilla and Rosemary Lane. I am proud to say that we consider it one of our most successful efforts."

Kalmus Sues NBC on Song

An infringement suit against NBC was filed by Edward F. Kalmus in the U. S. District Court here yesterday for an alleged unlicensed broadcast of the plaintiff's song, "Roadways," over WJZ on Dec. 17. The complaint seeks a permanent injunction, an accounting of the profits and damages.

Dropping "B" Films Can End Duals: Arthur

Calls Longer "A" Runs The Solution

Elimination of "B" pictures would result in the abandonment of dual bills, in the opinion of Harry C. Arthur, operator of Fanchon & Marco theatres, who is here for a short stay. The policy is in force in the circuit's St. Louis theatres.

"When the production heads blame the exhibitors for the increase in 'B' product, claiming that they are forced to make pictures of this type because of the prevalence of double billing, they are putting the cart before the horse," Arthur said yesterday.

"It's been the influx of 'B' pictures which has forced the exhibitors to adopt twin features and to extend them. The solution, as I see it, is to make only 'A' films, and extend the

Myers of Allied Asserts Neely Measure Offers Selection Right

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Assertions that the Neely block booking bill, if enacted, would compel the selling of pictures one at a time, that block booking must be abandoned and that it will be impossible to sell pictures before they are completed were denied today in a statement signed by Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Association.

Myers' formal statement was in reply to that of Sidney R. Kent and other critics of the Neely measure. The Allied leader asserted that "the

French Quota For Half-Year Is Exhausted

Dubbing Is Thus Halted Until July 1

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, March 9.—An extremely disturbing situation to American companies distributing in this country arose yesterday when it was learned that the quota of 94 foreign films exceeding three reels in length which are allowed dubbing permits under the French law for each half-year is already exhausted for the first six months of 1938.

The exhaustion of the quota means that no additional dubbing licenses will be granted by the French censoring authorities before July 1, 1938.

Trade sources here today found it difficult to understand how the dubbing quota has already been exhausted for the current six-month period, in view of the fact that major American companies, which took out only 60 dubbing licenses for the first six months of 1937, are far from having already taken that number during January and February of this year.

As a result of inquiries instituted to determine the complete list of dubbing licenses granted by the censor since Jan. 1, it is indicated that many dubbing licenses have been taken by French distributing companies buying playing time on them, which would bring both exhibitors and the studios more revenue. It would help the industry generally.

A plea for the reestablishment of arbitration boards or a similar forum for the conciliation of distributor-exhibitor disputes was made by Harry Brandt, president of the I. T. O. A., at a meeting of the organization at the Hotel Astor yesterday.

"Theatres are extending playtime on the bigger pictures now, but every time our circuit holds a big picture, we find ourselves overbought on the 'B' product. If the distributors would permit us to select our product and eliminate some pictures, it would be a different matter."

Arthur arrived here this week for periodic conferences at the F. & M. office and to talk over matters pertaining to the operation of the Roxy.

Business in F. & M.'s 32 theatres in St. Louis is better than last year, he said, and the stage show policy at the first run Fox, now in its third week, is showing good results. Arthur said that nine weeks of stage shows have been booked for the Fox, and he hopes to make the policy permanent. The problem is, however, to get a sufficient number of headliners to maintain a standard.

The policy was inaugurated with Fred Waring and his band. The second week saw a Major Bowes unit called "Collegiate Revue," and this week the Fox is presenting a number of Hollywood personalities. Al Pearce will headline a show and Mae West is booked for the week of March 18.

Won't Revive Giveaways

Arthur does not intend to reinstate giveaways which were abandoned last week by the circuit in St. Louis after three or four months. At first the policy was adopted for Tuesday nights, but after a while is was found that business was no better on those nights and the circuit began giving away dishes and kitchenware every night. When grosses showed no improvement, the circuit discontinued the gifts, Arthur said.

A realignment of the circuit's management placed Leto Hill in charge of the Fox, in addition to which he will supervise the two other first runs, the Ambassador and St. Louis. George Wiegand, formerly comptroller of the St. Louis Amusement Co., has been made supervisor of the neighborhood second runs in this subsidiary. Hill succeeded H. M. S. Kendrick, who resigned.

George Woods, who was in charge of several neighborhood theatres, was made manager of the St. Louis, replacing James Gleason, who was transferred to the Fox as assistant to Hill. Marvin Casmir, who resigned as publicity director at the Fox and was succeeded by Les Kaufman, formerly with Columbia in New York, plans to enter the advertising business for himself in St. Louis.

Consolidated Reports

Consolidated Film Industries, for the fourth quarter of its fiscal year, reports a profit of $64,732 after taxes and charges. This compares with a profit of $162,606 for the third quarter and $143,225 for the fourth quarter of the previous year.

Sell Ads on Glasses

M-G-M's "New Audioscopiks" short requires the audience to wear a special type of colored glasses. The Loew circuit estimates its requirements as more than 3,000,000 pairs of the glasses, and managers are selling advertising on the "specs" to defray the cost. The New York theatres are almost out of the red on this item, with 1,186,000 out of its 1,263,000 requirement spoken for by advertisers.

Omaha Officials Say Duals Up to Parents

OMAHA, March 9.—Anti-dual groups here have decided the whole question "is up to the parents" following a ruling by the city's legal department that the city council has no legislative control over the exhibition of double features.

Mrs. H. T. Jones, president of the Omaha Parent Teachers Association Council, said, "We admit that, after all, it is largely up to the parents to control their children." This group, which started the drive here, expected more support from Mayor Dan Butler, who has gained a nationwide reputation on his censorship activities. The legal opinion stated that the city has power to legislate for protection of public health, safety and welfare only when citizens are unable to protect themselves.

Owens Suit Off Calendar

The patent infringement suit brought by Freeman H. Owens against Erpi and Stanley-Mack Strand Corp. was marked off the calendar by Federal Judge John C. Knox in the U. S. Myers of Allied Asserts Neely Measure Offers Selection Right manifest purpose of the bill is not to censor pictures or to hamstring the producers in making pictures" but merely to "afford a right of selection to independent exhibitors and the theatregoing public."

Opponents of the bill, said Myers, have been thrown "into a panic."

The Allied executive analyzed the provisions of the bill, declaring that its major purpose is "to confer on independent exhibitors at least some of the advantages which the great chains enjoy under their selective contracts" and to restore to them some of the rights which they enjoyed years ago when pictures were sold by name with an outline of the story and with mention of the directing and acting personnel."

Myers declared that Allied has no need to apologize for its efforts to settle industry disputes from within, and said that to assert that exhibitors who favor the bill are prompted by a spirit of vengeance or are acting in bad faith is not a legitimate argument against the merits of the bill.

MPTOA Declares Retail Prices Would Follow On All Pictures

cost burdens on exhibitors as well as distributors and would "force the business into the hands of three or four giant companies." It asserts that the trade "abuse" which the measure seeks to correct stems from "an inadequate (picture) selection for the small independent exhibitor," but contends that the selective right "has to be in the contract, not in an act of Congress."

The bulletin states that a 20 per cent unconditional cancellation privilege in the contract, long championed by the M. P. T. O. A., would solve the problem and do away with the inspiration for such legislation as the Neely bill. By implication the bulletin charges distributors with the responsibility for the measure through repeated failures to participate in trade practice regulatory programs with exhibitors.

Declaring that the Neely bill "will without doubt do more actual damage to the small exhibitors' business than it will to the big distributing companies against whom it is ostensibly aimed," the M. P. T. O. A. bull points out that the "only way a tributor can do business and not br the law is to put a price on each ture, no matter how many he has offer, that will make a good deal the distributor if only that one ture is bought by the exhibitor, rigidly maintain that price. If he duces it in any respect, because exhibitor may be willing to buy m than one picture, the distributor subject to criminal indictment an penitentiary sentence."

"Thus, instead of insuring a re selection of pictures at the whole prices that the exhibitor can affor pay, the act by criminal penal forces the distributor to main without variation retail prices on wholesale buys."

The bulletin also warns exhibi that the bill's appeal to local c munities to influence the selectior pictures to be shown in the local atre is an invitation to "organ groups in the community, the chu people, women's clubs and civic ganizations" to dictate or influe local film bookings.

"The First Hundred Years"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, March 9.—Norman Krasna concocted an engaging, natural story of marriage difficulties. Melville Baker turned in a screenplay that ripples with clever dialogue and which is full of intriguing situations. The property was placed in the capable hands of Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Warren William, Binnie Barnes, Alan Dinehart, Harry Davenport, Lee Bowman and several other accomplished players to bring it to screen realism. Taking his story, production material and personnel, Richard Thorpe directed with a showmanship flair. The result is that "The First Hundred Years" should prove a popular attraction in a majority of theatres. In many cases it may emerge as a happy surprise. In either instance exhibitors have a wealth of material with which to work in an effort to arouse interest.

In a gay, semi-sophisticated treatment, the story considers the problems which young married people encounter. The married life of Montgomery and Miss Bruce founders on the rocks of misunderstanding of each others' duties and responsibilities. Miss Bruce, preferring to continue her career as a theatrical agent, refuses to leave New York for New Bedford where Montgomery gets a job. Eventually as William, Dinehart, Miss Barnes and Bowman have a hand in the doings, their case winds up in Domestic Relations Court where Dinehart's erratic legal ethics force Miss Bruce to provide for her husband's support. There is more amusement as complications arise further threatening the pair's happiness until there is the discovery that Miss Bruce is to have a baby which, of course, paves the way for a reconciliation.

Here is Montgomery back in the type of role which brought him success. Miss Bruce expertly plays the harassed wife who can't make head or tail of anything. Miss Barnes and Dinehart check in with agreeable characterizations.

The picture should generate word of mouth comment of a beneficial nature.

"Condemned Women"

(RKO)

There are elements of an interesting story, good direction, convincing performances and ample exploitation angles in "Condemned Women." It is plausible melodrama that offers a realistic slice from life as it is lived in a woman's prison. There are such standbys as disillusioned prisoners, the observance of the criminal code, colorful characters in drab uniforms, a "break" and the romantic twist.

Sally Eilers plays the convict who has neither hope, ambition nor any other interest in life. She comes to the prison with bitterness toward everything. But hope flares up when she meets Louis Hayward, the prison physician, who enlists her aid when a typhoid epidemic breaks out. She falls in love with him. Meanwhile she is framed by Lee Patrick, for whom she has little use. The warden, George Irving, learns of the Eilers-Hayward romance and explains to the girl the ultimate outcome of their infatuation. More or less in desperation Miss Eilers joins Miss Patrick in an escape. Miss Patrick is mortally wounded during the ensuing excitement, but the pair make their getaway. Later Miss Eilers is tricked into recapture and in a well-acted courtroom scene the entire affair is satisfactorily concluded. Anne Shirley in a featured role gives a good account of herself as a trusting girl who takes the rap for her fiance so that he may continue his law studies.

Robert Sisk produced. Lew Landers directed. Nicholas Musuraca's photography offers a number of interesting studies in prison atmosphere. The supporting cast includes Leona Roberts, Esther Dale, Netta Packer and Richard Bond.

Running time, 77 minutes. "G."

C.E.A. in Talks on Newsreel Televising

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, March 9.—The Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association today discussed the televising of newsreels. W. R. Fuller, secretary of the C.E.A., denied that orders had gone out for a boycott against offending distributors. He indicated that a meeting will be held shortly with the newsreel companies.

The meeting entered into discussion of the triple quota proposal. Alec Smith, spokesman for the Scotch exhibitors, declared he had no fear of the plan, expressing the belief that it would help American companies to make good British films and prevent the production of Hollywood "quickies" for this market. Charles P. Metcalfe, retiring president, supported the contention made by Ken Nyman, new president, at the C.E.A. banquet last night, when he urged that the proposal be examined first by the new Films Council. Meanwhile, it was indicated that the exhibitor organization will watch closely the progress of the bill in the House of Lords.

Newsreel House Will Go into AP Building

A newsreel theatre will be located in the Associated Press Building in Rockefeller Center, which is now under construction. Leases were signed this week by Newsreel Theatres, Inc., which will operate the theatre as its fifth unit. Occupation is expected about Dec. 1.

Francis Carter Wood, Jr., treasurer of the company, said the location was considered especially good for a newsreel house. The site is on the north side of 50th St., facing Rockefeller Plaza. A 10-year lease was negotiated by Clark T. Chambers. The house will have 450 seats, and plans are being made by John Eberson in association with Reinhardt & Hofmeister, architects for the building.

Cantor Says Europe "Discovering" Him

Europe is just "discovering" Eddie Cantor, he found out yesterday. He said he had received a letter from Bill Goetz in London giving him glowing reports of how his picture, "Ali Baba Goes to Town," is being received abroad. He said the reception, comparatively, is better than in this country.

"Over there they're just discovering that there is an Eddie Cantor," Eddie observed.

He said he would be around the east four or five more weeks and then return to the coast. His second picture for 20th Century-Fox will start in October or November, he said, under his commitment of one film a year for the company.

Operator Bill Sent To Rules Committee

ALBANY, March 9.—The "full crew" bill, providing additional jobs for projectionists in New York and Buffalo was sent to the Assembly Rules Committee today, with no record vote. MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned from a reliable source that proponents of the Crews amendment had a bare majority in the original committee. The Cities Committee held its meeting with neither supporters nor opponents appearing, despite the advance indication that an informal hearing might be held with State Federation of Labor President George Meany appearing.

Upon learning of the committee action, Assemblyman Crews asserted he would exert himself in an effort to obtain a favorable report from the Rules Committee prior to adjournment, scheduled now for March 16 or 17. Bills before the Rules Committee are always considered alive in view of the scores of measures usually reported out and passed the last two days of a session.

The Senate today passed a bill by Senator Howard giving state troopers and sheriffs jurisdiction over enforcement of laws in theatres in certain communities.

Otherwise Wednesday was a "slaughterhouse" day with many bills killed in committee. Unsubstantiated reports that at least one of the Rossi theatre bills and that of Assemblyman Flynn had been killed were current. The Assembly Public Service Commission Committee today killed a measure by Assemblyman Arthur Doran intended to put radio corporations and stations under the Public Service Commission.

Explain Czech Stand on Film Trade Treaty

ment for pictures in Czechoslovakia and that the latter had requested separate negotiations on the ground that, by their nature, films are different from other commodities of trade.

"The Government of the United States has been unable to agree with the position of your Government that motion pictures should not properly be included in trade-agreement negotiations," he stated. "It has, however, with considerable reluctance agreed to the proposal of your Government that the treatment of American motion pictures in Czechoslovakia be made the subject of a separate agreement between the Governments.

"The assent of the Government of the United States to this proposal is predicated upon the understanding that the agreement thus envisaged will be concluded as soon as possible. It is further understood that, pending conclusion of an agreement with respect to motion pictures, the Government of the Czechoslovakian republic will not adopt any measure which would affect American motion pictures adversely in relation to the treatment which they are now accorded in Czechoslovakia."

In an acknowledgement of the note, Hurban agreed that the Czech Government will not adopt any restrictive measure against American films pending consummation of the agreement, which will be negotiated at the earliest date possible.

Government Details Family Film Costs

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Thirty cents out of every dollar spent for amusements in American villages goes to the film theatre, it was reported tonight by Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture.

Making public the result of interviews with 9,407 white, American, non-relief families in 140 villages in 20 states, Dr. Stanley reported that the average expenditure for film attendance per family ranges from $10 per year in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa to $16 in North and South Dakota, Kansas, Colorado, Montana, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi.

The figures were gathered as part of the first nationwide study of American family income and expenditures ever made by the Government.

In New England, it was shown, the average family expenditure for pictures is $12 per year, or 30.5 per cent of all recreational expenditures; in the central and Atlantic states, $10, or 29.2 per cent; in the mountain and plains states $16, or 29.7 per cent; in the Pacific states, $15, or 29.1 per cent, and in the southeast $16, or 36 per cent.

Los Angeles, March 10.—Before an audience of over 1,300, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences last night at the Biltmore Bowl bestowed the awards for cinema achievement during 1937. Warners' "The Life of Emile Zola" was designated the outstanding production and Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy were named as the stars contributing the year's oustanding screen performances. Miss Rainer was honored for her work in M-G-M's "The Good Earth," and Spencer Tracy for his part in M-G-M's "Captains Courageous."

The Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award, presented this year for the first time, to the producer who showed the most consistently high quality of production achievement in pictures which he personally produced in 1937, was presented to Darryl F. Zanuck.

Leo McCarey was voted the directional palm for "The Awful Truth."

Two supporting players were honored, Joseph Schildkraut for his work in "The Life of Emile Zola" and Alice Brady for her portrayal in "In Old Chicago."

William A. Wellman and Robert Carson were named as writers of the best original story—"A Star Is Born" —while first prize in the adaptation di-

New RKO Plan Provides More Cash at Start

The cash position of RKO upon reorganization will be improved by approximately $4,650,000 if amendments to the company's reorganization plan sponsored by Atlas Corp. are approved by creditors and the court in place of the original reorganization plan, it was learned yesterday.

Although a program of amendments has been completed, individual proposals are subject to continuing negotiations with security holders' and creditors' groups, whose consent to the alterations in the reorganization plan is being sought prior to the submission of the amendments to the Federal court. For this reason, the proponents of the plan will ask a further

Triple Quota Introduction Now Definite

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, March 10.—It is now definite that the triple quota proposal will be reintroduced into Films Bill consideration by the Government during the committee stage on the measure in the House of Lords, which is expected to open next Monday.

Viscount Swinton, Government spokesman, will propose an amendment permitting films made at a labor cost of £30,000 and total cost of £60,000 to be counted as triple value under the distributors' quota. The proposal, however, will limit the number of films which may be thus counted to 50 per cent of the total distributor quota, in an effort to meet

Ze Ampa, She Go Russian et French und Hawaii—Pouf!

It might have been labeled an "all-nations" party at the Ampa meeting yesterday at the International Casino with Russians and French at the dais to season the Swedish and Scotch among the membership and Bobby Breen on hand to tell about his experiences in Honolulu. What saved the day for the stars-and-stripes was the ham 'an eggs some of the members were able to wangle.

Young Master Breen, making the first of his two personals of the day, had a good straight man in Ralph Rolan, Ampa president, and, coincidentally enough, of RKO, which is releasing "Hawaii Calls." Encouraged by Rolan, the starlet spoke of his experience in the islands and was nice enough to precede his remarks with the hope he was not boring his listeners. At the microphone, the duo took a Bergen-McCarthy stance, but the

Appeals Court Hits Dual Ban In Sales Pact

Phila. Ruling Based on Concerted Action

Philadelphia, March 10.—The prohibition of double featuring by means of contract clauses forbidding the showing of one feature on the same program with a second feature was held to be a violation of the anti-trust laws by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here today. The decision was handed down in the Perelman case against major distributors, which has been in the local Federal courts since May 28, 1934.

Attorneys for defendant distributors intimated that they may apply to the U. S. Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari, although no decision has been made yet and several sources expressed doubts as to the strength of the possible grounds on which the high court could be expected to grant a review.

While the decision makes it illegal for more than one distributor at one time to employ the contract clause

Albany, March 10.—It was confirmed today that the Moran tax on films had been pigeonholed in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. U. A. Drive Hitting New High—Schaefer

Sales volume greater than that reached during any period in the history of United Artists has been recorded during the company's Better Business Drive, which is now entering its final month, it was stated yesterday by George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager. Quotas set by the sales department, under the direction of A. W. Smith, Jr., have been exceeded by 10 of the 32 branch offices.

As the drive enters its final month Haskell Masters' Canadian district is leading, followed by Bob Mochrie's southern territory. Third to sixth places, respectively, are held by far west, midwest, central and eastern.

Ione Friedman Married

Ione Friedman, daughter of Harry Friedman, operator of the Academy in Newburgh, was married at the Hotel Astor last night to Maurice H. Sussman of Brooklyn. By coincidence, the wedding day was the bride's 20th birthday as well as the 21st wedding anniversary of her parents. The newlyweds will sail today on the Empress of Australia for a southern cruise.

youngster was no dummy and Rolan was allowed some of the punch lines, too.

The Russian influence then showed in front with Josef Zimanich of National Screen introducing Joseph Ermolieff, producer of the French picture "Nuits de Princes," which he intends making again in English on this side. Ermolieff is considering offers. The star of the picture, Marina Schubert, was presented and persuaded to sing, which she did—about "l'amour," but not Paramount's. Miss Schubert, it may be said, is pretty enough for any Shubert and she can serenade.

A loud hand was also given Viola Van, the "Fifi" of the Cantor program. Miss Van started her act with a French accent, but broke down to admit she came from Brooklyn. She sang a song in both French and English about rain, accompanied by Jacques Dallin, French composer, who also played for Miss Schubert and encored with an original. M. Dallin, on his first trip to this side, is unique. He announced he is not going to Hollywood.

Judith Allen Reticent

Judith Allen, Monogram star, also took a bow and was "thrilled to be here." She had nothing further to say about wrestling and boxing. Among the side-liners introduced were football's Benny Friedman, Sol Lesser's Lou Hyman and Irving Davis, of American Weekly.

When the meeting adjourned, the Ampa executive council, still under the influence of the bilingual entertainment, convened to discuss club affairs. Ray Gallagher spoke with a bit of French accent. Martin Starr's was Russian, and louder.

Hawaii a Big Jump, But Bobby Makes It

It's quite a jump from the International Casino to the Hawaiian Room of the Hotel Lexington, but Bobby Breen took it in stride for his second personal appearance of the day. It was a trade party this time put on by RKO in the interests of the boy's new picture and the star stood up nobly under the second barrage of questioning and handshaking.

The room was in romantic semidarkness, but the absence of illumination seemed to present no problem to lei-decorated guests able to reach with ease for rum drinks served in cocoanut shells. Atmosphere and costumes were endorsed as authentically Island-ish by the Hawaiian Society of America and some of the visitors were curious about the procedure of going native. The best answer seemed to be—"just let yourself go." A few experimented.

Bobby discussed "Hawaii Calls" with the fan and radio press, was kept otherwise engaged by cameramen under the eagle eyes of Ralph Rolan and Barret McCormick. The youngster spoke of the art of coin-diving as shown in the picture, but any contemplated demonstration was frowned upon by the management, which might have been wary of competition from assembled press agents. There was native string music by Lani McIntire and his orchestra. Princess Kuulee (pronounced kuulee) danced the hula hula with refined "umph."

"Watch for Opening"

Harrisburg, March 10.—Sam Gilman, manager of Loew's Regent here, made up a large poster and hung it on a blank wall of an opposition house which is under construction by an independent operator. The poster tells the public to "watch for the opening of the new Senate Theatre," and in the meantime to attend the Loew house. The Senate will open in May.

A boxed cocoanut was autographed for Ned Depinet, absent in Hollywood, some 3,000 miles nearer Honolulu than the party. It was a plain nut without the accompanying fixings so a raincheck was enclosed.

The drink, incidentally, is called "Oke."

"Oke," is oke with us.

"Sally, Irene" $33,000

"Sally, Irene and Mary" held at $33,000 for its second week at the Roxy, ending last night, compared with $44,000 for the first stanza. "Bringing Up Baby" gave the Music Hall $70,000. "Prison Nurse" went eight days at the Criterion for a take of $12,000. "Bulldog Drummond's Peril" has been dated March 18 at the Criterion, following the current "Dangerous to Know."

Because of the snowfall which cut takes generally at the Broadway first runs yesterday, "Jezebel" got off to a slow start at the Music Hall but built well later in the day and gave the theatre a good gross.

"A Yank at Oxford," in its second week at the Capitol, garnered $20,000 as against $32,000 for the first week.

Seek Rubin's Testimony

An infringement suit brought b World Pictures Corp. against Metro Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corp was revealed in the N. Y. Suprem Court yesterday when World filed motion to examine J. Robert Rubin vice-president, and Jesse T. Mills, as sistant secretary, before trial. Th motion will be heard March 21.

The complaint alleges that in April 1937, World obtained the Unite States and Canadian distributio rights for a German feature, "De Weise Rausch," produced by H. R Sokal. The film was retitled "Sk Chase." Shortly thereafter, the com plaint continues, M-G-M started dis tribution of a short, "Ski Skill," an allegedly used portions of the fil without permission. As a result, i is claimed M-G-M earned $30,000 o the short and the plaintiff was dam aged to the extent of $50,000.

The answer contains a general de nial and also contends that a copy right filed by World in December 1937, deprived the state court of juris diction.

adjournment of about two weeks of the hearing on the plan scheduled for to-[illegible] before Federal Judge William Bondy. By the end of that time, it is hoped by proponents of the plan, sufficient consents to the changes will have been obtained to permit the plan to be returned to Special Master George W. Alger for hearings on the amendments.

The original intention of the reorganizers to increase the feasibility of the plan by devising amendments which would reduce the fixed charges of reorganized RKO has become a secondary objective under the program of amendments now being negotiated with the creditors. The primary result of the amendments would be to increase the company's cash reserves as noted.

Fixed Charges $1,000,000

Indicated fixed charges of the reorganized company would be approximately $1,000,000 annually in the event the amendments emerge in substantially the same form in which they are being proposed. Under the plan they were $1,195,000. Thus a saving of less than $200,000 is indicated as a result of the amendments. On the other hand, the amendments propose means of bringing approximately $5,000,000 in new cash into reorganized RKO, as contrasted with the $1,600,000 of new cash which the plan originally made provision for, and out of which reorganization and underwriting expenses were to have been paid.

The amendments propose an issue of $5,000,000 of five per cent convertible debentures, none of which would be applied to the settlement of claims against the company, as contrasted with the $12,718,500 of five and one-half per cent convertible debentures which the plan proposed to issue to secured creditors.

Would Buy Meehan Stock

Of the $5,000,000 from the sale of new debentures, approximately $2,-70,000 would be available for the purchase of the M. J. Meehan majorty holdings of Keith-Albee-Orpheum preferred stock, and the remainder would be available for reorganization nd underwriting costs and other corporate purposes. Although no deal an be set with the Meehan interests ntil the amendment is approved, pokesmen for Meehan said yesterday that they stand ready to sell when the ight bid is made and indicated that deal might be set prior to the reoranization of RKO. Presumably, Meehan would have to waive threeear accumulated dividends of $21 er share on his 27,000 shares of K-A-O to effect a deal.

The acquisition of the Meehan shares, however, would permit RKO to bring the income of its most profitble theatre subsidiary into its general statement, which on the basis of K-A-O earnings for recent years would dd approximately $1,250,000 of additonal cash to the parent company's nnual statement. RKO already owns bout 97 per cent of the K-A-O common, but a minority share of the preferred.

The amendments propose the issuance of $12,718,500 of six per cent, cumulative convertible first preferred to holders of secured claims, such as old debentures. For each $100 of such claims, holders would receive one share of new preferred and an as yet undetermined number of shares of new common in payment for unpaid interest on the debentures. Three shares of common is likely to be agreed upon, although this is still in negotiation, it was reported.

Considers General Creditors

Under the plan, secured claims were offered $100 of new debentures and two shares of new common for each $100 of claims.

General creditors, the amendments propose, would receive 10 shares of new common for every $100 of claims, although this also is subject to the continuing negotiations. Under the plan general creditors were offered one share of new preferred and one of common for every $100 of claims.

Holders of common stock, subject to the conclusion of negotiations, are offered one-quarter share of new common for each share of old, plus a right to subscribe to the new $5,000,000 issue of debentures, and would receive an additional one-quarter share of new common for each subscription right exercised.

Rockefeller Center would still receive 464,000 shares of new common for its $9,150,000 unsecured claim, as already recommended. Under the amendments there would be approximately 2,300,000 shares of common outstanding, and approximately 2,000,000 more reserved for conversion of debentures and first preferred.

New York Previews

"Sudden Bill Dorn"

(Universal)

Buck Jones offers the required violent dramatic devices in "Sudden Bill Dorn," and the result, while the story drags and limps at frequent intervals, is a diverting western melodrama.

At the outset Jones is introduced as a swindled rancher whose property has been taken from him by a clever scoundrel. He learns of the present whereabouts of the culprit and sets out after him. In his hunt he meets up with Noel Francis. Miss Francis has had similar dealings, it is brought out, and together the pair join forces for their mutual advantage. There are a number of sub-plots wherein gold is found in a deserted town and the rivalry between two freight services results in the mysterious blowing up on the more successful one. Eventually Jones gets around to the point where the whole situation reveals itself. He catches up with the villain of the piece, trounces him and then falls unconscious into the arms of Miss Francis.

Evelyn Brent has a leading part as the daughter of a Spanish rancher. She handles it very well. Frank McGlynn, Sr., has an interesting character role. The support also offers Ted Adams, Lee Phelps and Harold Hodges. Ray Taylor directed. Kenneth Thompson and John Hickson contributed a number of compelling photographic effects.

Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

"Prison Nurse"

(Republic)

The direction of James Cruze gives such dramatic situations as a flood, a typhoid epidemic, jailbreak, murder and the always satisfying chase exciting entertainment values. The melodramatic content is also heightened by the romance between Marian Marsh, a nurse who comes to the prison to aid the local doctor, and Henry Wilcoxon, a convict, once a famous doctor, who rises to the tense situation when the "house" doctor falls ill. The Wilcoxon characterization is convincing. Miss Marsh is adequate. First rate supporting roles are played by Bernadene Hayes, Ben Welden, John Arledge, Addison Richards, Frank Reicher and Ray Mayer.

Following the fever epidemic and the recruiting of Wilcoxon, Ray Mayer and Ben Welden, convicts, kidnap him and make a successful break. But their getaway vehicle, an ambulance, crashes. The witnesses who could clear the innocent Wilcoxon are killed. He faces a murder rap. But Miss Hayes remembers that Mayer kept a diary and it is found. The information contained in the book clears everything.

The story may seem familiar but there are new twists. It moves along interestingly most of the time.

Running time 67 minutes. "G."

the objection of exhibitors that the plan will cause a product shortage.

Other amendments, proposed by Lord Moyne and others, aim at increasing the exhibitor quota, narrowing the personnel of the Films Council and limiting the exhibitor representation thereon to two. A vigorous fight by exhibitor interests is certain. The Board of Trade appealed to exhibitors yesterday for passive support for the triple quota plan. The exhibitors point out that after one year it is at the discretion of the Films Council to abolish the qualification now proposed on the plan.

American distributors are said to be pleased with the plan, which tends to give them an advantage in fulfilling the numerical terms of their quota.

Isman Warner Winner

Mickey Isman, Warner branch manager in Montreal, has won the $500 prize offered in a special collections drive, his office collecting the greatest percentage against Sears Drive quotas for one week. The company gave honorable mention to Doak Roberts, Dallas manager, and Charles Muehlman, San Francisco branch head, who finished second and third, respectively.

The results of the balloting were broadcast at midnight last night over the NBC-Blue network by Elza Schallert.

The event considered by Hollywood as one of the outstanding happenings of the year since the Academy awards' establishment in 1927, had virtually the entire production industry from extras to producer members of the Academy participating in the balloting, making the widest voting representation in the history of the awards. It is estimated that approximately 15,000 persons voted under a system which took cognizance not only of Academy members, as in the past, but of the various talent organizations which were organized before and after the Academy dropped all economic activities, as well as, in some cases, those individuals who belong neither to the Academy nor to an organization of their crafts.

Bob Burns was master of ceremonies at the dinner dance, reservations for which were filled by last Monday. Introduced by Frank Capra, president of the Academy, Burns presented the persons who, on behalf of the Academy, presented the gold statuettes, plaques and certificates to the winners in the various classifications.

Prizes in Various Forms

Gold Academy statuettes were given for production, best performance by actor and actress, direction, screenplay, original story, art direction, cinematography and sound recording.

Awards for the best performances by an actor and an actress in supporting roles, and awards for film editing, assistant director, best song, scoring and dance direction were in the form of gold plaques suitably inscribed. The award for short subject production was a permanent statuette trophy conferred jointly for the four classifications of production, together with individual plaques.

The trophy for the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award consisted of a sculpture by Bernard Sopher of the head of the late producer mounted on a solid base.

The changes made in awards voting this season were to avoid past charges that the balloting was not representative of the industry. Capra and other officers formulated the plan of calling in other organizations, such as the Screen Actors' Guild, Screen Writers' Guild and Screen Directors' Guild, to participate in the selection of the nominations and final winners. Taken into consideration, too, were the persons qualified for membership in any such organization, but who were not members.

Mahin Withdraws

John Lee Mahin, president of the Screen Playwrights, Inc., and nominee, with Marc Connelly and Dale Van Every, for the screenplay award by virtue of work on "Captains Courageous," withdrew from the competition, and said he was acting as an individual, not as an officer or member of the playwrights, whose rival in the film writer field is the Screen Writers' Guild. Two years ago Dudley Nichols, then and now president of the guild, refused to accept the trophy voted him as the writer of the best screenplay of 1935, "The Informer."

Mahin's announced reason for withdrawal was that he did not feel the voting qualifications for writers were strict enough. The rules say that all writers fulfilling the qualifications for active membership in the Writers' Guild shall be invited to ballot. The Playwrights have more stringent qualifications for membership than the guild.

gram numerically will be the same as this year's 44 to 52 features, it is expected, and new season plans are well under way, with selling already started in some instances. Thirty-two of this year's films are on percentage.

Final plans for the season will be completed at the executives' conference tomorrow and Sunday in Kansas City, to be attended by Lichtman, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, other home office officials and district managers.

Regional meetings will be held in San Francisco on March 18 and 19 and a second meeting will start in Chicago on March 24 or 25 for two days. Later sessions will be held in New York and a city to be designated in the south. Details will be set in Kansas City.

Executives En Route West

The home office delegation left by train last night and will arrive in Kansas City Saturday morning. In addition to Rodgers, it includes Edward M. Saunders, Si Seadler, William R. Ferguson, Alan F. Cummings and E. W. Aaron. Tom Connors and E. K. O'Shea went direct from Florida to Kansas City. Lichtman left the coast yesterday.

District managers who will attend the meeting, in addition to O'Shea, are J. E. Flynn, Detroit; C. E. Kessnich, Atlanta; G. A. Hickey, Los Angeles; Harris P. Wolfberg, Kansas City, and S. A. Shirley, Chicago. Robert Lynch, Philadelphia branch manager, also will attend.

Rodgers and Lichtman will go to the coast together for studio conferences and the San Francisco regional meeting. Division and district managers will attend the sectional conferences in their areas.

M-G-M British List Not to Exceed Six

M-G-M's production in England will not exceed six films this year, it was said yesterday by Robert Ritchie, director of the British company, who arrived earlier this week from London.

Ritchie is staying close to his hotel room because of illness. He plans to leave on Monday for the coast with Dolores Del Rio and Cedric Gibbons. He will confer with studio officials on production plans. This is his first trip here in a year.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 52
(20th Century-Fox)

The martial note takes up about a third of the footage of this release, which is uniformly interesting and contains something for everybody. Clips of the U. S. fleet preparing for maneuvers at San Diego and a munitions factory turning out naval cannon precede items of the China war, namely, Uncle Sam's Marines embarking from Shanghai; U. S. sailors at Singapore; Japanese troops pushing southward in China, and, as a finale, ashes of dead Japanese "heroes" borne to burial in Yokohama.

A fashions clip will intrigue the ladies, and scenes of five big league baseball teams in spring training will hold the attention of the fans, while fight enthusiasts will like the Golden Gloves finals. Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to England, makes a fine camera and microphone subject as he speaks a few words. Lew Lehr "stars" with the Central Park chimps. It's very funny. Running time, 9½ mins.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 250
(M-G-M)

The "bigger navy battle" takes the spotlight, but the "warfare" so far is of the hot air type, with Senator La-Follette speaking against armaments and Senator Walsh of Massachusetts advocating an "adequate navy." This is the highlight of the release and precedes clips of the fleet's repair shop at San Pedro and squadrons steaming out to Pacific maneuvers.

Warfare also provides a rousing scene of Marshal Graziani, recovered from his wounds, being hailed by the crowds in Italy as conqueror of Ethiopia. There is also a demonstration of a method the French have devised of dropping physicians from an autogiro by means of a rope at field ambulances. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy is shown being greeted on his arrival in London, and he gets a laugh when he says that his nine children will be brought over in "installments." There are the spring "battle of flowers" on the Riviera; the screen test made of the Central Park chimp, the Golden Gloves amateur fight finals and the Yankees in spring practice. Running time, 9 mins.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 67
(RKO)

This is an acceptable, fast-moving reel, with sufficient diversification of material to be "alive." Highlights are the digging out of a considerable part of southern California after the flood, the colorful display of Indian pageantry as a maharaja celebrates an anniversary, Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek departing on a flight in China.

There is more of the routine, and therefore less interest, in shots of the Yankees in training; Ambassador Kennedy in England, and his wife departing from New York with several children; juvenile swimming "stars" in action; New York writers lampooning political figures, and the Navy preparing for war games in the Pacific, with the usual implied flag-waving. Running time, 8½ mins.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 468
(Universal)

The Universal Newsreel editors have introduced an explanatory title frame to describe the individual subjects in such a way that less footage is required for commentaries, thereby making it possible to add several subjects to the standard length reel. Commentaries have not been eliminated but are briefer. The procedure permits the inclusion of 13 subjects in this release as compared with a former average of nine or 10. The pace of the reel is speeded by the brevity of feature material and news subjects of lesser consequence, and with the increased diversity of material, interest is heightened.

Pacific fleet maneuvers and Congressional viewpoints on Naval appropriations have the feature position. New York Golden Gloves finals and a Washington ski meet are high points for action in the release. Of general interest is camera evidence of the national effort to remove old autos from use, and the departure of U. S. Marines from the Shanghai area. The remainder of the subjects are of routine character. Running time, 9 mins.

"Snow" to Stay

Baltimore, March 10. — Isador M. Rappaport, proprietor of the Hippodrome, which has run "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," for four weeks, has leased the Auditorium for an indefinite period and will move the film to that theatre tomorrow.

It is estimated that about 250,000 persons have seen the opus so far here.

Assembly Committee Kills Moran Measure

an impost of $50 on owners who permitted tickets sold in violation of fire department standing room rules had been beaten. Proponents of the Crews projectionists bill feel they can count on many votes in the Rules Committee from members who support State Federation of Labor policies. In the final analysis, A.F.L. support for the bill may be the deciding factor. A bill by Phelps Phelps exempting stations from libel suits and another by Assemblyman Dollinger stipulating that matter broadcast over the air should be classified as libel were both killed outright.

Court Hits Duals Ban in Sales Pact

prohibiting the use of a feature on the same program with another full length picture, it does not hold the prohibitory clause itself to be invalid, according to responsible legal opinion here. Thus, if one distributor desired to enforce the showing of an outstanding picture on a single feature basis, the use of the clause to accomplish this presumably would be legal providing no other distributor was employing a similar clause at the same time.

The circuit court's decision was made without the issuance of an opinion. The court merely affirmed the decision of Federal Judge George A. Welsh, who held in January, 1935, that the major distributors whose contracts included the prohibitory clause had conspired to violate the anti-trust laws. This decision was first appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals in the fall of 1935 and was first affirmed by the higher court in April, 1936.

The distributors were granted a rehearing of the case by the Circuit court in October, 1936. One year ago this month the appeals court issued a memorandum affirming the district court's decision, but on the following day recalled the memorandum with the explanation that it had been issued by mistake. The distributors then petitioned for another rehearing, which was granted and the case reargued last December. Today's decision was the result of the final hearing.

Triple Quota Plan To Be Adjusted

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, March 11.—It is understood on excellent authority that the Government plans to readjust the new triple quota plan in order to meet the objections of exhibitors. The Swinton amendments of yesterday provided that distributors availing themselves of the plan by which films costing £37,500 in labor expense on an approximate total cost of £75,000 may be counted for three, must limit such films to about 50 per cent of the total footage required.

The amendments also set at £25,000 the figure at which films for the triple quota could be acquired outside the country. The minimum on films under the reciprocity clause was reduced to £15,000.

However, it is believed that such adjustments will be made as to eliminate exhibitor criticism of the act as a whole, and to develop legislation generally acceptable to all branches of the trade. It is expected that the committee stage will be concluded Monday.

Court, Irked, Demands More Speed on RKO

Wants "Proper Progress" Within 10 Days

Refusing to grant more than a 10-day postponement of the hearing on the RKO reorganization plan scheduled for yesterday, Federal Judge William Bondy advised attorneys for the proponents of the plan that "proper progress" would have to be reported on March 21 or the court would not countenance further delay in the reorganization of the company.

Hamilton C. Rickaby, attorney for Atlas Corp., the proponent of the plan, requested an adjournment to April 1, advising the court that the amended reorganization plan would probably be ready for submission at that time. Judge Bondy refused the request and voiced impatience over the continued delay. Rickaby had informed the court at the last hearing two weeks ago that amendments to the plan would be completed in a week and would be in form to submit to the court by yesterday. Hollywood Preview

"The Crime of Dr. Hallet"

(Universal)

Hollywood, March 11.—Universal's "The Crime of Dr. Hallet" is not ordinary entertainment. With proper showmanship, this story of a scientist in the Sumatran jungles, seeking to benefit mankind by finding an antitoxin for "red fever," and his devotion to his duty even to committing a crime the results of which condone it, has possibilities of climbing notches above the expected returns. Modifications of the exploitation campaigns which made "Arrowsmith" a box-office champion in 1932 can be used with good effect.

Nevertheless, the story, direction and editing, plus competent performances by Ralph Bellamy, Josephine Hutchinson, William Gargan, Barbara Read and John King, provides good entertainment. The obvious weight of the drama is lifted by injection of comedy in the Lester Cole-Brown Holmes adaptation of the original story by Cole and Carl Dreher. This is Dreher's first screen story credit since he deserted the ranks of Hollywood's top sound and patents men for writing. S. Sylvan Simon directed and Edmund Grainger produced.

Bellamy, as "Dr. Hallet," assigns his young assistant, John King, to menial tasks at the jungle laboratory and rebuffs the youth when the latter attempts to tell him of his own experiment to find "red fever" antitoxin. King innoculates himself with fever germs, hoping to win the respect of Bellamy, but Bellamy's cure fails. Before he dies King mumbles that he himself has discovered the antitoxin, but Bellamy thinks he is delirious. Bellamy discovers King's notes, and assumes his identity to carry on the experiments. He forges King's name to get funds to carry on. King's wife turns up and exposes Bellamy, but the experiments are successful, King draws posthumous credit, and Bellamy finds love with Josephine Hutchinson, another of his assistants.

Reserves Ruling in Loew Holders' Suit

Decision was reserved by Justice Aaron J. Levy yesterday on a motion by Loew's, Inc., to consolidate the six stockholders' actions against directors and officers of the company, which seek an accounting for alleged acts of "mismanagement, waste and extravagance."

Principals in five of the stockholders' suits agreed to the designation of Emil K. Ellis, attorney for Bernard Epstein, who brought the first suit against the company, as principal counsel in the consolidated action. The sole objection to the designation was filed by Harry Bijur, attorney for Hannah Goldstein, a plaintiff. Bijur said other stockholders were joining in the action he represented.

An examination before trial of Loew's officials was begun yesterday with Leopold Friedman the first to be questioned. Trial of the actions is expected this spring.

"Bulldog Drummond's Peril"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, March 11.—Paramount's "Bulldog Drummond's Peril," third of the H. C. (Sapper) McNeile stories offered this season, has John Barrymore, John Howard, Louise Campbell, Reginald Denny, E. E. Clive and Nydia Westman again in the roles with which they have become identified to fans of action melodrama films. The latest presentation, the screenplay of which was written by Stuart Palmer, contains more action than the others, and editing by Edward Dmytryk has kept the movement concise. Stuart Walker produced and James Hogan directed.

The pattern plot of the "Drummond" series again forms the basis for this. Howard, as "Drummond," arouses the ire of Barrymore, as "Nielson," in suspecting certain persons of committing crimes before and after the misdeeds are done. Chief among the supporting players are Porter Hall and Halliwell Hobbes.

This time, an unscrupulous diamond merchant seeking to prevent a scientist from making known his formula for producing diamonds by a chemical process forms the main menace. Two persons are killed, one in Switzerland, the other in London. A home is blown up, mysterious things happen in laboratories, but "Drummond" wins out, to plan again his long foiled marriage to "Phyllis Clavering" (Louise Campbell).

casters goes into a new field which should be thoroughly studied by the committee charged with raising revenue as well as the committee charged with the regulation of the radio broadcasting industry," Thompson said.

In submitting his amendment, McFarlane launched another tirade against the "radio monopoly," stressing his contention that the broadcasters pay nothing to the Government for the privileges they enjoy under their licenses. At no time, however, did he have hope that the amendment would be accepted off-hand, in view of the unwillingness of the House in the past to go into the subject.

KENT IS READY TO AID ARBITRATION

Does Not Share Fear of Anti-Trust Action If All Join

CHICAGO, March 13.—Sidney R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, and his company stand prepared to cooperate in any sound move for the settling of industry disputes, he said here today before proceeding to the coast with John D. Clark and Charles E. McCarthy for studio conferences.

"There is a feeling among some companies that if they act concertedly to set up conciliation or arbitration machinery, it would be considered collusion in violation of the anti-trust laws," Kent said. "That is not our feeling. We are ready to join with other companies in establishing a system of conciliating exhibitor grievances."

Kent recalled that he had been active in similar trade practice moves in the past few years and said that while he would again give his support to such plans he could not take the leadership because he "could not carry the load." He has been cutting his office hours during recent months for health reasons.

He declared that "some exhibitor organization leaders don't want grievances settled because grievances fur-

Idea Was Good

Tom Waller had a bright idea early last week. He discussed it with the right people at Paramount and they agreed it was good.

So Tom summoned all the newsreel cameramen and a regiment of still cameramen and gave a chimpanzee a screen test at the Central Park Zoo. The idea—according to Tom—was to find a successor to Jiggs, the Paramount chimpanzee which appeared in "Her Jungle Love."

The stunt received plenty of space. Two newsreels carried it—Movietone News and News of the Day. Paramount News didn't touch it.

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—Harry Cohn, Columbia president, stated that the studios's differences with Jean Arthur, which led to court action enjoining her from accepting an assignment from any other producer, were settled amicably today.

Universal May Put New Men on Board

Three new members are expected to be elected to the Universal Pictures Co. board of directors to represent holders of the company's first and second preferred stock at the annual meeting of Universal stockholders in Wilmington tomorrow. All present members of the board who are now representatives of the common shareholders are expected to be reelected.

The three vacancies on the board were created by the recent resignations of Meyer Schine and Willard S. McKay, representatives of the first preferred holders, and R. H. Cochrane, representative of the second preferred holders. It is understood that none of the three have consented to be candidates for reelection and, inasmuch as the company has not solicited proxies of the preferred holders, it is regarded as likely that three of the present directors representing the common may be reelected to the board as representatives of the preferred, and the others continued as representatives of the common.

Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president, and Ottavio Prochet have been added to the board since Jan. 1. Other members include J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman; Budd Rogers, Charles R. Rogers, Paul Brown, William Freiday, D. C. Collins, C. N. Taylor and Daniel Sheaffer.

Approve Sunday Shows

Meriden, Conn., March 13.—Sunday vaudeville has been legalized by a new city ordinance, and Loew's, Inc., has changed the recently-inaugurated Saturday vaudeville at the Poli to Sunday.

Insiders' Outlook

SOME weeks back P. J. Wood, business manager of the Ohio I.T.O., stated that passage of the Neely bill would not prevent buying of films in blocks, or groups.

Now Abram F. Myers, replying to S. R. Kent, writes: "The ghost that has been conjured up to frighten little children is that the bill, if enacted, will compel (or result in) the selling of finished pictures one at a time. It would be a strange thing if this requirement were found in the bill because it was drawn with great care to avoid any such result."

Sec. 3 (1) of the bill reads:

> "It shall be unlawful for any distributor of motion picture films in commerce to lease or offer to lease for public exhibition films in a block or group of two or more films at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group only and to require the exhibitor to lease all such films or permit him to lease none; or to lease or offer to lease for public exhibition films in a block or group of two or more at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group and at separate and several prices for separate and several films, or for a number or numbers thereof less than the total number, which total or lump-sum price and separate and several prices shall bear to each other such relation (a) as to operate as an unreasonable restraint upon the freedom of an exhibitor to select and lease for use and exhibition only such film or films of such blocks or group as he may desire and prefer to procure for exhibition, or (b) as tends to require an exhibitor to lease such entire block or graup or forego the lease of any number or numbers thereof, or (c) that the effect of the lease or offer to lease of such films may be substantially to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in the production, distribution, and exhibition of films; or to lease or offer to lease for public exhibition films in any other manner or by any other means the effect of which would be to defeat the purpose of this Act."

Mr. Kent says it would be necessary to sell films individually. Mr. Myers says it wouldn't. What the courts will say about it is anybody's guess. There's the language of the act, anyway.

That disputed section on synopses reads:

> "It shall be unlawful for any distributor of motion-picture films in commerce to lease or offer to lease for public exhibition any motion-picture film over 2,000 feet in length unless such distributor shall furnish the exhibitor at or before the time of making such lease or offer to lease a complete and true synopsis of the contents of such film. Such synopsis shall be made a part of the lease and shall include (a) an outline of the stary, incidents, and scenes depicted or to be depicted, and (b) a statement describing the manner of treatment of dialags concerning and scenes depicting vice, crime, or suggestive of sexual passion."

Mr. Kent says synopses can't be written before a picture is finished. Myers says there's nothing to worry about on synopses unless producers KNOWINGLY make a false statement therein.

The M.P.T.O.A. says there'll be retail selling and retail prices.

The air is filled with charge and counter charge. The Government is called upon to control industry practices. But what can the Government do that the theatreman cannot do to bring more people to the theatre? Laws may be passed, but Federal regulation will not remove the most dangerous obstacle in the way of continued industry progress—the failure to properly merchandise pictures at the box-office.

This is strictly a matter between exhibitor and distributor. Little enough is being done about it.

Showmanship is being neglected. Good pictures with plenty of selling material are allowed to come and go without a nod while those who should be working to get every possible dime are wasting time in argument. It's a cinch to blame everything under the sun for falling grosses. It's another thing to believe that more business can be had, and so believing, to go out and get it.

It may be assumed with safety there are at least 50 features released annually which, thoroughly promoted in all situations by competent theatremen, would each bring in an extra $100,000 in grosses—a sizable sum no one is now getting. Five millions of dollars, a conservative figure by expert opinion, is to be had and shared by both exhibitor and distributor.

These extra and necessary admissions are now being lost to the industry and will continue to be lost until showmanship rather than legislation is regarded as the industry's salvation.

The Museum of Modern Art started something a few months ago by digging up the oldest films it could find and showing them regularly. Schools and colleges began asking for the programs.

Now the Hotel New Yorker is putting them on in its Terrace Restaurant. Little Theatres and others are showing them.

In the good old days custard pies were custard pies; slapstick was slapstick. Now they're art —aged-in-the-can art.

Phil Lavene and Alan Weisman acted as joint and jolly monarchs. Committeemen reported the club's first annual charity show set for March 13 probably would be a sell-out.

Hollywood Previews

"Girl of the Golden West"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, March 13.—If this Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy vehicle doesn't pull and please a profitable proportion of the duo's far-flung public then it will not be because Producer William Anthony McGuire didn't pour into it everything in the great M-G-M bag of tricks. It goes back to David Belasco's stage original for a nucleus, to Liszt and Gounod for music to supplement the Sigmund Romberg-Gus Kahn score, to Robert Z. Leonard's years of directorial experience for safeguard against the faults inherent in the cinemusical format and to the rich M-G-M player roster for a supporting cast with name value.

It packs a lot of entertainment, a wealth of good singing, a great dance sequence staged by Albertina Rasch and some of the best acting the stars have yet achieved.

Walter Pidgeon, Leo Carrillo, H. B. Warner, Noah Beery and Buddy Ebsen are outstanding in the support both as to performances and marquee importance. Half a dozen other names almost as well known denote the general excellence of the personnel. Isabel Dawn and Joyce Degaw wrote the screenplay, which concerns the girl who grows up with the west to fall in love with a goodhearted bandit and play out a losing hand of draw poker with her sheriff suitor with the desperado's liberty and her consent to marriage as the stake. A happy ending is arrived at in this version by the mutual consent of all hands.

Miss MacDonald's handling of the several songs given her is superb, but she gets best audience results with Liszt's "Liebestraume" and Gounod's "Ave Maria." Eddy is at his best with the rousing marching song which brings him into the picture in a manner reminiscent of "Naughty Marietta." Eddy's acting, it is to be noted, is in no sense reminiscent of the things he did in "Rosalie."

Carrillo is top hole as the bandit's lieutenant, the principal comedy role, and Pidgeon handles a western gambler assignment masterfully. Beery is stoutly effective as a Villa-esque brigand, Warner scores as a missionary and Ebsen adds a whimsically sentimental relief. The setting is California in 1850 and the place is still, despite floods and realtors, a pretty handsome place to look at. In a film finished off in the sepia process and shot from all the best angles, the work is a technical treat.

Running time, 120 minutes. "G."

"Bluebeard's Eighth Wife"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, March 13.—Paramount apparently determined that the time had come when it should plunge into the current rage for the smart and riotous comedy type of screen attraction, and picked Ernst Lubitsch as the plunger-in-chief. With that skipper at the production and direction helm, it might be expected that the result will be smart entertainment.

For the most part it is, but there are moments when the situations and dialogue become perhaps a trifle too smart, when there is just the slightest tendency to spell "smart" with a "u" somewhere about the middle. Likewise there are a number of moments when the story falls below its own general standard, and it hardly is to be considered the tops of its kind. For all that, however, it contrives to be speedy and zestful entertainment, with an occasional high spot, and should please the patrons in any location.

Perhaps the greatest asset in the production is the cast, which is strongly headed by Gary Cooper and Claudette Colbert, a pair of the best names in the business. They work hard and earnestly—and mayhap too hard at times, but they put their material over. In excellent support are Edward Everett Horton, David Niven, Elizabeth Patterson and Herman Bing.

From the play by Alfred Savoir and an English play adaption by Charlton Andrews, Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder have fashioned a screenplay which makes Cooper a millionaire business man and Miss Colbert the attractive and mentally alert daughter of inpecunious Horton, a French nobleman with as much family and pride as he lacks money. He meets her in a men's shop, to the tune of an astute discussion of the relative value of wearing the top or bottom of pajamas. From that point follows a hectic pursuit, a marriage for money, and a planned divorce, with Cooper trying to break down his wife's resistance, and she returning as good as she receives. It's hectic and lively, but is all square when the curtain rings down.

Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

"Snow White" Cracks Mark On the Loop

Chicago, March 13.—All records for attendance and receipts were broken this week at the Palace by "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." U. S. Films Leading In Swedish Market

By RAGNAR ALLBERG

Stockholm, March 2.—The United States accounted for 160 of the 334 features released in Sweden during 1937. The year showed no reduction in the domination of the market by American product, but indicated a slight increase in the popularity of French and English film, with a corresponding decline in the importation of German pictures.

A total of 26 features were domestically produced in 1937. The year generally was considered good, and the outlook for the current year is bright. New theatres in the country during 1937 totaled 22, and a great many others have been modernized. The country has a total of 1,800 houses, of which only 370 have performances every day. All are sound equipped.

Svensk Filmundistri, the leading production company in the country, was responsible for 13 of the 26 native films produced. Europa Film produced seven features and a number of shorts, while Ire Film has made six features and several shorts.

Germany showed gains with 120 films released, against 112 in the previous year, as did France with 23 releases against 16 and England with 17 as compared with 11. Hungary's contribution was 10, the same as in 1936; Czechoslovakia distributed seven in 1937 and eight in 1936; Poland two as compared with none in the previous year; Switzerland two, against one release in 1936; Sweden, one, as in the previous year, and Russia, one.

Says Muzak Is Not Television Hookup

Warners' purchase of Muzak Corp., which supplies music programs by direct wire to homes and business places from a central station is not intended as an ultimate television hookup for the film company, according to Waddill Catchings, head of Muzak and a Warner director.

Catchings said that experiments with the A. T. & T. coaxial cable between New York and Philadelphia have proved it impractical for television purposes and it will be many years before the proper frequency ranges can be found for direct wire transmission of television.

Warners last December announced purchase of Muzak and that it would also acquire control of Wired Radio, Inc., of which Muzak is a subsidiary. Contracts are still in preparation.

Nazi Austria Coup New Blow To U. S. Film Market There

The dramatic coup by which Austria as a nation virtually ceases to exist, and becomes an integral part of Nazi Germany will mean a sharp curtailment of the Austrian market insofar as American screen product is concerned, it was generally agreed in foreign distribution circles here yesterday.

The Austrian market for American films has been none too strong in any case for several years, but a further weakening of its potentialities as a source of revenue appears certain at this time as a result of what apparently amounts to annexation of Austria under the Nazi rule.

Only three of the eight major American companies still maintain offices in Germany — Paramount, M-G-M and 20th Century-Fox—while the other five—Warners, Universal, Columbia, United Artists and RKO—have withdrawn entirely from the German market. Complete withdrawal of all American firms from Germany has been advocated by Harry M. Warner. It is possible that some American distributors may follow the same course in Austria that they have pursued in Germany, in view of the domination from Berlin.

Although foreign distribution circles were unwilling to make official statements and to put themselves on record with regard to the situation, it was the concensus of opinion that to all practical purposes the same conditions with respect to the importation of American pictures that have existed for several years past in Germany now will obtain in Austria.

Expected within a short time is the overlordship of the rigorous German censorship over Austrian film matters, making one censorship for the entire Austro-German area.

In the past year a total of 128 American films was released in Austria by American film companies, as compared with 155 in 1936, according to a recent annual report of the film bureau of the Vienna Chamber of Commerce. At the same time there were certain restrictions on the release of Austrian revenue from that country to the United States, but they were considered not an insurmountable obstacle to film trade with Austria.

In Germany, on the other hand,

No Appeal Coming On Phila. Ruling

West Virginia Tax On Films is Voided

The application of the West Virginia one per cent gross sales tax to film distribution revenues in the state was held to be illegal by a special Federal statutory court at Charleston yesterday, distributors' home offices were advised.

No "B" Films Planned, Says W. F. Rodgers

KANSAS CITY, March 14.—A schedule of 52 features will be released by M-G-M in 1938-'39, it was stated here by William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, who presided at the conference of home office officials and district managers which ended here today.

Thirty-six of the total will be in "a big-budget, big-star value classification with the other 16 on a sliding scale of production expenditure, but produced without regard to stinting on the production requirements of the story," Rodgers said. "B" pictures will be eliminated, he declared.

The sales policy was not officially announced, but it was said that the present policy would continue and that, in the final analysis, the terms would depend largely on the individual deals made.

A departure for the new season will be three pictures in Technicolor on a contract for six recently signed with Technicolor, Inc. Five big-scale musicals are scheduled. Two films will be

Films Using Puppets Demonstrated by Pal

Films produced with puppets and with a third-dimension effect were demonstrated yesterday by George Pal, their producer, who has been making these pictures for the last five years for commercial sponsors.

About 3,000 individual figures are used in an eight-minute subject. There is no string mechanism and the puppets are not moved as in the Russian "Gulliver," but individual puppets are used to represent the different stages of movement. Thus, they are made to sing, talk, walk, ride horseback and go through other motions. Two of the shorts were screened, "Philips Big Broadcast," made for a radio concern, and "Love on the Range," produced for Horlick. The advertising message is subdued. The films are in Technicolor.

En Route to Hollywood

Pal arrived here recently from London with David A. Bader. They left last night for Hollywood where Pal hopes to interest the studios in his development. His films are made by a staff of 25 at his studio in Eindhoven, Holland. He said he has been making eight a year for the two sponsors and produced some for the Dutch Government to promote telephone and postal services.

Pal said that it takes about a month to make a film and that the sets used are 15 feet wide. He said the cost of a subject is $15,000.

Moss Against Control Of Theatre Agencies

ALBANY, March 14.—Objections were voiced here today by License Commissioner Paul Moss of New York against certain clauses in the employment agency bill of Assemblyman Harold C. Ostertag which would put theatrical agencies, excepting only large theatre circuits and the National Broadcasting and Columbia radio networks, under the industrial commissioner outside of New York and under Moss within the metropolitan area. Moss suggested amending the bill.

The Senate Finance Committee held a hearing on three Senate bills of John J. Howard and A. Spencer Feld as well as on the Ostertag measure.

The drive to put over the "full crew" bill started today in committee with theatre owners of upstate New York again communicating with their legislators urging opposition. The bill seems to have an even chance of coming out of committee.

No definite decision was reached on the proposed feature cartoon as Schlesinger is ill in the hospital from a kidney ailment. He will discuss the matter of a feature with Gradwell L. Sears upon the latter's arrival here this month.

For this season M-G-M scheduled a minimum of 44 features and a maximum of 52. By March 18 the company will have given a national release to 27.

The shorts program is still under consideration. During this season the company is releasing 94 shorts, including 13 two-reelers. There is a possibility that the total number may be reduced.

Cronin's "The Citadel," with Robert Donat and Rosalind Russell, King Vidor directing.

If the Supreme Court finds in favor of the distributors in the Dallas appeal there would be no necessity of appealing the Philadelphia decision, it was said. Hollywood Previews

"This Marriage Business"

(RKO)

Hollywood, March 14.—"This Marriage Business" is rich in those audience values appealing to most theatregoers. It is a deft combination of comedy, romance and melodrama. It is laid in a small town and is played by small town characters and a smattering of big city sharpshooters.

The story has been given a refreshing and breezy treatment and has been pointed directly at those living in small towns and neighborly communities and those who like to recall such associations. The result is a clean, wholesome, exciting show. With Victor Moore presented in a role that fits him to a "T" and the featured and supporting players, Allan Lane, Vicki Lester, Jack Carson, Jack Arnold, Richard Lane, Frank M. Thomas, Cecil Kellaway, George Irving, Paul Guilfoyle and Leona Roberts checking in convincing performances, the film rolls along in easy, attention-holding style.

Chasing an eloping heiress, Lane runs into a bigger story when he encounters County Clerk Moore, whose boast it is that none of the couples to whom he has issued marriage licenses has ever sought divorce. Publicity for Moore and the town puts both on the map. A romance between Lane and Moore's daughter, Miss Lester, progresses. The interlocking incidents result in Lane putting Moore up as a candidate for mayor on a reform ticket. Moore is threatened with indictment for murder as gangsterism takes a hand in politics. All is righted in the end.

The original story by Mel Riddle and Alex Ruben is a down-to-earth bit of writing and the style in which Gladys Atwater and J. Robert Bren adapted and Christy Cabanne directed give it character and atmosphere.

Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Island in the Sky"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, March 14.—This is one of the better murder mysteries of the season, a briskly played working out of a puzzling background which supplies, when fully disclosed, an unsuspected solution of the crime. Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen definitely improve their professional standing in performance of the romantic leads and Paul Kelly, who enters the picture well down toward the close, furnishes a strong characterization. The film is one of the best Sol M. Wurtzel has produced and should give good account of itself on any program.

Whalen is an assistant district attorney about to marry Miss Stuart, his secretary, when he is asked to look in on a murder case just brought to police attention. Although evidence seeming to prove the slain man's son guilty is quickly unearthed, and a conviction obtained, Miss Stuart declines to believe the young man guilty and carries on first hand investigations which result, ultimately, in exposure of the guilty man's identity, her own life and others coming into jeopardy meanwhile.

The title derives from a night club on the 70th floor of a Manhattan skyscraper (which doesn't look too much like the Rainbow Room) where the picture opens and closes. Herbert L. Leeds directed, keeping movement smoothly swift, and the screenplay by Frances Hyland and Albert Ray from Jerry Cady's original story is a well knit composition.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Flight Into Nowhere"

(Darmour-Columbia)

Hollywood, March 14.—Jack Holt's latest starring vehicle, "Flight Into Nowhere," will be ranked among his better pictures. It is a successful amalgamation of plenty of action with a solid, stable plot which utilizes elements of gripping drama. With a background of aviation and laid in the South American jungle, "Flight Into Nowhere" is the story of a weakling, who is an incurable showoff.

Supporting Holt are Dick Purcell, Jacqueline Wells, James Burke and others. William Bloom and Clarence Jay Schneider wrote the original story and Jefferson Parker and Gordon Rigby the screenplay. Lewis D. Collins directed.

In content, composition, performance and presentation, "Flight Into Nowhere" is in the best Larry Darmour manner and reflects pointedly the steadily advancing prestige of the Darmour insignia.

Holt, as chief pilot of an airline, sets out to find Purcell, a pilot who has disobeyed orders in flying over uncharted jungle area. After great difficulty, they find a tribe of Indians who are keeping Purcell. Purcell, still cocky, is killed by an Indian as he is about to leave for civilization, because of his ill treatment of his Indian "wife."

Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

In addition, 26 American dubbings were released by local French distributors, including eight of Columbia's current product released by Osso. The remaining 18 are 10 Columbia films and two Universal pictures which were produced from 1933 to 1936, and six old independent American films.

The seriousness of the situation is indicated by the fact that a meeting has been held here, presided over by Harold Smith, representing the Hays office in Paris, to study the matter. It has been indicated that American companies here may reduce the number of their employes until better conditions of distribution exist. American companies have complained that too many dubbing licenses have been given for German product and to French distributors.

He said that headquarters probably would be moved to New York after the committee had decided on a definite course of action in a few days.

Stern made it clear that although he is an attorney he would not act as counsel for the committee. He served as counsel for many years to the late Jules Mastbaum, organizer of the Stanley Company of America.

Anne Rosenthal, home office attorney for Grand National, said yesterday that while Grand National Films, Inc., is a Delaware corporation, Grand National Studios, Inc., is a California corporation and that the company's principal assets were transferred to the coast about a year ago when International Cinema, Inc., was given a contract for printing and possession of the negatives for that purpose.

Miss Rosenthal expressed the opinion that the committee's challenge of the California court's jurisdiction would not make much headway, at least not until after the March 21 hearing in the Federal district court in Los Angeles which is to decide whether the reorganization proceedings are to remain in effect.

Grand National's headquarters were recently transferred to the coast by Edward L. Alperson, president.

West Virginia officials, distributors were advised, are considering an appeal from the decision to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Equity to Decide on Status of President

The council of Actors Equity Ass'n is expected to decide at a meeting today whether the post of president of the organization will be a paid or honorary office. The decision is expected to influence to an important degree the coming nominations for the post as several candidates who might otherwise accept the nomination would be unable to do so if the post were to be made an honorary one.

The Equity membership will complete the nominating committee of nine with the election on Friday of six members of the committee. The other three members were designated by the council last week. The annual election is scheduled for late in May. Burgess Meredith, acting president, has stated he will not be a candidate for reelection.

Nazi Austria Coup Hits our Film Market

restrictions on the release of fund have been prohibitive, and at the sa time the German censorship has so rigid that comparatively fe American pictures have been admitte for release there. It was pointed ou here yesterday that the German censorship authorities—the Nazi Government, in effect, since the entire industry there is under the direct domination of the Nazi regime—are i the habit of accepting or rejectin pictures indiscriminately, often without any explanation of rejections.

It was said that approximately 5 American pictures were released i Germany during 1937. In effect, has been summed up in this fashion If there is an insufficient total of German product to take care of the need of the German theatres, a certai number of foreign pictures might b admitted, but if there is an ampl supply for German exhibition need then none is admitted, and there i of course, no appeal from such decision.

No Dubbing in Germany

There has been, too, a certai amount of dubbing of American product in Austria, in the past year so, but none in Germany.

Another phase of the situation a result of the Nazi coup which wa cited yesterday is that of employ of American companies in Austria, fo the most part centered in Vienna. is felt that many who will not pro acceptable to the Nazis, because th are Jews or Catholics, will have be moved from Vienna promptl Exactly the same situation existed Berlin when the Nazis took pow there, and a number of American employes were moved to Vienna.

Petrillo Breathes Fire and Brimstone in Address Here

James Petrillo, firebrand president of the Chicago local of the Federation of Musicians, spoke before the executive board of the National Association of Performing Artists at the Hotel Astor yesterday, and delivered a typical Petrillo oration, full of smoke and brimstone.

Regarding the independent radio station owners and operators of phonograph record-vending machines who play the records of the performing artists and pocket the profit without turning over a royalty fee to the Association, Petrillo said they are "chiselers" engaged in a "lousy racket."

Petrillo came to New York to consider the N. A. P. A.'s offer to make him president of the organization, with $100,000 as the initial fee to head their fight to prevent radio stations and slot machines from playing the recordings of members without a royalty. The N. A. P. A. has a membership of approximately 500, principally band leaders, and was organized some years ago by Fred Waring. He has been a leader in their fight for recognition.

"Will Stop, or Else"

Midway in his talk Petrillo digressed from the radio to the film industry. He said that talking pictures had put 22,000 musicians out of work, and had replaced them with 300.

"We're not going to swallow that kind of treatment much longer," he shouted. "The American Federation of Musicians is just about ready to say 'stop this racket' to the studios, and when the A. F. M. says 'stop,' the studios will stop, or else."

Petrillo congratulated the N. A. P. A. for attempting to put a halt to the use of recordings by radio stations and other interests which derive a profit from the use of the recording, without in turn paying a fee to the artists who made the record. Petrillo said $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 is the annual loss to the musicians through this practice.

He said the A. F. M.'s license for transcription and recording companies would help the N. A. P. A. in its fight in this direction. Petrillo said there were approximately 300 independent stations which are now "chiseling" on musicians via recordings and transcriptions. He said that unless these stations soon sign the A. F. of M. agreement, the union will stop completely the supply of music to them. He added, however, that he was confident that 90 per cent of the owners of independent stations would sign the agreement.

Petrillo, before concluding, said he would consider the $100,000 a year offer to head the N. A. P. A.

Maurice J. Speiser, counsel for the association, delivered a report of progress made since the last meeting. He said that the performing rights of the artist has been recognized in Argentina, Brazil, Ecuador, Uruguay and Chile, and in France, Czechoslovakia and Italy.

Among the prominent bandleaders who attended yesterday's meeting at the Astor were Whiteman, Ben Bernie, George Olsen, Phil Spitalny, Benny Goodman, Don Voorhees, Isham Jones, Xavier Cugat, Emile Coleman, Ruby Newman, Harold Stern and Walter Damrosch and Fritz Reiner.

Duals Ban in France to Be Passed Soon

Would Seriously Affect American Companies

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, March 15.—The situation of American film companies in France today took a decided turn for the worse, with the report that the measure banning double features will be passed shortly by the French Parliament.

The enactment of such legislation would make the position of the American distributors practically impossible here, since the majority of the country's exhibitors show duals which are composed of a French film as the leading attraction and an American picture, dubbed into French, as the secondary feature.

American interests here contend that the banning of double bills is contrary to the most recent Franco-American commercial treaty guaranteeing to American companies the advantages they had before. Considering a dual ban in violation, it is indicated that the American companies

English Disturbed By Quota Changes

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, March 15.—The British film industry generally is dissatisfied with the action of the House of Lords committee considering the Films Bill in increasing the quota for distributors and exhibitors. It is felt in some quarters that, although the amendments calling for an increase in the quotas were sponsored independently, they actually represent a "punitive" attitude on Government's part.

The exhibitors will meet and discuss the situation probably on Thursday. The measure is expected to

U.A. Purchase Moves Suffer Slight Chill

Goldwyn Will Go Abroad To Talk with Korda

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—Trade talk lately concerned with the likelihood that the Whitney-backed Selznick International would purchase the Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks partnerships in United Artists under some form of mutual control with Samuel Goldwyn was hastily revised last night when it became known that Goldwyn plans to sail for London March 23 in company with Fairbanks.

The swift assumption was that the recently abandoned Goldwyn-Korda purchase plan utilizing British capital is to be revived, indicating discussions

NATIONAL SALES MEETS CURTAILED

Golden Will Be Vice-President

Edward A. Golden, Monogram sales manager, will be elected a vice-president of the company in charge of exchange operations and executive assistant to W. Ray Johnston, president, at a meeting of the board of directors of the company on Friday, Johnston stated yesterday.

The change is being made to permit Johnston to spend additional time at the Monogram studio with Scott Dunlap, vice-president and production head, it was said. The move will place Golden in charge of the home office during Johnston's absences at the studio. A successor to Golden as Monogram sales manager will be designated within the next few days.

Golden has been sales head of the company since its inception.

Regionals Favored This Year as 20th-Fox and M-G-M Lead Way

National sales conventions will be dispensed with by a majority of the principal distributors this year, it appears at present. With M-G-M and 20th Century-Fox departing from custom to hold reduced sales meetings, sales managers of other companies are pondering the advisability of holding sales conferences or regional meetings in the place of large national conventions.

Most of the companies have not as yet decided what type of meeting to have, but there is considerable sentiment this year for regional gatherings attended by home office officials, district and branch managers. M-G-M is following this procedure. 20th Century-Fox will hold a sales conference in Kansas City on April 1 and 2 which will be attended by about 90 and, following, there will be branch meetings at which new season's policies and product will be outlined to the field staffs.

Those who favor the smaller meetings say that large conventions are unwieldly and that the individual salesmen do not get the value from a mass explanation by company officials that they obtain in smaller groups. Furthermore, it was said, much of the ballyhoo characteristic of a large national convention has lost its effect on the salesmen. The economy factor is also being taken into consideration this year.

The opposing school of thought

Mystery Shrouds Austrian Radio Officials' Status

The international airways have been choked with short wave broadcasts from the continent since Hitler's annexation of Austria, but not one word has filtered through regarding the fate of the officials of the official Austrian radio system, "Osterreichische Rundspruch," known in this country as "Ravag."

One of the reasons advanced for the concern felt here for the safety of these men is that "Ravag," under their supervision, neglected propaganda for entertainment, despite its governmental control.

It is believed that "Ravag" has ceased to exist by that title, and is now a general part of the official German radio system, Reichs-Rundfunk-Gesselschaft.

Network officials here, it is known, have queried their European and Continental representatives regarding the status of the directors of "Ravag," but thus far their queries have been unanswered.

"Ravag" is composed of two primary stations and six subsidiary stations, and because of the excellence of its programs it long has been one of the most important radio transmitters in Europe. Its programs have been picked up consistently by networks throughout the world.

The primary stations are located in Vienna, with the broadcasts emanating from Ravag House. According to Ravag's most recent log, published late in 1937, one station in Vienna has a power of 100,000 watts; the other has a power of 1,500 watts. The lat-

ITOA Asks $25,000 Maximum on Loans

Long-term loans for exhibitors covering types of theatre rehabilitation and renovation and equipment purchases not now covered by the Federal Housing Administration credits will be sought by the I. T. O. A. Applications on behalf of exhibitors will be made to the Reconstruction Finance Corp. Applications will also be filed with F. H. A. for loans coming within its jurisdiction.

Harry Brandt, I. T. O. A. president, said he is endeavoring to have the maximum credits set at $25,000 for individual loans, but the Government agencies so far have limited the amount to $10,000.

The F. H. A. has restricted credits to immovable equipment and the present negotiations are to obtain Government loans for all types of equipment, including booth installations. It is also sought to have the loans cover such work as painting and redecorating. It was made clear that I. T. O. A. will not make application for loans to cover new theatre construction.

Displaying the usual production values which make this a significant reel even when important news is wanting, this release measures up in all respects to Movietone's standards of interest and entertainment.

The lead position goes to maneuvers of the French fleet in the Mediterranean. Other international coverage includes the return to Tokyo of General Matsui, commander of the Japanese army in China, and the attendance of King George VI at an amateur boxing bout in London. Mother-in-law day in Texas with Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt as the guest of honor is diverting, and Tom Mooney's plea to the California legislature for pardon is of general interest. The sports department includes some excellent shots of individual events in the K. of C. indoor track meet at Madison Square Garden and five big league teams at their training camps. The award of the Irving Thalberg Memorial trophy to Darryl Zanuck at the Academy dinner in Hollywood is included.

Lew Lehr gains his usual quota of laughs with some additions to his already remarkable list of inventions. Running time, 11 mins. K.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 251
(M-G-M)

Capitalizing on the recent German coup in central Europe, News of the Day has gathered enough stock material together in this release to portray graphically the seriousness of the development to Czechoslovakia. The subject depicts the Czechs military machine in recent maneuvers, the precarious geographical position of the nation and adds a statement of Czech policy by its minister to this country in Washington.

Other subjects are of average interest and include the celebration of Lloyd George's golden wedding anniversary; Tom Mooney's appeal to the California legislature for clemency; the First Lady and five governors at a mother-in-law celebration at Amarillo, Texas, and demonstration of a new air tunnel to test the effects of wind currents on airplanes. The sports department includes some good shots of the K. of C. games at Madison Square Garden, the Chicago White Sox in training and King George VI at an amateur boxing bout in London. Running time, 9 mins. K.

Paramount News
No. 64
(Paramount)

The big news, journalistically on the radio, in films and otherwise is the German invasion of Austria. But this reel gives first place to the flower show at Grand Central Palace. The Nazi "putsch" is taken care of in the second lead. The rest of the reel is an interesting display of aviation, sport and David Lloyd George's golden wedding anniversary.

The Austrian "story" was culled from the stock shot library. It offers scenes of everyone and everything concerned in the affair, but Hitler. The swastika is seen flying at the Austrian embassy in Washington and Senator Pitman has his say on the situation, informally, in front of what looks like the Union Station at the Capital. There are good shots of the experimental devices at Langley Field, Va.; Lloyd George at Cardiff, Wales; Max Baer, battered but telling how he is attempting to make a pugilistic comeback, and the Pittsburgh Pirates at San Bernardino, Cal., where the cameraman utilizes a number of novel camera stunts to cleverly put the subject over. Running time, 9 mins. P.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 68
(RKO)

The Austrian situation, the big news of the week is almost entirely neglected in this reel. The only mention of the event is made during the display of scenes of the French Navy off Nice. There is no assemblage of library shots. Attention is drawn to the significance of the fleet as Germany's expansion policy, threatening the Franco-Czech alliance is narrated. The rest of the reel is composed of diverse, interesting material culled from run-of-the-mill sources.

There are shots of a fire in an excelsior warehouse, the testing of airplane models in a wind tunnel, baseball teams at their training quarters, the Chicago boy who writes upside down and backwards. figures in the T.V.A. dispute, Tom Mooney attending a pardon hearing, Max Baer discoursing on his hurts and offspring, Lloyd George celebrating his golden wedding anniversary with a few quips and Glenn Cunningham winning the Columbian Mile at the K. of C. games at Madison Square Garden. Running time, 8 mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
No. 649
(Universal)

Universal has dramatized the German annexation of Austria by assembling clips showing soldiers on parade in Vienna, Italians at Brenner Pass, Leon Blum in Paris, the Red army marching in Moscow, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney advising this country to mind its own business at Washington, army formations at Prague, and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlin leaving 10 Downing St., London. The whole is tied together by Graham McNamee's commentary. It's probably more effective than actual scenes of the arrival of Storm Troops would have been.

One of the surprises of the reel, and an interesting human interest angle, is the appearance of Tom Mooney before the California House and cut-ins of legislators listening to him. Mooney's vigor is astonishing.

The sport interests is taken care of by shots of Glenn Cunningham running in the Columbian mile of the Knights of Columbus games. A plane tester that actually makes planes fly in a wind tunnel ought to interest juvenile fans. Other subjects include shots of Gabriele d'Annunzio's funeral, spring baseball practice, the flower show and a man's fashion show. Running time 9½ mins. J.

Duals Ban in France to Be Passed Soon

will register vigorous protest if the law is enacted.

The American distributors here are considerably disturbed, seeing a threat to their operations here, in view of the fact that the quota on dubbed films for the first half of 1938 already is exhausted, and the attacks from German sources, the trade unions and Communist elements. The trade unions are demanding an increase of the tax on dubbing and higher taxes on raw film and the importation of prints.

If all these measures were to be made effective, American distributors would be faced with the necessity of reducing or even possibly suspending activity in the French market. The situation even at present is difficult, in view of the strong competition offered by French product, which is increasing in quality and popularity, and the general business depression.

Informed circles have disclosed that Jean Zay, Minister of National Education for the last two years, and L. O. Frossard, new Minister of Propaganda, are trying to rush through to enactment bills which would give either one virtual control of the film industry. It is a case of competition between the two cabinet ministers for film control. The two measures are similar, and both have as their most important element the banning of dual bills.

English Disturbed By Quota Changes

reach the report stage in the House of Lords next Tuesday, with a possibility existing that there will be still further changes. The formal third reading of the measure is expected next Thursday, after which the measure will be returned to the House of Commons for final ratification. It will become a law on April 1.

Under the amendments as approved by the Lords committee yesterday, the exhibitors' quota will start at 15 per cent instead of 12½ per cent as in the bill passed by the House of Commons. The distributor quota will start at 20 per cent under the new bill, instead of 15 per cent, as originally scheduled.

Equity Denies Radicalism

Actors' Equity Council and officers yesterday denied the existence of a subversive group in the organization, or the control of the council by such a group, in a statement issued following a meeting of the council. George Arliss has alleged that Communists are a force in Equity.

The council also resented the recent attack on Burgess Meredith.

Will Quiz Nathanson On Canada Rate Rise

TORONTO, March 15.—N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp., will be called before the select committee of the Canadian House of Commons which is to investigate the activities of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. in connection with the proposal to raise the annual license fee for receiving sets from $2 to $2.50.

Nathanson will be examined as a governor of the corporation, along with other members of the directorate, before the committee, of which Arthur L. Beaubien of Manitoba is chairman, examines General Manager Gladstone Murray and other officials. The investigation is scheduled to open toward the close of March and it is understood that the fee increase will not go into effect in April, as originally intended, pending the outcome of the study.

One of the questions to be asked at the inquiry concerns the amounts paid to the big networks in the United States for commercially sponsored radio programs now released over the Canadian chain of stations. Nathanson was appointed to the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. in 1936 when the original Canadian Radio Commission was superseded by the corporation.

Quigley Urges New Standards In Advertising

Tells Marketing Men of Film Experiences

Application of the principles of the industry's advertising code to general advertising was urged by Martin Quigley, president of Quigley Publications, yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the New York Chapter of the American Marketing Association at the Advertising Club.

In stressing the need for higher standards in advertising in the general field of advertising, Quigley cited a number of cases that he had noticed recently which, he said, transgressed the bounds of decency and good taste.

He drew a parallel between the industry before the introduction of the production and advertising codes and

NEELY BILL VOTE CHANCE HELD DIM

Probe Is Ordered Into Air Monopoly

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Demanding an immediate investigation of alleged monopoly in the chain broadcasting, Federal Communications Commissioner T. A. M. Following almost a full day of discussion of the matter, the resolution was made a special order for con-

Crowded Program, Hope Of May Adjournment Must Be Hurdled

WASHINGTON, March 16. — Desire of Administration leaders to adjourn the current session of Congress in May, if possible, is seen in Washington as barring any chance of enactment this year of the Neely block-booking bill or other motion picture legislation.

The Neely bill, reported five weeks ago by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, is on the Senate calendar. However, the Senate has not taken up the calendar for many weeks and probably will not do so for some time to come, having been delayed in its work by the fights on the anti-lynching and reorganization bills.

When the measure is reached, it is expected to be the subject of a controversy over whether the committee acted properly in reporting the bill on the basis of hearings held two years ago without making any effort to bring its information up to date, and a motion will probably be offered

Hitler's Censors and Fog Make It Bad Day for Reels

If a sour—pardon!—discordant note appears in today's issues of the five newsreels don't berate the editors. Blame it on Hitler and yesterday's weather.

Any newsreel makeup day has its full share of tribulations, but yesterday couldn't have been much worse for the five reels unless it had been visiting day for the auditors, as well. Early in the morning cables began trickling in from Vienna, spelling out messages of woe. Resident cameramen jailed for photographing Hitler's entry into the city with its attendant demonstrations. Strict censorship of all material filmed in the city. Exclusive camera rights granted to German film companies.

The afternoon was no better. In fact it was worse. From lunch time to makeup hour it brought a succession of reports of planes being grounded

WEEKS JOINS MONOGRAM

George W. Weeks was named general sales manager of Monogram Pictures yesterday, succeeding Edward A. Golden, who is slated to be elected a vice-president of the company and executive assistant to W. Ray Johnston, president, at a meeting of the Monogram board of directors tomorrow. Weeks' appointment will be effective Monday.

The new Monogram sales manager resigned recently as sales manager of G. B., a post which he had held for three years. Prior to that he had held important sales posts with Paramount for a number of years, among them that of general manager of distribution for Famous Players-Lasky. He entered the film business in 1910 as supervisor of the Kunsky circuit in Detroit and subsequently was a Universal and Metro franchise holder in Michigan.

As founder and president of Sono-Art Productions, Inc., and president of Mayfair Pictures Corp., Weeks produced many independent films, among them "Rainbow Man" and "Honeymoon Lane," which starred Eddie Dowling. The pictures were released by Paramount.

"Break the News" Is Lively Comedy

London, March 16.—"Break the News," Jack Buchanan production starring himself and Maurice Chevalier, which was previewed here last night, is a lively comedy directed by Rene Clair in Gallic vein, made up of equal parts of naive slapstick and subtle wit.

Chevalier is entertaining as a chorus boy, posing as a murderer for publicity purposes, who is saved from execution at the last minute by the arrival of Buchanan, who has been in difficulties as the mistaken general in a burlesqued Ruritanian revolution. The casting is good. The film opens slowly, but the pace accelerates to a hilarious finale.

all over the south and west with packages of film aboard for today's issues of the reels. Tornado pictures from Illinois and the south were halted at Pittsburgh. Pictures of a San Francisco submarine launching were halted in Cleveland. Snow stuff from Sun Valley, Idaho, reposed in cans in Chicago. The story was the same in all newsreel offices here. Movietone, News of the Day, Paramount, RKO, Pathe and Universal.

One plane, unable to land at Newark, came through to unload at Floyd Bennett field. It carried pictures of the Pacific fleet's departure from San Diego for war games, and a few shots of lesser consequence. The reels went to bed last night as usual, of course, and probably in better shape than their editors.

Universal learned that its Vienna correspondent, Julius Jonak, had been arrested for attempting to defy the camera monopoly granted the German film companies on Hitler's Austrian coup. Pathe's Edouard Thule, assigned to Vienna from Paris, was imprisoned for the same reason. Movietone News and Paramount, both of which had their own men in Vienna, were unable to get word from their representatives and were in the dark up to a late hour as to whether or not the men succeeded in shooting their own pictures and, if so, in getting them out of the country without their being censored.

Exchange arrangements between the reels and European cameramen will make some footage available to all newsreels. How much of it will be usable here, in view of the censorship imposed, is not yet known.

Quigley Urges New Standards In Advertising

the advertising business, and urged [illegible] listeners to benefit by the industry's experience in order to prevent a public protest.

A round table discussion following Quigley's talk was of the consensus that his analysis and conclusions were correct. Speakers brought out that the advertising profession has been making efforts to "clean its own house" and that unless its adopts self-regulation, such as is now in effect in the film industry, outside pressure will be brought to bear.

Profit of Decency Cited

James O'Shaughnessy, general manager of the National Independent Broadcasters, Inc., and chairman of the group, in introducing Quigley, recalled his services and the influence of the Quigley Publications in bringing about higher standards of the screen through the industry's own efforts at a reasonable adjustment to its moral and social responsibilities. O'Shaughnessy said that decency had resulted in greater popularity of films and estimated the increased revenue at 200 million dollars last year.

"The lessons that the motion picture industry learned in the stress of great public protest have not been learned in general advertising," Quigley said.

"The organized film industry, since the adoption of the codes, has learned among other things that decency is good business. It had its test at the bar of public opinion, a test which might have been avoided but was not, probably for the same reasons that govern the continuance of wrong practices in the advertising business: First, the public had not been heard from, at least not emphatically enough; second, the easiest way is always attractive, and third—and very important—the practical application of the principles of morality either in the making of motion pictures or in the preparation of advertising requires very much more than the mere intention to do so."

Criticises New Publications

Commenting on a "crop of new magazines which are rapidly destroying America's traditional reputation for decency," Quigley said, "If I were either an advertiser or an advertiseing agency I would not be happy over some of these new standards in publications which are now flourishing."

"I shall not venture to suggest the specific steps the advertising profession should take to meet and control the conditions which obviously need attention," he declared. "I do know that the danger signal is plainly visible. Adequate, intelligent and reasonable regulation will provide great satisfaction for those who accomplish it. It will create a genuine public benefaction and at the same time will inevitably prove to be good business."

Hollywood Previews

"There's Always a Woman"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.—There is enough slick, silky mystery-comedy in "There's Always a Woman" to make it fit entertainment for any exhibitor's patrons. The film moves at machine gun speed, blending brilliant dialogue into the story of a harassed investigator and his wife who knows she is a super sleuth. The film should take a place in the season's list of popular serio-comic attractions.

For exploitation there are the names of Joan Blondell and Melvyn Douglas. Mary Astor, Frances Drake, Jerome Cowan and Robert Page round out the support, while Thurston Hall, Pierre Watkin, Walter Kingsford and Lester Mathews capably assist in minor roles. There are also tricky possibilities for showmen's talents.

Wilson Collison's original is a soundly contrived yarn that merges entertainment elements. Gladys Lehman's adaptation offers comedy that borders on slapstick, mystery to befuddle the fans and double-dyed-in-the-wool melodrama that perks up attention immediately and holds it throughout. Alexander Hall directed.

Douglas has a complicated murder to solve. Miss Blondell, his wife, has no great respect for his sleuthing talents and takes a hand in the case. They approach the problem from different angles. Despite everybody's efforts to keep the woman out of the case, she comes up with the solution. The goings on are high amusement that should prove pleasing and profitable to all concerned with its public presentation.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"Law of the Underworld"

(RKO)

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.—"Law of the Underworld" may be described as an afterthought of the gangster picture cycle. It will provide plenty of entertainment for those who like their melodrama in the raw. It concerns an advertising man who mingles in society while directing the activities of a gang of thieves and who, having involved two youngsters, boy and girl, in a life of crime, gives up his life to gain them freedom.

The cast is topped by Chester Morris, Anne Shirley, Eduardo Ciannelli, Walter Abel, Richard Bond, Lee Patrick, Paul Guilfoyle and Eddie Acuff, all of whom deliver well seasoned performances, outstanding among which is Ciannelli's portrayal of a cold blooded "kill crazy" gunman. A polished directorial job has been done by Lew Landers, who guided the screenplay of Bert Granet and Edmund L. Hartmann. It was based on the story "The Lost Game," and the Al H. Woods stage production by John B. Hymer and Samuel Shipman. Robert Sisk produced.

Morris, the head of the thieves, forces Miss Shirley and Bond, about to be married, into acting as decoys for a robbery. Ciannelli, anxious to head the gang, kills one of the victims, disobeying Morris, who later slays him. In a civic cleanup move, Miss Shirley and Bond are arrested by Abel, a special prosecutor, but maintain silence, fearing underworld retribution. Morris, taken into custody, confesses so the youngsters may go free.

Conferences Start Soon with AF of M

Definite arrangements for the proposed conferences between American Federation of Musicians officials and the producers' labor committee on reemployment of musicians within the industry will be made immediately upon completion of the A. F. of M. meetings with independent broadcasters on the use of transcriptions, Joseph N. Weber, A. F. of M. president, said yesterday.

"The subject of increased employment of musicians by film producers is on the docket of our national executive board, the only body which has authority to take up the matter, and will be the first order of business upon completion of our present discussions of transcriptions," Weber said. He added that, inasmuch as no definite arrangements had been made yet, he was unable to say whether the meetings would be held here or in Hollywood.

The A. F. of M. president declared that he had no knowledge of any move to call off or postpone the annual negotiations of the international unions included in the basic contract with producers, as reported. The negotiations are expected to be held here in about three weeks, with present indications pointing more to conferences on methods of spreading employment, rather than to a reopening of new wage and hour schedules.

Sherman Signs Selander

HOLLYWOOD, March 16. — Director Lesley Selander has been signed to a year's contract by Harry Sherman. He will guide the current "Hopalong Cassidy" series, now being prepared by five writers—Norman Houston, Maurice Geraghty, Louis Gasnier, John Rathmil and Jack O'Donnell.

Short Subject

"March of Time, No. 8"

(RKO)

In many ways this is one of the strongest issues which March of Time has offered. Composed only of two subjects, each is brilliantly handled. "Brain Trust Island" and "Arms and the League" are the titles, and the second, in view of the events of the past few weeks in Europe, becomes perhaps the most timely subject the producers ever have released.

It is, in effect, a review of the history of the League of Nations, picturing Woodrow Wilson, its founder, Aristide Briand, Ramsay MacDonald and Gustav Stresemann giving it courage and a measure of strength. But then came the rise of Hitler and Mussolini, and Japan's blows at China, and the virtual collapse of the League. And this, despite the frantic efforts of Anthony Eden, young and brilliant English Foreign Secretary and League champion. Then Eden is displaced as Prime Minister Chamberlain seeks conciliation. With every newspaper in the country screaming of turbulent Europe, this reel is marquee material of no mean drawing power.

The second half of the reel is devoted to the rejuvenation of battered and poverty-stricken Key West by a young New Dealer, Julius F. Stone, Jr., who turned to the tourist trade as a means of reviving the island with New Deal dollars, and who succeeded admirably. The only difficulty seems to be that Key West faces the danger of becoming a glorified Coney Island, and its citizens are worried. All of it is excellently pictured. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

Hollywood Previews

"Fools for Scandal"

(LeRoy-F. N.)

Hollywood, March 16.—By a wide margin "Fools for Scandal" fails to attain the commercial and amusement potentialities of the current series of eccentric romantic comedies. Carole Lombard strives valiantly with inadequate material. So does Fernand Gravet, whose talents, demonstrated in "The King and the Chorus Girl," are given little opportunity. Much of the dialogue is rhymed.

The film is a chatty, sophisticated comedy moving at a speed that permits no interruptions if all the dialogue is to be understood. The plot is based on the idea that if a man makes himself a persistent pest he will find his way to the heart of the lady he loves. Gravet meets and attaches himself to Miss Lombard, actress, who is traveling incognito in Paris. He follows her to London and installs himself as her cook. This is much to his delight, to her embarrassment, to the envy of her friends and the chagrin of Ralph Bellamy, her suitor. The suavely genteel Gravet is resourceful enough to awaken love in Miss Lombard's heart, eliminate Bellamy, and cause her to chase him through fog-drenched London before he succumbs to her plea to marry.

The picture was adapted by Nancy Hamilton, James Shute and Rosemary Casey from "Return Engagement," a stage play. The piece is handsomely mounted. Allen Jenkins and Marie Wilson are efficient in accentuating the comedy motif. Bellamy has a couple of amusing bits and Isabel Jeans and Heather Thatcher are pleasing as they interpret a pair of envious women friends. Gravet sings two songs and Jeni Legon and Les Hite and his orchestra are in a special musical sequence.

It is hardly of the stuff that can be depended upon to arouse much enthusiasm. It must appeal to sophisticates for popularity with much reliance placed on the name values of Miss Lombard and Gravet to whip up interest.

Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Rawhide"

(Lesser-20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, March 16.—It was once a picture making custom to grab any celebrity or freak that came along and endeavor to make a screen personality of him. The custom died a deserving and natural death. Sol Lesser endeavored to resuscitate it with Glen Morris and Eleanor Holm, but, unlike the 20th Century-Fox-Sonja Heine coup, the result was far from successful. Undiscouraged, however, he now gives the motion picture public and exhibitors Lou Gehrig, noted New York Yankee baseball player. While Gehrig is no great actor, the omens are favorable that his feature screen debut will not come a cropper.

Gehrig is just the hero in an action laden western yarn that does not lack comedy, romance, music and all the stock material that goes into the making of such a film. A racketeer "protection association" is making things tough for the ranchers. But aided and hindered by a company of well known outdoor players, Gehrig is the leading figure in the many skirmishes that run the "association" off the ranges.

The original story by Don Jarrett and the screenplay by Jarrett and Jack Natteford do not ignore any of the quantities or qualities that the public expects in a western show. Producer Lindsay Parsons and Director Ray Taylor have permitted Gehrig to be natural and have not tried to make a Gene Autry, Bill Boyd or Buck Jones out of him. They let him come west to get away from baseball contract squabblings, expecting to find peace and quiet, but yet running into more excitement than he ever knew in any World's Series.

Gehrig is the name to sell and the merchandise is by no means counterfeit.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

New IATSE Policy Scented by Equity

That the I.A.T.S.E. may make no formal claim to jurisdiction over the various A. F. of L. actors' unions, including the Screen Actors' Guild, as threatened for some months past, is indicated by Frank Gillmore, president of the Associated Actors & Artistes of America, the parent ac[illegible] organization, in an article appearing in the current issue of Equity Magazine, out today.

"Within the last day or two," Gillmore asserts, word has reached us that George Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E., has said he has been misunderstood, that all he wished to do was to have the different branches of the Four A's align themselves with his organization."

Gillmore, however, indicates some skepticism over this development in commenting that, "If that be so, it is rather strange that this explanation was not given immediately. There must be a catch in it somewhere. If we were to consider such an amalgamation the enormous voting power of the I.A.T.S.E. would completely subordinate all the branches of the Four A's put together."

History Described

Gillmore's article outlines the history of Four A's jurisdiction in the actors' fields and observes that, "The entire (I.A.T.S.E.) affair, seems to me, so extreme and so impossible to maintain that I cannot conceive of its being carried to its ultimate court—an annual A. F. of L. convention. The council of Actors Equity Ass'n will recommend to a membership meeting of the organization to be held at the Astor tomorrow that the post of Equity president be an honorary rather than a paid office. The meeting is slated to elect six members to the nominating committee of nine, three of which have already been named by the council. The committee's nominations for the annual election to be held in May are expected to be influenced to a large extent by the change in the paid status of the organization's presidency, as the major office under the new arrangement will be that of executive secretary, a paid post now held by Paul Dullzell.

Burgess Meredith, acting president of Equity, will leave New York April 10 with the road company of "The Star Wagon" on a nine-week tour.

Hollywood, March 16. — Johnny (Scat) Davis has been assigned the leading role in "The Chump," formerly titled "Up She Goes," at Warners. Opposite him will be Jane Wyman. William Clemens will direct the George Bricker screenplay.

Early Vote on Neely Measure Not Expected

[illegible]ecommit the bill for further con-[illegible]ation.

Even if the bill is voted on by the Senate, which seems doubtful, it is generally conceded time would not permit of its passage by the House, and there is some question whether block-booking legislation, in the form of the Neely measure, will not be supplanted by legislation now being framed by independent exhibitor organizations for introduction in the near future.

If it is decided to center all efforts on the new legislation, action this year would be impossible, since the bill would have to be the subject of committee hearings and action before reaching the House for debate and vote.

to appeal to the Government for the restoration to the bill of the original quota figures, starting the exhibitor quota at 12½ per cent and the distributor quota at 15 per cent. The Lords committee has approved starting the two quotas at 15 and 20 per cent, respectively. Americans appear confident Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, will act favorably in the matter.

Irving Asher Quits Warner London Post

LONDON, March 16.—The resignation of Irving Asher as managing director and executive in charge of Warners' production at Teddington studios was made known here today. Sam E. Morris, vice-president in charge of foreign activities, arrived Monday from New York.

Asher's resignation will not change the company's production activities here. Morris is setting the new season's plans and production is scheduled to be resumed the last week in March or early in April. A. M. Solomon, British studio manager, returned with Morris.

Asher has not announced his plans, but may join another major American studio here in an executive capacity.

Ban on "Children" Is Upheld by Court that Commissioner Graves' actions were not arbitrary. McNamee said:

"The Commissioner of Education is entrusted by the state with the education of its children, which necessarily involves obedience to law; and by the statute in question, he is also charged with the duty of protecting their morals in keeping with the moral standards of the people of this state. His action in rejecting this picture and in refusing a license in this case we regard as neither capricious nor arbitrary but a proper exercise of the office with which he is clothed."

Presiding Justice Hill delivered a dissenting opinion, taking sharp issue with Graves. The dissenters disagreed on the department's "immoral," "indecent" and "tending to corrupt morals" angle on sterilization propaganda, stating "the film contains nothing lewd or lustful."

In view of the split vote, petitioners may take the case to the Court of Appeals.

"Tomorrow's Children" was the second film reviewed in court by the Appellate Division, the first having been "Ecstasy" last October. Costs were assessed against petitioners.

Court Names Walcer On 'Lynton' Damages

Kenneth E. Walcer, an attorney, was designated Special Master by Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson in the U. S. District Court here yesterday to assess damages and take an accounting of the profits earned by Moredall Realty Corp., operators of the Capitol, during the exhibition of the M-G-M picture "Letty Lynton." Edward Sheldon and Margaret A. Barnes, authors, brought suit which charged infringement of their play, "Dishonored Lady," in the film. The infringement was established by an action against M-G-M and a suit against the exhibitor followed.

Judge Patterson's order revealed that the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals last month had reversed a previous order granting a temporary injunction, but had refused to pass on the question of whether or not the exhibitor was liable. After Special Master Walcer renders his final report, the higher court will hear the appeal.

B. N. Fines in Montreal

MONTREAL, March 16.—Two local theatre managers yesterday were fined in Recorder's Court for operation of Bank Night. According to police such attractions are lotteries and therefore illegal.

Alexis St. Charles, manager of the Cameo, pleaded guilty to two charges, and Julius Belson, manager of the Midway, pleaded guilty to 10 similar charges. Each was fined the costs in every case to which he pleaded guilty. A third exhibitor, Roland Cardinal, manager of Theatre Canadien, entered a plea of not guilty. His case is still before the courts.

Expect $58,000 at Roxy with "Music"

"Mad About Music" at the Roxy and "The Big Broadcast of 1938," plus Cab Calloway and his band, at the Paramount are Broadway's leaders this week. The first will do an estimated $58,000 in the seven days ending tonight, which includes $32,000 more than last weekend. The Paramount's gross was $43,000 for the week. Both films are being held.

Business at several other houses was off. This was explained as due to Lent, income tax payments and the weather. The Music Hall did $78,000 with "Jezebel." Business built the last two days of the week and is expected to hold up well in the second stanza. "Everybody Sing" did $19,000 at the Capitol.

Warners' "Fools for Scandal" will follow "Jezebel" at the Music Hall, with Korda's "Divorce of Lady X" due to open at the theatre March 31 and "The Adventures of Marco Polo" penciled in for April 7.

The Rivoli will open "Romance in the Dark" on Saturday, the first Paramount film to play the house in about two years, following four weeks of "The Goldwyn Follies." "Radio City Revels" will start at the Globe on Saturday.

The gift includes such Griffith features as "Judith of Bethulia," "Intolerance," "Hearts of the World," "Orphans of the Storm," "Broken Blossoms" and "America." The producer previously had presented the library "The Birth of a Nation."

burgh, which were in Flynn's territory, are now a separate district to be managed by John J. Maloney, promoted from the post of Pittsburgh branch manager.

Albany and Buffalo have been taken from Flynn's former territory and added to the district managed by E. K. (Ted) O'Shea, which now includes also New York, Washington and Charlotte. Tom Connors, eastern, southern and Canadian manager, pointed out that O'Shea formerly was branch manager at Albany and Buffalo and the addition of these cities to his territory is therefore logical.

Boston and New Haven, up to now in O'Shea's territory, have been formed as a district managed by Maurice N. Wolf, who was promoted from the Boston branch managership.

Connors disclosed the following branch shifts: Jack Byrne, branch manager at New Haven, promoted to Wolf's spot in Boston; Tom Donaldson, now salesman in Boston, to branch manager in New Haven; Burtus Bishop, Jr., branch manager in Charlotte, to branch manager in Pittsburgh, succeeding Maloney; Benn Rosenwald, salesman at Charlotte, to branch head there.

Promotions from Ranks

In accordance with M-G-M policy, all promotions were made from within the company's ranks, Connors pointed out.

He said the company executives hoped that Shirley's health would improve in time to warrant his taking over an important position. Mendelssohn, whom Shirley succeeds, also has been in ill health.

Shirley has been in the business 30 years. He started in 1908 as manager for the Pittsburgh Calcium Light & Film Co. in Wilkes-Barre. Two years later he was made manager for General Film Co. in that city. He held that position seven years, in 1917 becoming manager for Metro Pictures Corp. in Kansas City. He was appointed district manager at Chicago in 1919 and has held that position since.

The remaining three district territories remain unchanged. These are managed by Charles E. Kessnich in the south, G. A. Hickey on the west coast and Harris P. Wolfberg in the midwest with headquarters in Kansas City.

CBC Answers Critics with Air Concerts

Montreal, March 16. — Major Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., last night hit back at those attacking him on his program policy, with the declaration that for the first time since its organization in 1936, CBC will present regularly the leading symphony orchestras of Canada to a nationwide audience.

Recent attacks in the press and in public addresses have stressed CBS's laxity in using Canadian talent. The organization now will present the best entertainment of Canadian origin, made possible by strengthened finances. NBC will carry some of the programs in an international exchange.

Dated May 5 to Oct. 13

Murray said the Toronto Symphony Promenade concerts will be broadcast from May 5 to Oct. 13 by CBC from 9 to 10 P.M., E.S.T., on Thursdays, and these will go to NBC. The Toronto Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Ernest MacMillan, will do 24 broadcasts, starting Oct. 25, and the Montreal Symphony Orchestra will do a series of 10, starting Oct. 27. Also La Societe des Concerts Symphoniques will broadcast a series of 10, either alternating with or following the Montreal orchestra. It is also proposed that the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra broadcast the Sunday afternoon concerts during the summer, and that the Calgary Symphony Orchestra be introduced to radio audiences in the spring of 1939.

During the evening it will be transmitted in translation and by transcription to those sections of the globe which did not receive the original address. The Secretary will speak from Washington from 1:30 to 2:15 P. M.

Probe Is Ordered Into Air Monopoly

sideration and decision on Friday. The discussion today is said to have been heated, with chairman Frank R. McNinch and two members of the commission reported seeking to have the investigation postponed.

Pointing out that there have been many criticisms and charges regarding alleged shortcomings of radio service, Commissioner Craven explained tonight that "the time has come when complete facts and data are necessary to establish the truth or falsity of such charges," both in the interest of the public and for the stabilization of the industry. The basis for the proposed investigation, he said, was laid down in his report on the social and economic aspects of broadcasting in January.

Determination to make the study is understood to have been prompted by promises of Representative John O'Connor of New York, chairman of the House Rules Committee, that if the commission did not go into the question of monopoly Congress would.

Inception in Brooklyn

O'Connor's assurance was given in a letter to the Brooklyn Tablet, one of a number of Catholic papers which has been pressing for an investigation of broadcasting conditions, copies of which are said to have been sent to the F.C.C.

Explaining that the Rules Committee is reluctant to approve investigations because members of the House do not have adequate time to carry on inquiries during the session and also because the House rarely provides adequate funds, O'Connor said that "frankly, if McNinch suggested an investigation by the commission the House probably would not push plans for a Congressional probe."

"If the commission does not do something about it, however, I assure you that I shall do everything possible to cause a Congressional investigation," he wrote.

It is understood the matter was to be brought up for consideration at a regular meeting of the commission this week, at which consideration would be given to the development of plans for a thorough study of monopoly in broadcasting.

Tube Tax Should Pay for CBC, Says Writer

Montreal, March 17.—A scheme to make radio set manufacturers pay for the support of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. is suggested by one of Canada's leading radio men writing under the nom de plume of H. H. Stallsworthy in the current issue of Canadian Business, the official organ of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

"A practical and sensible alternative of the present question of handling revenue for CBC would be to have a tax on tubes and that this tax be collected not from the individual but from the manufacturers," Stallsworthy says.

"The advantage of the system is

Court Refused to Permit Enforcement of Latter

Washington, March 17.—Anti-block booking provisions of the Neely bill are almost identical with the wording of the Federal Trade Commission's order in the Famous Players-Lasky case 11 years ago, it was disclosed today upon reference to the record in that proceeding.

The Famous Players case, one of the most notable proceedings undertaken bv the commission, was based on a complaint issued August 3, 1921, and charged the respondents with unfair competition, restraint of trade and monopoly by reason of block-booking practices. The case was before the commission for 71 months. Its decision was issued July 9, 1927, and during its hearings and arguments piled up probably the longest record of any case prosecuted by the F.T.C.

Frank Henson, manager of Loew's Palace, Canton, O., has sent to the circuit's home office a copy of a display ad run by Warners' Ohio, opposition house, headed "Congratulations to the Palace Theatre" and complimenting it on having "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." In a P. S. to the ad, the Warner house asks the Loew's management to tell its overflow audience to attend the Ohio to see 'A Slight Case of Murder."

Now the circuit is asking its managers for an opinion on whether this was smart advertising or "an admission of defeat on opening day." All in fun, of course.

The paper was started a month ago and numerous requests have been received from principals and teachers asking that it be continued since it is of aid in film appreciation classes, according to Ern Emerling of Loew's.

The circuit is using the paper as a medium to publicize current and coming films, with the publicity angle subdued. It is planned to make the publication a monthly. It has been decided not to publish editions for out of town theatres because of the conflicting bookings.

Booking Bill And Old Trade Order Similar

sion, Abram F. Myers, now general counsel for Allied, was a member of the commission.

The order calling upon the respondents, among other things, to discontinue block booking in almost the phraseology of Section 3 of the Neely bill, was presented to U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the form of a petition for enforcement. The court refused to permit enforcement of the order in a decision handed down April 5, 1932.

That decision held that block-booking was not an illegal practice, did not disclose a dangerous tendency to hinder competition and did not bring about monopoly. It was held that a distributor had the right to offer his product for sale en bloc and that to do so did not of itself deprive an exhibitor of any rights to which he was entitled.

Court's Reasons Listed

Among reasons advanced by the court for its refusal to act were the following:

"It is admitted that the purpose of the respondent's method of negotiation and block booking is to sell the entire product to a single exhibitor in a single locality, but the method is said to deny to exhibitors freedom of choice in leasing films. Where an offer, unaccompanied by any declaration the exhibitor must take all or none, is accepted, there is no restraint upon the exhibitor's freedom of choice. If the offer is rejected and the respondent refuses to consider the lease of less than the block until the block has been successively offered to the exhibitor's competitors, there is no restraint placed upon the freedom of choice of the exhibitor if all refuse the block. But if, under these circumstances, the exhibitor is induced to take all, by refusal of respondent at that time to consider the lease of less, the result is not due to denial of freedom of choice, but to the exercise of his choice of two alternatives. . . . After this there is the insistence on an increase in price by the respondent if individual films are accepted. But these we regard as merely ordinary incidents of bargaining and negotiating between seller and buyer, out of which a contract may or may not result. In either case, the buyer exercises his legal right to purchase or not, as he chooses. . . .

Evidence Called Lacking

"The commission may not interfere with the respondent's attempt to effectively dispose of their products as a whole before entering upon negotiations for the disposition of less than all. Nor is this method of negotiation and sales creative of a dangerous tendency to unduly hinder competition or to create monopoly. . . .

"An examination of the record reveals, however, that this is a conclusion of the author of this finding, which is not sustained by the evidence. Without support by evidence in the record, it will not sustain the order to cease and desist. . . .

"Effective competition requires that traders have large freedom of action when conducting their own affairs. Success alone does not show reprehensible methods, although it may increase or make insuperable the difficulties which rivals face. . . .

"Nor is the alternative offer permitted to be made for the films, that is, to lease less than a block at higher prices, a coercive or intimidating method. . . .

"If reasonable competition is to continue, the right of the individual to exercise reasonable discretion in respect to his own business methods must be preserved. . . .

"The respondent has lawfully exercised its right to sell its product to the best advantage and in such quantities and to such persons as it chooses. It neither has a monopoly, and, apparently, not the ability to acquire one."

Federal Trade Commission Order Issued in 1927

The cease and desist order against Famous Players-Lasky Corp. and its officers read:

"From leasing or offering to lease for exhibition in a theatre or theatres motion picture films in a block or group of two or more films at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group only and requiring the exhibitor to lease all such films or be permitted to lease none; and from leasing or offering to lease for exhibition such motion picture films in a block or group of two or more at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group and at separate and several prices for separate and several films, or for a number or numbers thereof less than the total number, which total or lump-sum price and separate and several prices shall bear to each other such relation as to operate as an unreasonable restraint upon the freedom of an exhibitor to select and lease for use and exhibition only such films or films of such block or group as he may desire and prefer to procure for exhibition; or shall bear such relation to each other as to tend to require an exhibitor to lease such entire block or group or forego the lease of any portion or portions thereof; or shall bear such relation to each other that the effect of such proposed contract for the lease of such films may be substantially to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any part of the certain line of commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, involved in said proposed sale, to wit, the business of the production, distribution and exhibition of motion-picture films to the public, or the business of production and distribution, or of production or distribution of moving-picture films for public exhibition." (Transcript pages 61-62.)

Section Three of The Neely Bill Presented in 1938

"Sec. 3 (1) It shall be unlawful for any distributor or motion picture films in commerce to lease or offer to lease for public exhibition films in a block or group of two or more films at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group only and to require the exhibitor to lease all such films or permit him to lease none; or to lease or offer to lease for public exhibition films in a block or group of two or more at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group and at separate and several prices for separate and several films, or for a number or numbers thereof less than the total number, which total or lump-sum price and separate and several prices shall bear to each other such relation (a) as to operate as an unreasonable restraint upon the freedom of an exhibitor to select and lease for use and exhibition only such film or films of such block or group as he may desire and prefer to procure for exhibition, or (b) as tends to require an exhibitor to lease such entire block or group or forego the lease of any number or numbers thereof, or (c) that the effect of the lease or offer to lease of such films may be substantially to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in the production, distribution and exhibition of films."

Long Baltimore Ad Controversy Ended

it is believed that all concerned will benefit.

The combined papers had demanded $1.10 per agate line, which the theatres resented. Under the new arrangement the higher rate continues in effect for advertisements on the film page, but the Sun offers the theatres the opportunity to buy space on the page adjoining the film page at 60 cents a line. This applies to all insertions of 100 lines or more.

Theatres made parties to the agreement are Loew's Century and Parkway, the Warner, Keith's, Hippodrome and New. The Loew houses were represented in the negotiations by Oscar A. Doob, the circuit's advertising and publicity director; Carter Barron, district manager, and William Saxton, city manager. Local managers represented the other theatres.

Kansas City Notes Single Bill Trend

admit that the occasional use of single bills is so satisfactory that if the majority return to them, they would like to quit duals permanently. There are exceptions, of course, as indicated by the successful use of triple bills at the E. S. Young's Roanoke and Central. Aside from the Newman, the Fox Plaza is the only house that has given singles a thorough test over a long period, although the Fox Brookside is using singles only and a few others have used them occasionally.

Indicative of a public desire for singles in many quarters is the fact that the trailer concerning them at the Newman still draws applause at every performance, after 10 weeks of use. It is pointed out that the use of singles cuts the program length about 30 per cent, thus increasing the daily turnover.

PAWHUSKA, Okla., March 17.—Southwestern Theatres have purchased the State here from A. B. Momand of Shawnee, operator of the house for the past 11 years. Jack Smith, who has been manager of the State for the past eight years, will remain.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 54
(20th Century-Fox)

A good followup on the international crisis appropriately occupies the first place in this reel. It is in the form of a speech delivered by Secretary of State Hull explaining U. S. foreign policy. More material bearing on the subject is offered in shots of Dr. Seyss-Inquart at Linz, Austria; Herbert Hoover chatting with President Benes of Czechoslovakia and Anthony Eden departing for a holiday.

The rest of the reel includes such material, not uninteresting, as: a watery deluge in the San Jacinto tunnel, a chick incubator, feminine fashions for spring, a feet and face pulchritude contest at the International Casino, Lew Lehr on the subject of snorers with many comical asides, a vividly filmed basket ball game between N. Y. U. and Colorado and fine shots of the British Empire Games at Sydney, Australia. Running time, 9 mins. P.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 252
(M-G-M)

This issue is all that can be desired in a newsreel. It combines international affairs, entertainment, thrills, sport and other items that are currently "alive."

The opening is devoted to Secretary of State Hull speaking on the U. S. stand on foreign affairs. There are vivid aerial shots of the new Key West highway, Navy personnel and girl friends at San Diego and the big thrill comes—scenes of a motorcycle stunt in England that misfired. A man and woman attempt to crash their vehicle through plate glass and fire but they spill in the midst of the feat. There are a few harrowing moments while the camera records the pair struggling in the tangled flaming wreck of their machine until aid comes. They escape with their lives, however. The M. P. Academy awards sequence includes scenes from the winners' pictures. It is lengthy but well presented. The Italian baby crop and scenes of the Temple-Colorado basketball game conclude the material. Running time, 8½ mins. P.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 69
(RKO)

For the most part this is made up of run-of-the-mill material, but Pathe has a way of making it look much better. The lead is Secretary Hull's statement on our foreign policy. Then there is a pageant at Natchez, Miss., which provides charming photography and nostalgic memories of the old South.

The only other outstanding clip is that of Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy attired in evening dress and accompanied by his staff to be introduced to King George. A fashion show of what the ladies will be wearing this spring will delight the women. Otherwise, there are shots of Gerard Swope praising unemployment insurance, limestone blasting in Missouri, the Temple Owls winning the national collegiate basketball title and Mickey Cochrane leading his Tigers through a practice session. Running time, 8½ mins. F.

Universal Newsreel
No. 650
(Universal)

There is little exciting in this release, which includes five exclusives, but good editing and presentation make for interest. The newsreels these days reflect the attention to armaments and military activities. This issue leads off with one of the infrequent appearances before the camera of Secretary of State Hull in a pronouncement of our foreign policy, which is timely.

Then follow the commissioning of the Savannah, 10,000-ton cruiser; fleet maneuvers off the California coast and military maneuvers in England. The second group of clips includes a miscellany of a Milan, Italy, carnival parade, a couple celebrating their 72nd wedding anniversary, the arrival here of the King of Egypt's uncle, a Philadelphia girl newspaper photographer, animals at the zoo and a display of legs in a contest in a Manhattan night spot. The sports section includes some of the dizziest skiing seen this year, in the Swiss Alps; the Chicago six-day bike races and the Colorado-N. Y. U. basketball game. Running time, 9 mins. F.

stands today in Canada is overbalanced in favor of Famous Players Canadian Corp. and the attitude of its representatives has, so far, been that they are determined to keep it that way. The subject of clearance has deadlocked every conciliation meeting and the business accomplished was of too trivial a nature to warrant the expenditure of time involved."

Clarence Robson, supervisor of theatres, is the direct representative of Famous Players on the conciliation committee while other members include Sam Fine, representing B. and S. Theatres, Ltd., and H. T. Long, general manager of the Hanson circuit, both of which are subsidiaries or controlled by Famous Players.

The independents are represented by President H. Freedman and A. Polakoff of the Independent Theatres Association. Freedman and Polakoff are Toronto exhibitors. The exchanges are represented by L. M. Devaney, J. P. O'Loghlin and H. Allen.

Frank Kassler has acquired the American distribution rights to "Dark Eyes," French film featuring Harry Baur and Simone Simon. It will be released next season.

Hull Newsreel Shots Are Made in Advance

The newsreel clips of Secretary of State Hull announcing the Administration's foreign policy were taken on Wednesday under a departure from official policy, said Al Holland, Pathe News' Washington representative, here yesterday.

Usually the newsreels are allowed to take pictures of important Government officials following a press conference. But Secretary Hull considered the announcement of policy so important that arrangements were made for the films in advance in order to permit a release simultaneously with Hull's worldwide broadcast yesterday afternoon.

Holland said that Hull insisted on the utmost secrecy regarding the newsreel shots and precautions were taken to guard against his statement being revealed in advance of the radio broadcast. The statement read by Hull for the five newsreels was culled from his radio speech.

Price, Waterhouse & Co., account-[illegible] for an additional fee of $8,870 or drawing the account.

The order submitted for signature rovides that the court must retain urisdiction over all suits which may e brought against the debtor for acts rior to the approval of the reorgani-ation. Ballantine told Judge Coxe hat the only such suit pending was ne by A. B. Momand, who received ermission last week to bring an anti-rust suit in the U. S. District Court or the western district of Oklahoma.

His claim, filed in 1934, for $4,960,12, is expected to be liquidated in the klahoma action, but Judge Coxe reerved final action for himself.. Monand's original suit was started sevral years ago and was dismissed by he U. S. Tenth Circuit Court of Apeals. He has until April 8 to revive is suit, which must be "prosecuted ith reasonable diligence."

File 2 New Actions In the Momand Suit

Boston, March 18.—Two new acions in the A. B. Momand $5,000,000 nti-trust suit were filed this afteroon in the U. S. District Court for he western district of Oklahoma by Geo. S. Ryan, Boston Lawyer, who is eading the prosecution. The new egal move was made possible by a ecision of Judge Alfred Coxe this month. Coxe denied the request of Paramount trustees to expunge the Momand claim against Paramount Publix Corp. and opened the way for ontinuation of the Oklahoma theatre wners suit.

The two new actions were for $5,000,000 and $2,000,000, respectively. They will be prosecuted by Ryan in onjunction with a recently filed case n Massachusetts which involves the ulk of the defendants.

The new $5,000,000 suit was brought gainst Paramount and other defendnts that could not be served here.

The new $2,000,000 suit involves the ituation of Oklahoma City, Okmulgee, Maud, Seminole and Guthrie and could not be taken up in the local U. S. District Court because of the statute of imitations. The seeming ambiguity of he figures is due to the fact that each lefendant is being sued for the total laim of $5,000,000.

Brandt Starts Letter Attack On Neely Bill whom this bill is supposedly so solicitous will be crushed!"

The letter calls the community selection and moral argument advanced by proponents of the legislation "camouflage picked up to conceal the hidden motives in back of this measure." "Our audiences select the pictures they want to see," Brandt said. "The theatre owner cannot force the public to go to his theatre. The public picks and chooses and shops around. The public is the last word in what they are willing to pay to see. That, together with the regulation of the various censorship boards and the common decency of the theatre owners themselves, prohibits the showing of any pictures to which there can be any moral objection. . . .

"You have but to look over a list of current releases against which this moral question is being raised to realize that someone is blatantly raising an issue that does not exist. The type of censorship that would be forced in by this bill . . . is nothing short of confiscatory."

The letter declared that the bill would eliminate three "primary conditions which are necessary for the successful operation of our business." These were named as: Assurance of a regular supply of pictures; reasonable film rentals; ability of the exhibitor to contract for his film supply sufficiently in advance. "The legislation would put many theatres out of business" and "the public will suffer because they will have to pay higher admission prices," the letter said.

ciety of Buffalo and supported generally by exhibitors, the measure is through the Assembly and will be moved to pass by Senator George Rogers.

In a surprise vote, Senator John H. Dunnigan secured passage of his constitutional amendment to legalize parimutuels in New York State in the Senate today.

The Ostertag employment agency bill, which passed the Assembly yesterday and seemed on its way into law, is seemingly buried in Senate committee, together with the two Howard bills and the one of Senator Feld, New York City. Opposition to the exemptions enjoyed under the Ostertag bill by major networks and circuit booking agencies still persists strongly.

For the first time since its introduction, Assemblyman Crews' I.A.T.S.E.-backed projectionists bill seems beaten. The Brooklyn legislator has tried in vain to pry it from the Rules Committee, where opposition stiffened overnight. The sole chance left is a discharge from the rules motion, scheduled some time before the adjournment tomorrow morning.

Other anti-exhibitor and distributor bills seem definitely out.

Federal Radio Probe to Take Entire Field stations as compared with practices in the industry generally.

Effect of chain broadcasting upon independent stations.

Practices or agreements in restraint of trade or furtherance of monopoly in connection with chain broadcasting.

Extent and effects of concentration of control of stations by means of chain or network contracts or agreements, management contracts or agreements, common ownership or other means or devices, particularly insofar as the same tends toward or results in restraint of trade or monopoly.

Hearings to Be Scheduled

Following the compilation of available information by the legal and engineering divisions, hearings will be called at which representatives of the chains and stations will be ordered to appear. Indications are that some hearings may be held outside of Washington for the purpose of going into local situations.

Adoption of the McNinch order culminated two days of argument between the commissioners as to how far they should go, McNinch and Sykes strongly resisting Craven's demand for an exhaustive probe of the entire situation.

The McNinch order finally was given the approval of all of the commissioners except George Henry Payne, who explained that "while I am heartily in favor of investigation of the monopolistic trends in broadcasting, I voted against the substitution of the McNinch resolution for the Craven resolution because of my objection to the methods by which that substitution was being made. Commander Craven had spent a great deal of time on his resolution, and I felt it was not only better drawn, but more comprehensive and calculated to be more effective."

Craven Asks Amendment

While finally accepting the chairman's resolution, Craven insisted upon inclusion therein of an explanation that the commission has not now sufficient information upon which to base regulations regarding contractual relationships between chain companies and network stations, multiple ownership of stations, competitive practices and other methods "by which competition may be restrained or by which restricted use of facilities may result."

Jersey Censor Bill Opposed By Newspapers

Not Necessary Is Stand Taken by Editors

Vigorous opposition to the censorship bill pending in the Ways and Means Committee of the New Jersey House at Trenton has been voiced by a number of New Jersey newspapers. The latest is the Trenton State-Gazette, which says: "Through his introduction of a bill creating a board of motion picture censors, Assemblyman John M. Kerner of Union County reflects his lack of familiarity with the standards now governing the production of films as well as an inadequate realization of the dangerous potentialities of the whole idea of public censorships.

"There is less justification for an official censorship of films now than there has been in many years."

The newspaper declares that "Hollywood has been its most merciless

Wood Files Plea for Increased Exemption

WASHINGTON, March 20.—A request for a 10-cent increase in the 40-cent admission tax exemption yesterday was filed with the State Finance Committee by P. J. Wood of Columbus, on behalf of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio.

The increased exemption was described as a means of affording needed relief to exhibitors throughout the country. The exhibitors' brief recited how the present 40-cent exemption acts as an "artificial ceiling" on admission scales and contended that an increase to 50 cents, instead of depriving

Half Denver Sees It

Denver, March 20. — Not only did "Snow White" break all the house records in the three weeks it played at the RKO Orpheum, but it also set up something of a unique mark in its fourth week at the Fox Aladdin and its fifth week at the Fox Rialto.

During the five weeks the total number of seats available for use was nearly 500,000, almost a seat each for half the population of Colorado. The film ran for eight and nine performances daily at the Orpheum, where more than 150,000 saw the film, or half Denver's population.

Footage on Austrian Coup Here on Queen Mary Today

Footage on the newsreel coverage of the Hitler Nazi coup in Austria is due to arrive in New York on the Queen Mary this morning. Newsreel editors here are geared to start work on the material the moment it leaves the boat, and they are hoping for the best.

As a matter of fact, the editors haven't the slightest idea what they really have in the way of coverage, but they are all set to "go to town" on the material—if it is good enough. Not one of them is even hinting that a special will be made of the Austrian stuff, or even that the entire footage of tomorrow's regular release will be devoted to the one subject. That, too, all depends on what is in those cans.

Although no one editor appears too certain, it is believed all the reels were covered on the Nazi invasion of Austria. Probably there was little material obtained in the neighborhood of Linz, near the Austro-German border, and in similar towns. Most of the footage undoubtedly will be devoted to shots in Vienna—and then, as one slightly cynical reel man put

Unions' Pact Is About Set On Exchanges

To Affect 4,500-5,000 in "Back Rooms"

A master agreement covering wages and working conditions for between 4,500 and 5,000 "back room" workers in exchanges in 31 distribution centers is expected to be agreed upon today. A subcommittee of the I. A. T. S. E. representatives which conferred with major company representatives on Friday will resume negotiations this morning with the distributors. The sessions will be held at the Warner home office.

Only one point remained to be settled when the 10-hour meeting on Friday came to a close. This was the period the master agreement will run, it is understood. The distributors held out for a two-year agreement while the union delegates demanded a one-year pact. Union spokesmen over the weekend said they expected a compromise would be reached.

The master agreement will set up machinery governing the local agreements made with the distributors last year. Employes included are shippers,

Further RKO Delay To Be Asked Today

A short postponement of the hearing scheduled for today on the RKO reorganization plan is expected to be sought by Atlas Corp., proponent of the plan. Efforts to complete proposed amendments continued over the weekend, but indications yesterday were that essential details would remain to be resolved before the modified plan could be submitted to Federal Judge William Bondy. As a result, it is expected that an adjournment of about one week will be requested.

Hollywood Previews

"Judge Hardy's Children"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, March 20.—Here is a picture tailored to the measure of the small town house and neighborhood theatre. It is rich in comedy, highlighted by darts of drama and warm in human interest. The action offers youthful romance in a natural fashion. Public demand may make its inclusion as a companion piece in de luxe houses distinctly a profitable booking.

Actually "Judge Hardy's Children" is a vehicle for Mickey Rooney. Good contributions to the results are made by Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Robert Whitney, Ann Rutherford, Jacqueline Laurent, Janet Beecher, Jonathan Hale, Ruth Hussey and Leonard Penn, but Rooney is the star. Every time he walked on to indulge in glib lines and bits of juvenile cavorting he had the preview audience in stitches. He has only one serious sequence wherein Stone explains the democratic ideals of this country's founders.

The story has Stone appointed to a Government position. He takes his family with him to Washington. While he is pursuing a monopoly investigation, Miss Parker, his daughter is swept into the capital's social whirl and Rooney loses his heart to Miss Laurent. Of Rooney's many boyish tricks his transforming of a cotillion waltz into stomping Big Apple is a comedy highlight with the pleasure of owning a tuxedo coming second. Political sharpshooters threaten Stone with ruin and disgrace. Rooney gives him a tip on how to beat their game by beating them to the punch. Back again in their home town the family resumes its happy life. Miss Parker and Rooney unite with their regular sweethearts.

Kay Van Riper, using Aurania Rouverol's characters, has turned out a screenplay full of those qualities which quickly appeal to general audiences. The manner in which George Seitz directed the film, particularly the way the preview audience approved his handling of Rooney, endows "Judge Hardy's Children" with showmanship almost certain to be appreciated by exhibitors and the public.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Her Jungle Love"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, March 20.—This somewhat perplexing production project may or may not represent a determination to do something really handsome for the youngsters of all ages who read Sunday comic strips and listen to box-top radio serials. The persistent prevalence of these unprecise art forms argues the existence of addicts in numerical strength warranting such extraordinary attention.

In any case Paramount has seen fit to photograph it in full color and with much magnificence with Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland, Lynne Overman, J. Carrol Naish, the late Jiggs, a lion cub and assorted alligators in the principal roles. Save for the color, it is just about the picture most cinema audiencces reading the billing will expect. George M. Arthur is the producer and George Archainbaud director of the story which was pieced together by five writers.

Milland and Overman are aviators searching for a comrade lost in island jungles. They also crack up, but are befriended by a native girl who turns out to be the hypnotic subject of an educated native chief who is fond of feeding white flyers to his sacred crocodiles. One of these feedings is realistically conducted and an earthquake or volcanic eruption occurs in the conventional nick of time, before it is established that the native girl is white and free to marry the hero.

Miss Lamour sings one song by Frederick Hollander and Ralph Freed. Milland and a gramophone handling another. Overman elevates the intellectual tone repeatedly with slangy wisecracks. Naish makes a fantastic villain. Jiggs, whose passing is still a fresh Hollywood bereavement, is seen in the best performance of his or any monkey's lifetime.

Running time, 78 minutes. "G."

Deal on "Women" Near

The Collingswood News recalls the effectiveness of the Legion of Decency in "forcing producers to change their style of pictures and present pictures with an increased entertainment value and a decreased 'smut' value."

"The police of our various municipalities provide enough protection against filth," this paper continues. "Their censorship usually reflects local opinion. Censorship on a state-wide basis would be intolerable."

the last time to report on legislation. Nathaniel M. Minkoff, American labor leader, told Motion Picture Daily he had striven vainly to remove the objections of upstate Assemblymen to the measure.

The bill of Assemblyman Robert Wagner, Jr., son of the U. S. Senator, calling for one day of rest in seven for engine room employes, janitors and custodians, was passed by both houses and went to the Governor for signature. The bill was not opposed by film interests, apparently on the basis of the belief that the bill does not apply to theatres.

The measure legalizing pari-mutuel betting in the state was passed by the Senate by a vote of 90 to 33.

it, "It probably will be all acclaim, anyway." What he meant was that Hitler's henchmen unquestionably saw to it that photographic records were made only of such occurrences in connection with the coup as would be approved by the Nazi propaganda machine.

Two cameramen were arrested by Nazis during the first hectic hours of attempted newsreel coverage on the events which happened so quickly. They were Julius Jonak of Universal's staff and Edouard Thule of the RKO Pathe Paris office, who was rushed to Vienna when word of the coup was received.

Universal asked the help of the American Embassy in Vienna, and Jonak was released within 36 hours of his "detention." It is believed Thule also was released. The others arrested were "still" cameramen. Universal is hopeful of fairly good material, in view of the fact that their cameraman cleared some footage from Vienna before he was jailed. The home office was out of touch with Jonak for four days during the height of the disturbances. In all Universal expects about 1,500 feet on the Queen Mary.

Paramount had three men in Austria, where it has its own bureau, subsidiary to the Paris office. Two of the three were in Vienna and the other somewhere outside the city. News of the Day apparently obtained adequate coverage, rushed their film by plane to Berlin, thence to Cherbourg and caught the Queen Mary a few hours before sailing time. Movietone News was non-committal, but obviously expects as good material as anyone else will have, while RKO Pathe has material coming from three sources—their own Paris man, the reel's Austrian bureau and through the reel's Ufa connection.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Amendment of the application of WKBW, Buffalo, for an increase of power from 5,000 to 50,000 watts, in lieu of the increase to 10,000 watts originally asked, was received yesterday at the Federal Communications Commission.

New Shows on the Air

"Warner Academy Theatre"

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—Judging from the first two performances, the new Warner-Gruen Watch "Warner Academy Theatre" program cannot be called "good radio." Primarily the show seems to be predicated upon a desire to sell Warner talent, which gets most of the "breaks," although Gruen receives four commercials during each half-hour presentation.

Presented as a "live" show here on the California Radio System and as a transcription on 14 other stations throughout the country, the half-hour programs consist of enactments by young Warner contract players of adaptations of Warner pictures released some time ago, and guest appearances of name talent in connection with new Warner films, whose release will be almost simultaneous with the air program on which they appear. The first show starred Ronald Reagan and Gloria Dickson in "One Way Passage," and a guest appearance of Dick Foran in connection with his latest film "Over the Wall." The second show presented newcomers Bruce Lester and Susan Hayward in the "King and the Chorus Girl." The guest player was Ralph Bellamy, who got in a few words for his recent picture, "Fools for Scandal." Also heard were talks by Jack L. Warner and Max Arnow, studio casting director.

The program contains a direct tiein with exhibitors playing the studio's product and gives showmen an added outlet for exploitation.

Recessions Cannot Retard Industry, States Schenck

Progress of the film industry cannot be stifled by temporary discouragements such as the current recession, was the optimistic message delivered to a nationwide air audience last night by Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of the 20th Century-Fox and president of the Motion Picture Producers' Association. Schenck spoke as the industry's representative in a symposium on "The Spring Outlook on Business" over the NBC-Red network.

"Optimism has always been the guiding force of the motion picture business," declared Schenck. "Through the relapses which have beset the world's economic condition, Hollywood has gone forward with undimmed confidence, increasing its production budget year after year, giving employment to growing thousands and bring hope and cheer to the millions who look to it for entertainment."

The keynote of his address was couched in one phrase delivered early in his talk.

"We believe in the future—and we are doing our utmost to further the prosperity we know must come."

The total cost of production in Hollywood mounted from $135,000,000 in 1935 to $165,000,000 in 1937, Schenck revealed. This increase in expenditures involved more elaborate

Goldwyn Will Discuss U.A. Schedule Here

Korda's Share Is to Be Taken Up in London

Initial efforts to map a production schedule for United Artists for next season will be made by Samuel Goldwyn in conferences here today with Mary Pickford, and with Alexander Korda in London, later, it was learned yesterday with the arrival of Goldwyn and Douglas Fairbanks from the coast.

Goldwyn and Fairbanks will discuss tentative plans with Miss Pickford involving all three and will also discuss the addition of new producers to the United Artists roster for the new season, it was said. Korda's own production plans for the new season will be ascertained on the arrival of Goldwyn and Fairbanks in London.

Goldwyn, however, described his European jaunt merely as a "brief vacation." With no production activity scheduled for the immediate future, he indicated that he seized upon the opportunity to get some further rest. Goldwyn returned only recently from a month's vacation in Hawaii.

Although obviously in good humor when he stepped from the Twentieth Century at Grand Central Station yesterday, Goldwyn was uncommunicative and flatly declined to discuss the possibilities of a deal for the purchase

Mexico Distributors Are Unable to Remit

Mexico City, March 21.—American distributors here are unable to remit to their home offices because of the suspension in foreign exchange operations following the action of the Federal Government in ordering the expropriation of the petroleum companies. The purchase or sale of dollars is impossible, creating a situation which makes any evaluation of the dollar difficult.

While distributors feel that exchange operations will be resumed shortly the quotation on the dollar is a matter of conjecture but it is felt that the rate will be two pesos to the dollar whereas the rate prior to the suspension of operations was 3.60 to the dollar.

Exhibitor business here is about 25 per cent lighter than at this time a year ago. Both the monetary situation and the existence of Lent are contributing factors.

Film Interests Not Hit by Hearst Move

Hollywood, March 21.—The motion picture interests of William Randolph Hearst will not be affected by the decision of the publisher to appoint Clarence J. Hatrick declared neither Cosmopolitan Productions nor News of the Day will be altered as a result of the appointment of the Hearst trustee. The corporate structure of both companies will continue under the same officers as at present, Hatrick said.

Los Angeles, March 21.—Aft hearing oral arguments on the Par mount demurrer to the newly-amend suit charging fraud over non-delive of eight pictures on the 1936-37 sche ule brought by 20 Southern Califor exhibitors against the distributor, Fe eral Judge Leon R. Yankwich tod ordered both sides to present writt briefs supporting their claims.

In a lengthy court appearance, A torney Dean Warner, for the exhil tors, charged that Paramount co mitted acts of fraud in making o agreements to deliver the pictures.

Motion Picture Daily

"'JEZEBEL' is a picture for any man's theatre and any customer's money! It is long since a picture to match this one for sheer power has come from any man's camera. If "Jezebel" doesn't hang up box-office records from Caribou to San Diego it will be because the 'recession' has been misspelled from the beginning.

It may be said that Warners had to turn out a crackerjack picture after all that talk about jumping the gun on "Gone With the Wind." Anything less than a knockout would have been branded a flop in the echo of that publicity. But "Jezebel" is no mere crackerjack or knockout. It is a tremendous and tremendously earnest motion picture containing a maximum of sound artistic and commercial ingredients and is completely free of hokum. Bette Davis' playing puts her at the top of the 1938 list of Academy nominations!"

Motion Picture Herald

"Showmen who have been wondering wha to do about shouting down the rumor about 'Recession' have here a practica solution to their problem.

Unless everybody who is anybody in Hollywood was mistaken when they saw it o Monday evening, "Jezebel" is just abou the liveliest set of marquee letters in the library at this writing. This title will pu the population on notice that a most extraordinary picture is to be seen within afte the usual wicket formalities.

It is big enough and strong enough to sen a Hollywood preview audience out talking to itself.

The press has been diligent in spreading the news about "Jezebel" and will be more so, now that the Coast correspondents have had a look. Previewed at the Warner Hollywood theatre, the audience found itself repeatedly applauding."

Hollywood Reporter

In 'Jezebel' Warners has its greatest film achievement and the industry an exceptional attraction of smash proportions! It is a compelling, emotional drama—an exceptional story with an excellent cast. It is in all respects a notable job!"

Film Daily

Impressive romance-drama of the old South with Bette Davis scoring brilliantly! Should click at the box-office! Excellent!"

Showmen's Trade Review

"Bette Davis gives a great performance in a film that will make box-office history!"

Variety Daily

"Best in Miss Davis' fine repertoire of screen impersonations and on a par with the screen's most memorable exhibits, it will win high acclaim! Business undoubtedly will be considerably spurred by the inevitable speculation which will be made between this Warner production and the forthcoming David O. Selznick's 'Gone With the Wind' as to treatment and casting and the b.o. benefit should be reciprocal!"

The Exhibitor

PITTSBURGH, March 21.—Thomas Proffitt and his wife, Ella Proffitt, of Chester, Pa., through their attorneys, today lost their suit here in the State Supreme Court to gain additional remuneration for property acquired by Warner Brothers. They sought to have the court set off an amount equal to the difference between the purchase price of the property fixed in an option clause in the lease and the actual price paid by Warners when the property was purchased at a sheriff's sale. The amount the Proffitts asked was to satisfy two promissory notes held by the circuit, which sued to collect.

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—Federal Judge George Cosgrave today ordered that plans for reorganization of Condor Pictures, Inc., under Section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act be brought into court by April 25 after Trustee Clinton E. Miller had said he believed a proposed plan would place the company on a profitable basis.

A petition of Consolidated Film Industries seeking reversal of the court's ruling holding that Automatic Productions Co. of Chicago was entitled to secured creditor status with a claim of $115,000 was presented.

Judge Cosgrave referred to Special Master Samuel W. McNabb a petition of Miller requesting an accounting from Glen Stephens, former president of Condor, and Lester Cowan, former manager of Hollywood Pictures, on $52,000 of Condor funds. Hollywood Pictures was formed to take over Condor assets and the money was turned over by Stephens to Gowan, the court was told.

Short Subjects

"Waiting Around"

(Vitaphone)

Perhaps the most interesting bit in this two-reel musical is the act of the Stanley Twins. They do an acrobatic dance that is a distinct novelty. Otherwise the film offers a lot of strained comedy by Frank Libuse and Shea and Raymond, an eccentric dance team. The last named three invade a night spot in an effort to interest a producer with their talents. Much noisy and supposedly humorous action follows and by the time the conclusion rolls around they get what they went after. It is routine. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Wee Wee Monsieur"

(Columbia)

The Three Stooges return to their reliable form of comedy. Here the audience will see them first as struggling artists in a Paris garret and then as Foreign Legionaires. They run through their familiar yet hilarious bag of slapstick and gags and emerge with laugh honors. The trio's followers will find it highly amusing. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 45"

(Universal)

A brief but interesting visit to the island of Nias off the coast of Sumatra and a glimpse into the workings of a doll factory provide the material in this issue. As usual it is well done and intelligently commented upon by Lowell Thomas. It will fill in nicely anywhere. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"The Ship That Died"

(M-G-M)

The weird circumstances surrounding the discovery of the Mary Celeste, abandoned at sea, are dramatized in this "Historical Mystery." The narrative, photography and handling of the subject are all that could be desired. The audience is left guessing. They'll like it. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The House-Builder Upper"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Popeye tries his hand at rebuilding Olive Oyl's house. He and Wimpy engage in various stunts. Eventually the house collapses. Spinach to the rescue. Reliably entertaining. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"The Foolish Bunny"

(Mintz-Columbia)

Youngsters will be delighted with this colored cartoon. It tells the story of a young rabbit that raised merry hell in school and as a result still attends when he is an old man. Clever animated touches. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Jungle Glimpses"

(Paramount)

Exceptional by virtue of diversity of material, condensation and effective color. A tabloid survey of South America that covers flora, fauna, reptiles, geographical and racial characteristics. In Cinecolor. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Hollywood Previews

"Joy of Living"

(RKO)

Hollywood, March 21.—It takes a little while before "Joy of Living" hits its stride, but after the preliminary shadow boxing is completed the film becomes a bubbling champagne cocktail of mirth, music and romance. The sparkling work of Irene Dunne, plus the efforts of the supporting company, give the film amusement ingredients and exploitation qualities entitling it to rank with any madcap comedy romance of the moment. Miss Dunne gives a performance in keeping with her recent farcical successes.

In the story Miss Dunne is a glamorous actress who supports the Leech family—Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee, Lucille Ball, Frank Milan and her twin nieces. She is happy in her ignorance of the fact that she is a sap. When Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., thrusts himself upon her vaporing a new economic creed interspersed with his ardent love pleas, things begin to pick up and hit a zippy speed. There ensues a hilarious courtroom scene which results in Fairbanks being placed on probation to Miss Dunne, hectically wild moments in a roller skating rink, a beer drinking episode that firmly establishes Miss Dunne as one of the screen's ace comediennes and a family scandal sequence that culminates in marriage. All is not serene as temperaments clash, but Miss Dunne comes to in time to tell the half-baked family off and depart on a South Sea honeymoon with Fairbanks.

The original story by Dorothy and Herbert Fields is rife in material which gives Miss Dunne scope to again display her fun-making talents. Gene Towne, Graham Baker and Allan Scott fashioned the screenplay. There are two songs by Jerome Kern and Dorothy Fields which Miss Dunne brings to musical life.

Tay Garnett produced and directed to let Miss Dunne carry the show with all her known and latent abilities. He also permitted the featured support, Eric Blore, Warren Hymer, Billy Gilbert, Jean Dixon, Franklin Pangborn, James Burke, John Qualen and Spencer Charters, to have their innings in the spotlight.

The picture should be a highly popular attraction in any kind of house and produce box-office returns commensurate with its entertainment worth.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"Tip-Off Girls"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, March 21.—This compactly constructed melodrama produced without benefit of great names generates speed, tension and impact equivalent to the net entertainment value of many and many a million dollar product. It hugs the so-known groove from takeoff to windup and tells a thrilling story of highjackers and G-men that is easy to believe and well worth the hour the telling takes. The picture can be depended on to satisfy everybody within sight and hearing of the screen.

Players who enact the several important roles with rare conviction are Lloyd Nolan, on the right side of the law this time; J. Carrol Naish, still the gangster; Roscoe Karns, as deputy hero; Larry Crabbe, as deputy villain; Evelyn Brent, as the girl crook referred to plurally and remotely by the misfit title; Mary Carlisle, as the heroine who has little to do with what goes on, and Gertrude Short as a 'phone girl who has less. The feminine contingent figures ever so sligthly in the proceedings.

The story, an original screenplay by Maxwell Shane, Robert Yost and Stuart Anthony, concerns the highjacking of cross-country trucks and felonious wholesaling of loot derived therefrom. Nolan is a G-man who joins the gang by way of obtaining evidence but has quite a sequence of highly credible adventures before he manages to bring about capture of the mob. These are stirring, logical and exciting, things to be seen and not synopsized.

Director Louis King and Associate Producer Edward T. Lowe wasted nary an inch of film nor minute of running time and kept the action tight, swift and lucid throughout. It's powerful, broad-gauge melodrama.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

C. H. Bailey, agent and spokesman for the union carpenters in this area, said, "The demonstration is a protest against cheap labor." Union cars lined the roads for blocks around the studio under construction and the paraders carried local union banners demanding that local labor be employed.

Goldwyn Will Discuss U.A. Schedule Here

of the Pickford, Fairbanks and Charles Chaplin interests in United Artists with the participation of either Selznick International or Alexander Korda. He also warded off all questions concerning the renewal of David O. Selznick's United Artists' releasing deal and the future status in the company of Korda.

"Is there any possibility of a deal for the purchase of the Pickford, Fairbanks and Chaplin interests in United Artists being consumated?" the producer was asked.

"I cannot discuss that subject," Goldwyn replied.

"Is the deal 'dead', or could it be revived?" the reporter persisted.

"I have nothing to say."

"Will Selznick continue to release through United Artists next season?"

"You'll have to ask Selznick that question," he replied.

"I thought an understanding might have been reached before you left Hollywood," the reporter remarked.

"I can't say."

Silent on Korda Release

"Will Korda continue producing for United Artists exclusively?" was the next question.

"You'll have to ask Korda," Goldwyn said.

"How about your own plans? How many pictures will you make next season?"

"I haven't decided," Goldwyn replied. "I never make very many."

Goldwyn and Fairbanks, accompanied by their wives, will sail on the Queen Mary tomorrow. Goldwyn said he expected to be away only two or three weeks. Fairbanks said he would be back about the first of June.

Indications in official quarters here are that no change in the status of the negotiations pertaining to the purchase of the United Artists stock holdings of Pickford, Fairbanks and Chaplin is likely to occur as a result of the Goldwyn and Fairbanks conferences with Miss Pickford and Korda. No deal is believed to be imminent and Goldwyn, it is felt, is primarily concerned at this time with ascertaining the amount and type of product which may be expected for United Artists next season.

Sigrid Gurie, Goldwyn contract player, was a member of the arriving party. They were met at the station by Arthur Kelly, Harry Buckley, Monroe Greenthal and other United Artists home office officials.

Spring Is Here

The first day of spring, yesterday, brought a recrudescence of picketing along Broadway. It seems that the company that owns the candy concessions at the Central, Globe and a few houses along 42nd St. is in the midst of a dispute with the stand attendants. Pickets with C.I.O. banners paraded in front of the theatres.

subjects are an important medium of training and employment and that hitherto they have suffered from cut-throat competition. He referred to the American system of "giving away" shorts under the present booking system. The approval of the amendment marked the third Government defeat on the Films Bill in the upper house of Parliament.

The Government successfully opposed another Moyne amendment, which sought to give the Board of Trade power to vary quotas where distributors or exhibitors are unable to meet their obligations. A proposal that the producer representatives on the Films Council be limited to British firms only was accepted.

Hearing on RKO Delayed 2 Weeks

Atlas Corp., proponent of the plan, told Federal Judge William Bondy that a draft of the amendments has been prepared but that further negotiations on some details were still required. The expected amendments are the result of a long series of conferences among RKO creditors.

Opposition to the delay was voiced by Nathan Rosenberg, attorney for H. Cassell & Co., holders of $150,000 in debentures, and Albert Reiss, holder of five bonds, who appeared in person Judge Bondy told Rickaby that all further adjournments would be limited to one week or a shorter period unless the amendments were presented to the court. Rickaby refused to reveal the present status of negotiation and said that any statement would be "premature and confusing." Abraham K. Weber, stockholders' attorney, dedemanded information about the situation of stockholders under the amendment, but Judge Bondy did not compel any disclosures.

Rosenberg Application Adjourned

Rosenberg presented a petition to permit his intervention in the reorganization proceedings, but his application was also adjourned to April 4. Judge Bondy indicated a reluctance to admit new parties to the litigation after the expiration of five years. Rosenberg contended that the uncertainty about the amendments was depressing the market for RKO debentures. He urged the court to permit debenture holders to liquidate the assets under a $60,000,000 blanket mortgage and said he was studying the trustees' report for the purpose of preparing a brief favoring immediate liquidation.

Committee and lost by a bare majority.

Assemblyman Harold Ostertag's employment agency bill which would have exempted circuits of over 20 houses and major networks from supervision by Industrial Commissioner E. F. Andrews and N. Y. License Commissioner Paul Moss was lost in the Senate after passage by the Assembly. Other employment bills killed included those of Assemblymen John Devany, Salvatore DeMatteo, Charles H. Breitbart and Senate bills sponsored by Senators Elmer Quinn, A. Spencer Feld and John J. Howard.

Matron, Seating Bills Die

Both matron and seating bills of Nicholas A. Rossi of New York were killed, together with a more severe measure by Assemblyman Daniel Flynn and Senator Feld, which would have held theatre owners liable to civil suit for $50 if safety rules were violated by overcrowding aisles, etc. Two race discrimination bills by Assemblyman W. T. Andrews and R. W. Justice, Harlem Democrats, also failed to pass. Senator Howard's bill conferring enforcement of safety and sanitary laws in certain outlying community theatres passed the Senate, but failed in the Assembly as did a similar measure handled by Assemblyman Armstrong.

The Fischel bill applying to stationary engineers, and provisions including boilers, refrigerating and airing plants under which many theatres fall, did not come out of its Senate committee.

Dog Racing Prospects Stir Up Speculation

ALBANY, March 21.—What effect the passage of the Quinn dog racing bill will have on exhibitors is a subject of speculation here. One track can be built in Erie, Nassau, Monroe and Weschester Counties after promotors get the permission of both local village boards and county supervisors.

Erie County had a track at Cheektowaga, Buffalo suburb, for 14 weeks during 1935 and exhibitors found their houses suffered. Seven of the eight Erie County Assemblymen opposed the bill.

Approximately $350,000 in license fees is expected. The measure was sponsored by the Greyhound Racing Association of New York.

Pari-mutuel betting is still a year or more away. Senator John J. It is expected to figure in the deliberations of the Constitutional Convention.

f radio will be far less frequent an they have been of late."

The Mutual Broadcasting System, in a telegram sent to the F. C. C. late Sunday night, pledged its "wholehearted" cooperation to the commission. The telegram stated: "Have learned of the action taken by the F. C. C. in voting for an inquiry covering 13 points on chain broadcasting and please be advised that we offer fullest cooperation. We place our personnel and records at the disposal of the commission and await notification as to how best we may cooperate."

The telegram was signed by Alfred J. McCosker and W. E. Macfarlane, chairman of the board and president, respectively, of the Mutual Broadcasting System.

CBS made known its intention to cooperate with the F. C. C. more than a week ago when adoption of Commissioner T. A. M. Craven's resolution was expected. The Craven program ultimately was tabled for Chairman McNinch's program, the one adopted. NBC has made no public expression on the subject, but a spokesman at that network yesterday said that NBC also could be counted on to cooperate to its fullest extent.

The officials preferred not to talk along the specific lines of the 13 points of the McNinch program, explaining that much of the data is of a highly confidential nature. They said they would discuss these matters only at the hearings in Washington.

Radio Probe Details Not Lined Up Yet by Communications Board

Washington, March 21.—No plans have yet been made by the Federal Communications Commission for its investigation of chain stations, it was learned today.

Members of the commission have yet to get together on the procedure to be followed, among the points to be settled, according to the commissioners, being whether the study shall be conducted by the full commission or a committee, where and when hearings will be held, and whether the hearings shall be wide open or executive on the ground that information to be gathered might disclose data desired to be kept secret by the individual stations.

Some days will probably be required to iron out all the questions which must be settled before the probe can get under way, it was said.

three years, and another (introduced by Rep. Lawrence K. Connery (Dem. of Mass.), requiring the granting of licenses under patents brought within a single control by competitors to dominate an industry.

Explaining that his measure was designed to carry out the recommendation made by President Roosevelt in his message at the opening of the session that certain practices should be ended, including the "use of patents laws to enable larger corporations to maintain high prices and withhold from the public the advantages of the progress of science," McFarlane said the bill was based on disclosures during an investigation of patent pooling some time ago.

That investigation, he told the subcommittee, developed that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. "through the patents they held almost dominated the sound motion picture equipment industry and now that television is coming on we find that the same group has apparently been able to control that field and we are wondering just where the stifling of our progress is going."

In order that the views of the Administration regarding the legislation may be ascertained, the sub-committee voted to send the measures to the Department of Justice for consideration by the Attorney General.

productions than during the previous year and resulted also in wage and salary increases in practically every phase of motion pictures, he said.

"Despite the mounting costs in the face of business recession generally, the industry feels that it must continue to progress, that it must continue to shoulder its responsibility," he continued.

Affording the public an insight into the part that the industry plays in the economic life of the nation, Schenck said that some 281,500 men and women in the United States are employed in motion pictures through distribution and theatre operation, and an additional 50,000 in Hollywood are engaged in production. The industry, he said, pays more than $100,000,000 annually in taxes. The 1937 payroll total for Hollywood alone was $91,000,000. The investment of the industry in the United States is $2,000,000,000; with the studio investment in Hollywood totaling $108,000,000.

Schenck pledged that in addition to contributing its share toward the national prosperity, the motion picture industry will continue to maintain the highest possible standard of entertainment.

"The industry must go forward, this year and in the years to come, to new achievement. It must continue to provide that very important element in national and international life—good motion pictures."

KENT REMARKS FURTHER ON THE SYNOPSIS PROVISIONS OF THE NEELY BILL

LEADERS who take the responsibility for imposing the Neely Bill upon the industry and who have never produced a picture, and who have never written a scenario, cannot recognize the true facts of the situation which make the synopsis provision of the Bill unworkable. The Bill does not require just a general synopsis that could be written safely. A general synopsis giving the cast and general outline of the story would certainly not be enough. The synopsis would have to be of such detail and such character as to fully reveal what would be in the picture when finished. Nothing but a foot by foot description is called for, particularly in the portion of the section which requires "a statement describing the manner of treatment of dialogues concerning, and scenes depicting vice, crime or suggestive of sexual passion."

I have spent hours talking with the studio about the workability of this part of the Bill and they have informed me that it is absolutely impossible for them to give us such a synopsis under present producing conditions because changes are so necessary and so apparent and so vital for many different reasons, that a picture is never really set until it is finally cut and goes to the laboratory.

The studio informed me also that even if a picture is finished and completed, if the picture were handed to six different writers on the lot to make a synopsis of its action and story content, everyone of the six would come out different because no two men see the action in a motion picture exactly alike. That is a fact that cannot be disproved.

Any attempt to hold a studio for the sake of sales, to a synopsis made many months to a year ahead of production, would prevent a vast improvement in a motion picture and would prevent any changes in a motion picture that a studio thought proper.

Such a synopsis requirement could be defended as clear and workable only by persons who are inexperienced in the business who have a surface and superficial knowledge of the workings of the industry and who are attempting on the basis of theories to propound a Bill destructive in its consequences.

If changes were made in a picture that made it a better picture than the exhibitor had when he got an original synopsis, the lawyers advocating this Bill would not advise their clients to cancel such motion picture, but they are good enough lawyers to pick out plenty of points in a synopsis if they wanted to, to break the contracts, and that is what they have in mind. They hope to involve distributors in a mass of litigation based on these synopses to the point where distributors would be spending most of their time in court trying to avoid wholesale cancellations by proving that the synopsis which was made up months before is in conformity with the picture that was made afterwards. In addition there is a criminal penalty for any knowingly false statement in a synopsis. Besides the financial hardship imposed, there is blithely imposed a criminal penalty on the officials of each distributing company which may be invoked if their description might be held by a jury to have been knowingly erroneous.

I repeat that the Neely Bill is going to result in exhibitors of all classes being forced to buy their pictures one by one in the exchanges of the country. That is exactly what the result is going to be and those exhibitor leaders who are seeking to bring that result about will have to shoulder that responsibility when and if it happens.

Narrators of Reels Fill in What Nazi Censors Sheared

Editors of the five newsreels utilized the narration of commentators in the footage on the Nazi coup in Austria in yesterday's releases in an attempt to present a true picture of the situation.

As a result of the strict supervision of camera work in Austria by Nazi authorities, and the pruning of negative by Nazi censors, the negative which arrived on the Queen Mary Monday morning was pro-Nazi.

The films showed cheering throngs "welcoming" the Nazi troops and later Hitler himself, with upraised arms and waving Nazi flags. The picture material was obviously one-sided in view of the newspaper stories previously read by newsreel patrons.

These newspaper stories had told of suicides, persecution of Jews, Catholics and others, the confiscation of property and the regimentation of the people of Austria.

The narrators supplied the lack. Lowell Thomas of Movietone News, Gene Marshall of Paramount, Jean Paul King of News of the Day, Graham MacNamee of Universal and James Clemenger of RKO Pathe News all tried hard to picture by voice what lay behind the scenes visible on the screen.

The importance of the subject matter was indicated by the fact that Paramount devoted its entire footage to the European situation, while the other four producers gave to it from one-third to one-half of the available footage.

Have 90 Days in Which To File an Appeal

Major companies which were defendants in the Perelman double feature case in Philadelphia intend to study the mandate of the U. S. He pointed out that the distributors have 90 days from the date of the decision in which to appeal to the Supreme Court. The appellate court's decision was given on March 10.

It is alleged that the AFA refused permission to Miss Rand in a letter which referred to the NVA as "a dual organization" and "of little consequence." According to Handin, it is necessary to have the letter produced before suit can be brought.

Hollywood Previews

"Night Spot"

(RKO)

Hollywood, March 22.—The police and criminals again come to grips in "Night Spot" and a love story is told. Although formula in conception and development, the film has several elements of novelty in the manner in which both melodrama and romance are developed and comedy included. None of the players possesses high ranking name value. They do, however, go about their work in an energetic manner and under the workmanlike direction of Christy Cabanne cause "Night Spot" to be a fair sustaining attraction.

In return for presenting an alibi that absolves him of a murder charge, Bradley Page permits Joan Woodbury to sing in his night club. The suspicious police place two rookie officers, Allan Lane and Gordon Jones, in the orchestra to keep an eye on Page. As Parkyakarkus furnishes comedy, romance develops between Lane and Miss Woodbury. Failure to prevent a robbery engineered by Page, forces Lane off the police job for a while. By convincing his superiors that through the girl he can trap Page, he is permitted to work in his own way. Eventually Lane manages to learn Page's plans, but as the crook's capture is effected, romantic complications set in when Miss Woodbury discovers that the supposed musician is a cop. He gets a promotion and a honeymoon.

Miss Woodbury's work in the film gives indication that she will shortly be ready for more important assignments. Lane, Page, Jones, Lee Patrick, Parkyakarkus and Joseph Crehan are adequate in their roles.

Anne Jordan wrote the original story which Lionel Houser adapted in the style common to such type scenarios. Cabanne's direction takes full advantage of the material available and the talents of the players.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"A Trip to Paris"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, March 22.—Twentieth Century-Fox's successful series of homey comedies, "The Jones Family," is continued with "A Trip to Paris," in which the same characters are involved in new difficulties in a new locale. This time the "Joneses" go to Paris, meet up with a cousin living on the Left Bank, are entertained royally—at their own expense—and become innocently involved in an espionage plot.

The clean comedy which characterizes this series is deftly heightened in the screenplay by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan, who squeeze each situation dry of laughs. Mal St. Clair deftly paces the direction to give each of the cast his moments in the spotlight.

In addition to the "family" of Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane, Spring Byington, Russell Gleason, Ken Howell, George Ernest, June Carlson, Florence Roberts and Billy Mahan, who appear regularly in the series, the cast includes Marvin Stephens, Joan Valerie, Harold Huber, Nedda Harrigan, Leonid Kinskey, Armand Kaliz and Clay Clement. Kinskey, as a French hotel detective, does an outstanding bit of comedy portrayal. Max Golden was associate producer.

Prouty is forced to "save face" by taking his family to Paris on his silver wedding anniversary. Ken Howell becomes infatuated with a beautiful girl and innocently becomes an aide to a spy ring. His romance is shattered by her arrest, and that of her accomplices, but all ends well.

Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

"Mr. Moto's Diary"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, March 22.—Crammed with suspense and pushed to its denouement at a crisp pace, "Mr. Moto's Gamble," another in the 20th Century-Fox "Moto" series, perhaps will rank among the wider appealing melodramas of this type. It is based on a murder committed during a prizefight without any visible means. Peter Lorre heads the cast, supported by Keye Luke, Dick Baldwin, Lynn Bari, Douglas Fowley, Jayne Regan, Harold Hubler, Maxie Rosenbloom and George E. Stone.

Based on the character created by John P. Marquand, the original screenplay of Charles Belden and Jerry Cady provides for plenty of action, mostly in the fight ring. It had the preview audience swaying in the seats to the accompaniment of the landing blows. James Tinling directed. Humor is supplied mostly by Harold Hubler, Rosenbloom and Luke. John Stone was associate producer.

Lorre, instructor in a scientific criminology class, is called in to help solve the mystery of how a boxer died after his match on which large amounts of money had been wagered against him. When Lorre enters the case, suspicion points to a number of characters, complications with a gambling ring arise, attempts are made on Lorre's life, and the murderer is disclosed in the final three minutes.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Hepburn Probes Into Ontario Admissions

Toronto, March 22.—An immediate investigation into the admission prices charged by theatres in Ontario has been ordered by Premier M. F. Hepburn because exhibitors had allegedly failed to keep their promise to pass on to the public the benefit of the cancellation of the amusements tax last June. This probe is to govern the action of the province with respect to the imposing of further new taxes, he declared. If it is found that exhibitors had not reduced prices to the extent of the former amusement impost, then the theatres will encounter substantial taxation of a different type, presumably in the form of increased license fees.

"The revenue from the amusements tax during the past year amounted to only $227,000, whereas, during the previous year, it was nearly $2,000,000," declared Premier Hepburn in his budget speech before the Ontario Legislature. "Before this tax was cancelled last June, I had a conference with the principal theatre owners of the province and received from them their solemn promise that, if we abolished the amusements tax, they would pass the benefit on to their patrons and, in no case, would they increase the price of admissions to their places of entertainment.

"Reports have reached me that this promise has not been honored."

J. J. Fitzgibbons, managing director of Famous Players Canadian Corp., says theatres will oppose any attempt to place an amusement tax on patrons.

Toronto to Tax Tickets

Toronto, March 22.—This city has decided to impose a local tax on theatre admissions in a move to bolster civic revenue in lieu of monetary grants from Federal and Provincial Governments for unemployment relief. The amount sought by the city in the first year from this new source is $400,000 and it will supplement other existing forms of municipal taxation such as annual license fees and property taxes as well as business levies, all of which are also to be increased, it is announced.

Sherwood for "Passage"

Hollywood, March 22.—Robert E. Sherwood has been engaged by M-G-M to make a screen adaptation of "Northwest Passage," current best seller of Kenneth Roberts. Sherwood has just finished the screen adaptation of his own play, "Idiot's Delight."

"Lord Jeff," Freddie Bartholomew starring vehicle, has been placed in production at the M-G-M studio.

Neely Bill Is Lambasted at O'Shea Lunch

John J. O.Connor, Tom Connors, Harry Brandt, Walter Reade, Joseph Seider, David Bernstein, Clayton Bond and Robert Lynch of Philadelphia, as well as Weisman, Brecher and Nizer.

The Neely-Pettingill bill was considerable of a topic. Brecher started off the speaking by saying that "under the bill, they have to give you a synopsis and you read it, and if you don't like it you have to buy it anyway."

This was in lighter vein, as were some of the other talks.

Tom Connors, M-G-M division manager and O'Shea's superior, traced the new district manager's 19 years of service with the company, starting in Buffalo. He disclosed that O'Shea was not baptized "Ted," as he is known, but Edward Kelly John, and that while his initials are "E. K.," he is also "O. K."

Reade, on Giveaways

Walter Reade, facetiously, said that when O'Shea moved his family from Albany and took an apartment here, he got three months' free rent from the landlord, having been told that this was a custom here. He added that it is also a custom in New York when selling film contracts to give six months free rental, but as an afterthought said, "I don't know if that will go."

The first really serious note came with Weisman's talk. Saying he spoke not only as an attorney but also as an exhibitor, Weisman declared that "exhibitors in this district have never had to resort to legislation from outsiders, strike suits or bludgeoning."

Launching his attack on the Neely-Pettingill bill, he said: "We are now faced with a serious situation from brainstorming, crackpot, dopey legislation which has all signs of being ruinous to the industry. Unless we who are opposed to such measures get together to defeat it, we might be pushed into it by a vociferous minority which does not know what it is doing."

Legislators Criticised

He had more remarks to make about the "crackpots in Washington who are trying to put through this bill," and pleaded for maintenance of harmonious relations between exhibitors and distributors "without outside reformers to tell us how to run our specialized industry."

Also alluding to the disputed anti-block booking measure, Nizer said that "when legislation is not in accord with the facts, there is tragedy which exhibitors may well try to avert." Saying that he was restating three fundamentals that govern the business, he cited them as follows: 1. The natural conflict between buyer and seller is not inconsistent with the friendship that exists among them; 2. The industry is integrated so that when any part of the industry suffers, the entire organism is affected, the same rule applying conversely in times of prosperity; 3. The industry by its very nature has a public interest, "and we serve that interest better when we realize our obligation to each other."

Nizer took the word "flop" as a symbol of the industry's ills, saying the letters in the word represented "Federal legislation, overseating and price cutting."

Telegrams were read from William Scully, whom O'Shea succeeded as district manager and who now is Universal general sales manager, on business in Atlanta; P. T. Dana, Universal branch manager in Albany; Lewen Pizor, president of the U. M. P. T. O. of Philadelphia, who said he was prevented from attending by illness, and William F. Rodgers, M-G-M general sales manager, who sent a message from San Francisco, where he attended a regional sales meeting.

Harry Brandt presented O'Shea a scroll signed by those attending. O'Shea replied briefly. He said he considered the tribute not so much a personal one as one signifying the high regard in which those present hold his superiors, Rodgers and Connors, and he acknowledged their aid, as well as that of the late Felix F. Feist, general sales manager of M-G-M, in the progress he had made.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 55

(20th Century-Fox)

The cameramen have done well in recording indelibly the most recent of Europe's significant occurrences. Hitler's usurpation of Austria is well pictured, as customs barriers are removed and Hitler's stolid, heavy-shod troops and machines pour across what was once an international border, and he himself is welcomed with hysterical cheers.

In other words, it is clear that the cameramen have taken precisely what they were permitted to record, and neither more nor less. It remained for editors here, preparing words for the narrator to deliver, to attempt in some small measure to present something of a true picture of what had transpired—and is transpiring—a story of blood and suicide, dictatorship and fear. The reels did what they could, and their work is of some historical significance, but they perforce present only half a picture—in pictures.

Fully half of the reel is devoted to scenes in Austria, then are shown the formation of a new French Cabinet by Leon Blum; the army of Franco starting its final "push" against the loyalist defenses in Spain; George of England visiting a munitions factory.

Strikingly mild and almost ludicrous by comparison are the closing scenes—of fashion parade of spring styles for brides, and a race of lifeboats in the surf on the Australian coast, which is entertaining. Running time, 10 mins.

News of the Day

Vol. 9, No. 253

(M-G-M)

Approximately half of the footage of this number of the reel is devoted to a pictorial treatment of the events in Europe which have startled the world during the last fortnight. The opening, of course, is devoted to scenes depicting the Hitler Nazi coup in Austria, but with every indication that the cameramen were strictly supervised with respect to what they should take. All the Austrian footage is one long "howl" of acclaim for the Nazis, and only the narration, which is good, presents a true picture of what is happening in the hitherto free "nation" of Austria.

The careful editing which went into this European phase of the reel offers the president of Czechoslovakia in conversation with ex-President Hoover on a recent visit, the French Cabinet crisis, anti-Nazi riots halted by the police in London following the Austrian coup, George VI visiting a so-called "shadow factory" where implements of war are fashioned in secrecy and the opening drive of the insurgent "push" on loyalist Spain.

In sharp contrast to scenes of death and unrest are pictures of a feminine underwear show in Florida, California girls in bathing suits disporting themselves on the beach, Mrs. Roosevelt at the ground-breaking of the San Francisco exposition, and the sporting division, showing the Notre Dame football team in spring training and a steeplechase in England, with its quota of spills. Running time, 10 mins.

Paramount News

Issue No. 66

(Paramount)

Paramount devotes this entire issue to Europe's disturbed state with the principal emphasis on the German coup in Austria, and it is an excellent job of editing with what is admittedly material chopped by Nazi military censors.

Maps are used to point up Gene Marshall's comment. Marshal Rydz-Smigly's mobilization in Poland before his ultimatum to Lithuania, shots of Spanish troops crossing open terrain, with comment on the German and Italian intervention there, crowds around Poremier Blum in Paris and members of the British cabinet arriving at 10 Downing St. are presented. This is a buildup for the Austrian material.

Von Schuschnigg's campaign before the plebiscite which Hitler stopped introduces the Viennese scenes. Troops arrive, crowds sing, Nazi banners are unfurled, Hitler rides at the head of a column of military automobiles. The commentator points out at the finish that the darker side of the event—anti-Semitic riots, arrests, suicides—was not photographed. Running time, 9 mins.

RKO Pathe News

Vol. 9, No. 70

(RKO)

The Nazi invasion of Austria is the lead of this issue. With due regard for the censor's scissors the material has been given good editorial treatment. The narrative is strong stuff, describing behind-the-scenes angles to the story as the shots of troop movements, crowds and other accessories to the event are paraded on the screen.

The rest of the makeup utilizes an interesting assortment of events including the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League tournament at the Harvard pool, tornado wreckage in Illinois, a ski meet at Sun Valley, automobiles being blessed in Rome, fancy ice skating in Paris, Mrs. Roosevelt breaking ground with a tractor for the San Francisco exposition, candid shots of Richard Whitney at a grand larceny hearing, football practice at Notre Dame and dirt track automobile racing in California. Running time, 8 mins.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 10, No. 651

(Universal)

This issue delivers the goods. It opens with the Nazi invasion of Austria and in a secondary vein offers scenes of a Communist demonstration on Times Square protesting the coup. The Austrian scenes show troops arriving at various points on the border, the surface reaction of the people, the Nazification of Vienna and the arrival of Hitler. There are also portrait shots of the various political personalities involved.

The remainder of the reel offers a demonstration of non-skid tires, Venice, Cal., bathing girls indulging in a little snow fun on the beach; the circus giving its first performance at Sarasota, Fla.; the wreckage left by a tornado in Illinois, the St. Patrick's Day parade in New York, a lingerie show in Miami, the Notre Dame football team coming out for spring practice and Easiest Way dramatically winning the Cocoanut Grove purse at Coral Gables. Running time, 9½ mins.

will be done when a copy of the decision is received, he said.

This spokesman said that the appeal in the Hoblitzelle-Interstate Circuit case at Dallas which is scheduled to come up in the U. S. Supreme Court next week probably will have no bearing on the Philadelphia action and that the companies are considering filing a writ of certiorari for a review of the Philadelphia decision.

M-G-M, which was a defendant in the Philadelphia case, will not be affected by the court's prohibition because the company has not used the restrictive clause for the past two seasons, according to the legal department.

Not to Affect Procedure

In distributor circles it was indicated that the court decision will have little bearing on the companies' present methods of doing business in the Philadelphia area because a majority of the theatres do not play double features. Nat Levy, RKO district manager, estimated that 95 per cent of the Philadelphia theatres are single bill houses, with about five per cent of the subsequent runs having a double bill policy.

The Warner theatre department yesterday described as "ridiculous" reports from Philadelphia that the circuit plans to adopt a twin feature policy.

for an appeal on "The Birth of a Baby"—banned by Director Irwin Esmond and Commissioner of Education Frank P. Graves. It has not been known whether the Board of Regents is considering the A. C. M. W. plea as an entirely new matter, or whether the appeal merely concerns upholding or reversing Dr. Graves' negative decision.

Some believe that if the committee's plea is considered as a new appeal the film might be re-submitted to Director Esmond.

Draw your own conclusions from this little tale. The teams on the "True or False" quiz program the other evening were made up of radio editors versus girls of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Radio Guide magazine, anxious to have the all-around winner, did not enter any of its New York office staff, but sent for Ken Purdy, the "bright boy" of its Philadelphia office.

Ken was eliminated.

One sure-thing bettor, however, fared well. Ken Lyons, the press agent, bet two bits on Aaron Stein, giving Dave Alber, another "p. a.," the choice of the field. Stein won the contest hands-down, and Lyons collected.

Ben Bernie arrived at a meeting of the National Association of Performing Artists the other day, looked about and noticed Dr. Damrosch and Dr. Fritz Reiner among those present. "Well, there are two among us who can read music," he cracked. Those at the meeting included Paul Whiteman, Phil Spitalny, George Olsen, Xavier Cugat, Don Voorhees, Benny Goodman and other bandleaders of that calibre.

It happened over WABC the other day on the Modern Age Book program. Subject of the talk on this particular program was a discussion of the book "Tickets to Fortune," a tome which gives the lowdown on the meagre chances the average participant has of winning a prize in a contest or raffle.

Having painted for the listeners a sufficiently discouraging picture as to what they are up against in entering a contest, the commentator concluded by offering 50 copies of the book to the listeners writing the best letter on the subject which was covered in the book.

Phil Cook, whose "Morning Almanac" program is heard over CBS at the unseemly hour of 7 A. M., asked for and got the 6:30 to 7 P. M. Sunday spot on the network which the Wrigley Co. is giving up. Phil will take over his new period this Sunday.

Thereupon Phil asked if the network wouldn't give him a playhouse from which to broadcast. He was told to prove that he could muster an audience sufficiently large to warrant giving him a theatre. Last Thursday on his 7 A. M. spot, Phil began to ask his listeners if they would like to see him broadcast. By 2 P. M. the very same day the mail count was 654, and the first mail the following morning brought the total to 5,881 letters. The response as of yesterday was not quite 9,000 letters, and Phil has been told he can have the theatre.

Deny Broadcast Charge

A general denial was filed by WBO Broadcasting Corp., operators of WNEW, and Elin, Inc., in the U. S. District Court here yesterday, in answer to the suit brought against them and Paul Whiteman by the RCA Mfg. Co., Inc.

The complaint charges that WNEW broadcast recordings of Whiteman's music without permission, and seeks a decree that the plaintiff has exclusive right to issue licenses for broadcast purposes. Whiteman has filed a counterclaim in which he contends that the recording agreement did not include broadcast rights. WBO's answer alleges that permission for the broadcast was obtained from Ascap.

Bandits "Air-Trapped"

Okmulgee, Okla., March 22.—When KHBG here was asked to give frequent news bulletins and assist police officials in pursuing two bandits who robbed the Bank of Paoli, Okla., recently, the station complied, dropping all commercial programs, and devoted three hours and a half to this service, according to T. R. Putnam, station manager.

The bandits had taken the cashier and his wife as hostages in the direction of Okmulgee. Other stations in the territory also gave frequent news bulletins to aid the police and to warn the public. The bandits finally were forced to release their hostages when a farmer and his son who had heard the radio broadcasts went out gunning for them.

Albany, March 23.—The Constitutional Convention, to convene here April 5, unquestionably will be called upon to deliberate resolutions affecting the film business. That the last New York State Constitutional Convention gave consideration to film censorship, however, is not generally known—or remembered.

Held in the spring and summer of 1915, New York's last Constitutional Convention considered 725 proposals, many of which were amended. One of the resolutions introduced was by Delegate Mark Eisner of New York City, whose bill provided for "amending Section 8, Article 1, by prohibiting the censorship of motion pictures by providing that no law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of the motion picture screen."

Blumberg to Be Named as Member Of MPPDA Board

Nate J. Blumberg, Universal president, is scheduled to be elected to the board of directors of the M. P. P. D. A. at the organization's next annual election. Blumberg will replace R. H. Cochrane, former president of Universal, who represented the company on the Hays organization board for many years.

The annual meeting of the M. P. P. D. A. board is scheduled for Monday, but there is a possibility that the election may be postponed to a later date due to the absence from New York of many company heads who are members of the board. Company heads who are now out of town include Leo Spitz, RKO; E. B. Hatrick, Cosmopolitan; Cecil B. DeMille; Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox; Sol Lesser, Principal; Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's; H. M. Warner, Warners; Jack Cohn, Columbia, and Blumberg.

All officers of the association are expected to be reelected. They are Will H. Hays, president; Carl Milliken, secretary; Frederick L. Herron, treasurer, and George Borthwick, assistant treasurer.

Twenty Scheduled As U.A. Minimum, Asserts Schaefer

United Artists has scheduled a minimum of 20 features for release during 1938-'39, it was said yesterday by George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager of United Artists. So far this season the company has delivered 25.

Schaefer said that the product lineup would be as follows: Samuel Goldwyn, five; Walter Wanger, five; Alexander Korda, five; Edward Small, three, David O. Selznick, two. As is usually the case with U. A., there is the possibility that the total will be increased by product from outside producers.

Before sailing for England yesterday, Goldwyn said that he planned six films for next season, which would increase U. A.'s schedule to 21.

Douglas Fairbanks said he had no plans for production. Mary Pickford does not intend to reenter production, but she may change her mind, Schaefer said. U. A. does not look for a picture from Charles Chaplin for next season, although he is thinking about one, which would be his first Silent About Purpose of His Visit to Korda

"All negotiations with David Selznick are off and I don't know whether he will stay with United Artists," said Samuel Goldwyn before sailing for England yesterday on the Queen Mary. Goldwyn's reference was to negotiations which had been under way for weeks in Hollywood which contemplated that Selznick International would purchase an interest in the company and become a participating partner.

Goldwyn declared that the United Artists setup would consist of "the same partners" and denied that there was any deal on with Alexander Korda for the acquisition of the partnership stock interest held by Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

He was vague, however, as to the purpose of his trip, other than declaring that he was going for discussion of certain matters with the head of London Films. David Rose, vice-president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc.,

Dallas Case Hearing Unlikely Next Week

The prospects of the distributors' appeal from the Dallas Federal Court decision in the Interstate Circuit anti-trust case being heard by the U. S. Supreme Court next week were dimmed yesterday when George Wright, attorney for the distributors, was informed that a hearing date would not be set until next Wednesday. Wright will apply to the clerk of the court on that day for the hearing assignment which, ordinarily, is set for three days to a week thereafter. Wright is now in Dallas.

The distributors' appeal seeks to have set aside the Dallas Federal Court's finding of conspiracy in the making of contracts regulating subsequent run admissions and double featuring. Pending the outcome of the appeal, the distributors will not move for a review by the high court of the recent Philadelphia Federal Circuit Court of Appeals decision upholding a lower court finding that distributors conspired in the writing of contracts which prohibited double featuring in the Philadelphia territory.

Units Fail to Set Grading Agreement

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, March 23.—The Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association and the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) were no closer to an agreement on the problem of grading films today after a joint meeting on the matter than they had been before the session. The meeting was adjou[illegible] with no headway having been n[illegible]e, the K.R.S. committee agreeing to place the views of the C.E.A. before all the members of the distributor organization.

The distributors presented a plan under which all films would pass a distribution-controlled clearing house and the K.R.S. would decide on the category of each film. The exhibitors declare they are not implacably opposed to the K.R.S. claim to the right to classify product, but refused to consider that the distributors have any right to assess values of individual pictures, claiming that to be a matter solely between seller and buyer.

The exhibitors demanded the separation of the problem into two parts one designed to curtail overlong programs and the other designed to regulate rentals. The K.R.S. will mee again tomorrow and will hold another joint session with the C.E.A representatives next Wednesday.

Australian Circuits Complete Film Deals

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, March 4 (By Air Mail via London).—Australia's major circuits, Hoyts and Greater Union, now virtually have completed negotiations for product with all distributors, bringing to a close an interesting battle of tactics which has been going on officially since Jan. 1, but unofficially for a much longer period.

On paper it seems Hoyts have gained an early advantage. Product deals by this company have been entered into with United Artists, 20th Century-Fox, Warners, RKO, Columbia, and Gaumont British. The Columbia deal is spread over a period of years.

Greater Union has closed with Paramount, Universal (for three years), M-G-M and Associated Distributors, while it also will have the output provided by the local producing organization, Cinesound. The M-G-M deal excludes attractions of road show calibre which M-G-M will require for its own first run houses in the key centers. These are the St. James and Liberty in Sydney, and the Metro and Cremorne in Brisbane and the Metro in Melbourne. M-G-M, however, has enough film of good quality to make profits for Greater Union in the situations controlled by that circuit in the capitals.

M-G-M in Strong Position

M-G-M product deals in Australia with Greater Union, and in New Zealand with J. C. Williamson Films, the Fuller-Hayward Circuit. N. Z. Theatres and Christchurch Cinemas place the company in a dominant position in the two dominions. The company will service eight city outlets in Sydney, two exclusively. In Melbourne it will have four city outlets, one exclusively; it has two outlets in Brisbane, both depending entirely on M-G-M product, and further strong representations in Adelaide, Perth, Newcastle, and Tasmania. In New Zealand, M-G-M is booked for 240 situations.

"Jezebel" 2nd Week Ends with $70,000

"Jezebel" ended its second week at the Music Hall last night with $70,000, against a first week take of $78,000. "Merrily We Live" at the Capitol took $22,000 and "Start Cheering" finished with $7,300 at the Rialto.

Hollywood Preview

"Goodbye Broadway"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, March 23.—This is a new treatment of James Gleason's "The Shannons of Broadway" with Alice Brady and Charles Winninger in the principal roles supported by an experienced cast including the veteran Dell Henderson, Donald Meek and Jed Prouty and in the younger register, Tom Brown, Frank Jenks, Dorothea Kent and Tommy Riggs of the Rudy Vallee airshow. As produced by Edmund Grainger and directed by Ray McCarey the picture has much to commend it to popular attention. It is treated as a straight comedy in somewhat refreshing contrast to the corkscrew variety recently dumped on the market in wholesale lots.

Roy Chanslor and A. Dorian Otvos wrote the present screenplay, preserving the essence of the original. It will be recalled that the plot details the adventures of two vaudeville troupers who invest their savings in a small-town hotel. The place is coveted by a greedy local realtor. Their investment becomes profitable when the property grabber ultimately tricks himself into paying them more for it than they need to set up a chicken ranch. Whereupon, the boards calling, they decide to stick to vanishing vaudeville.

Miss Brady's performance is more to the pattern of her Academy Award role in "In Old Chicago" than her giddier works of recent date. Winninger's will recall to oldsters his lively didoes of the period when the Winninger Brothers' roadshow furnished an annual sensation in every good show town from Ohio to the Texas border. Riggs, who works without a dummy and doesn't stiffen his lips, seemed to please the preview audience.

Goldwyn's financial adviser, ac- nied him. Rose will sit in at London conferences and will re- n with Goldwyn. They expect to it their stay in England to a week. Goldwyn parried all questions re- rding the significance of his forth- ning meeting with Korda. Fair- nks, who also sailed, likewise re- ed information, insisting that ldwyn was the spokesman.

The two U. A. partners arrived here m the coast on Monday and for o entire days before sailing were in nference with Mary Pickford. hile no statement has been made, a ldwyn spokesman indicated that an reement had been reached which ened the way for revival of the gotiations which collapsed three onths ago for the Goldwyn-Korda quisition of control.

George Schaefer at Pier

George J. Schaefer, vice-president d general manager of U. A., said odbye to Goldwyn and Fairbanks the boat.

The original deal assertedly fell rough because of the lack of imme- ate capital and the problem of heavy overnment taxes on the sale of the eferred stock. The revamped terms ovided that instead of being paid ,000,000 in cash, the three partners ould accept substantial cash pay- ents and the balance in stock.

"Will the deal go through if Korda n raise the capital?" Goldwyn was ked.

"I can't tell you that," he replied.

The Prudential Assurance Co. of ondon was interested in the deal last ll as the chief underwriter of Lon- on Films.

Taxes a Factor

Mary Pickford on her recent ar- val in New York said that taxes ere still a problem, that the Govern- ent would consider the stock trans- r an outright sale and would levy n income tax against the sellers. The x would be 40 per cent, which would bstantially reduce the amounts the ree partners would receive.

Both Goldwyn and Fairbanks were companied by their wives. Fairbanks id he planned to return next sum- er. In a flower-banked cabin in airbanks' suite reposed the ashes of is friends, Lord and Lady Plunkett, ho were killed in a plane accident on e coast.

Fanny Ward, mother of the late ady Plunkett, also sailed on the ueen Mary with her husband, Jack ean.

$13,199,206. For the first two months of the calendar year, however, revenues were but $34,000 ahead of a year ago, totaling $3,013,056 against $2,979,029, it was shown.

Improved business in the Third New York (Broadway) District accounted for more than half of the total increase in collections over January, the bureau disclosed.

Total collections in that area were $506,240 against $339,074 in the first month of the year, most of the increase being attributable to heavier collections at the box-office, which advanced from $271,505 to $417,766.

Other collections in the Broadway sector were reported by the bureau as follows: free or reduced rate admissions, $5,249 in February against $4,966 in January; tickets sold by brokers, $26,643 against $15,535; tickets sold by proprietors in excess of established prices, $4,230 against $243; permanent use or lease of boxes and seats, $2.95 against $5.84; admissions to roof gardens and cabarets, $52,349 against $46,819.

Van Dyke Is Optimistic

Portland, March 23.—The present slump in production at Hollywood studios is not permanent and conditions are gradually bettering themselves, according to W. S. Van Dyke, M-G-M director, who stopped here briefly with Buck Jones, western film actor, and Herman Kersken, San Francisco theater manager.

"The old saying that the picture business is only as good as the pictures still goes," Van Dyke said. "True, film production has been rather slow in Hollywood, but the condition is not permanent."

Van Dyke, Jones and Kersken are on vacation. At Seattle they were joined by two schoolmates of Van Dyke, one a state employe at Olympia, and the other a postal employe of the Puget Sound city.

The party left Seattle on Van Dyke's yacht for salmon fishing along the British Columbia coast. They may continue on to Alaska. The party will be gone from two to four weeks.

Agreement Near on Code for Theatres

managers submitted several weeks ago to the Equity council, the latter's representatives reported that the council was willing to participate in the agreement providing a sufficient number of representative managers were included. About 10 leading producers have signed the agreement and Equity's delegates were advised by Pemberton that the managers have a campaign under way to obtain additional signatures and are confident of securing enough to warrant the adoption of the basic agreement.

The proposed agreement, which will probably be given a one-year trial at the outset, would include a code of fair practices governing the sale and distribution of tickets based in principle upon the NRA code provisions, "modified to meet existing conditions." The code would permit Equity, upon proof that a manager-signatory had violated it, to refuse to allow its members to perform for him. Since the code is also to be made a part of every Equity employment contract, no manager could acquire immunity from its provisions by refraining from joining the managers working under the basic agreement, it was pointed out.

Managers, Treasurers Agree

The Theatrical Managers and Treasurer Union has agreed to abide by whatever regulations are adopted by Equity and the managers, yesterday's meeting was advised. Power to enforce the regulations will remain with the actors' organization, a power which was not granted by the NRA code and which is held to explain the failure to achieve the desired results.

The proposed agreement will be submitted to the membership of the League of N. Y. Theatres, the producing managers organization, at a meeting to be called shortly. Steps to place it in effect for next season will be taken immediately thereafter in the event sufficient approvals are obtained.

The managers who attended yesterday's meeting were Marcus Heiman, Lee Shubert, Warren Munsell, Max Gordon and Brock Pemberton. Representing Equity were Meredith, Mary Morris, Edward Fielding, Eliot Cabot, Philip Loeb, Paul Dullzell, Paul N. Turner, Robert T. Haines and Alfred Harding.

"Delinquent Parents" and "Wayward Daughters" are now in work. The other two titles are "Scandal House" and "Stepmother."

Jerome E. Olenick has been signed as publicity director.

"This is a period of recession, and in such periods minorities suffer, among them the Jews." He discussed today's situation in Austria and expressed alarm for other centers in eastern Europe. The movement is to provide in Palestine "a home for the Jewish people which they can call their own."

Among those on the dais were W. G. Van Schmus. Langdon W. Post, Walter Reade, Barney Balaban, Saul E. Rogers, and representatives of the legitimate theatre. Wires were received from Spitz on the coast, and Eddie Cantor, both of whom pledged $1,000 to the fund.

Mutual Issues New Promotional Piece

The Mutual network has just issued its latest promotion book, "Study in Ups and Downs," a hard-covered volume written by the network's promotion manager, Robert A. Schmid and illustrated in five colors by Robert Carroll. The volume traces the results achieved for "Blue Coal" via a Mutual program for the D. L. & W. Coal Co.

"Study in Ups and Downs" is a fine promotional production job and the volume certainly merits award consideration. The copy shows how "Blue Coal" in 1937 raised sales 10.8 per cent over the same period in 1936 through its Mutual program, despite a small talent and time budget and stiff program competition. B.

20th-Fox '37 Net Profit Increases to $8,617,114

Gain Goes Through 4th Quarter—Theatres Also Improve

Despite a business recession which struck in the latter months of 1937, 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., yesterday reported a net profit for the year ended Dec. 25, 1937, of $8,617,114, which was $894,160 better than the net profit for the year 1936, which totaled $7,722,954. It will be remembered that 1936 was virtually unaffected by economic recession in the manner that the past year has been.

In the case of both the above net profits, they are taken after all charges, including income and surtaxes and foreign exchange adjustments. In the figures for both years, dividends from National Theatres Corp. are included in the amount of $1,134,000 for each year. These dividends were received in the fourth quarter of each year.

The profits for the fourth quarter of 1937 were $3,718,200, compared with $3,472,275 for the fourth quarter of 1936 and $1,143,000 for the third quarter of 1937.

Highly significant as well of the unusual financial strength shown by the company in 1937 is the fact that after deducting all dividends paid on the preferred stock in 1937, the balance of 1937 earnings was equivalent to $4.11 per share on the common stock outstanding on Dec. 25, 1937.

In a statement which accompanied the financial report, Sidney R. Kent, president, said, "While new sales records were established in 1936, still

A 20% Return

Simple computation reveals that at the current market price of 18¼ per common share of 20th Century-Fox stock on the N. Y. Stock Exchange, the net profit for the year 1937, which was equivalent to $4.11 per common share after preferred dividends were paid, indicates a return on the investor's money equal to more than 20 per cent.

The $4.11 was not paid, of course, the difference between that figure and the $2.50 which was paid going into reserve.

Tax Cut Sought

London, March 24.—English exhibitors today appealed to the Treasury for an adjustment of the current tax on inexpensive seats.

Yates Says Republic Has Six Millions in Bookings

Republic Pictures has $6,000,000 in business on its books represented by exhibition contracts and has received several offers from prospective purchasers, all of which have been rejected, H. J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, told Consolidated stockholders at their annual meeting yesterday.

This and other information regarding Republic was given by Yates in answering stockholders' questions regarding the extent of Consolidated's investment in the film company and its prospects.

The only official business before the meeting was the election of four directors for three-year terms starting yesterday. The candidates presented were elected without opposition. They were J. W. Coffman, J. E. MacPherson and M. J. Siegel, president of Republic Productions, who were reelected, and E. H. Seifert, a new member. Seifert was described by Yates as general manager of Consolidated's laboratory at Fort Lee. He succeeds Ben Goetz on the directorate, the latter having resigned as vice-president some time ago to become a production executive for M-G-M in England.

There was no discussion of a new recapitalization plan for the company. M. H. Lavenstein, attorney for the Yates enterprises, said the Delaware courts held invalid the plan which was approved by the stockholders in 1936 on the ground that it required the stockholders' unanimous consent. He invited suggestions on a new plan. Only two or three stockholders offered suggestions. One of these was Nor-

Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corp. has notified the New York Stock Exchange that it proposes to reduce its authorized common stock from 2,000,000 to 1,400,000 shares. Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 56
(20th Century-Fox)

The usual punch is lacking in this release, which contains little outstanding from a spot news standpoint. President Roosevelt's speech at Gainesville, Ga., in which he asked the South to join the forces of social progress leads it off, but shots of the crowd interfere with a concentration on the President himself.

Cardinal Hayes gives a peace message on his 14th anniversary, and this is a close runnerup to the Roosevelt talk. Training of air corps rookies provides some exciting flying. The rest includes change of army command at Honolulu, Lew Lehr's description of a wrestling free-for-all in the snow, and a Paris fashion show, in addition to the sports division which has the Golden Gloves fights, Harvard rowing and a skating carnival. Running time, 9½ mins. F.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 254
(M-G-M)

Adept handling of President Roosevelt's speech at Gainesville, Ga., almost all in closeup, and Cardinal Hayes' message on peace heightens the interest. Two other clips that will have a wide appeal are George Bernard Shaw in some wisecracking remarks and George VI of England trying out an ancient automobile used by his grandfather, Edward VII.

Paramount News
(Paramount)

The New York Americans-Rangers hockey game gets the lead position in this release, with plenty of the speed and action of a good hockey game having been caught by the camera. The fatal journey of the Susquehanna River log raft gets second position, although the pictures, themselves, are uneventful. There was no camera record of the accident to the raft which cost several lives, including that of a newsreel cameraman.

The balance of the reel is of a routine order, but the subjects are diversified, brief and, for the most part, of general interest. They include the launching of a new submarine on the Pacific coast, construction work on San Francisco's 1939 exposition grounds with Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt as a visitor; Herbert Hoover's reception in Poland; cherry-blossom time in Washington; a Chicago couple who paid for their baby with penny savings; Mark Hawley, Connecticut artist, and his bird paintings, and a presentation of Kentucky Derby favorites. Running time, 9 mins. K.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 71
(RKO)

President Roosevelt's criticism of Southern wage scales and "feudalism" at Gainsville, Ga., on Wednesday appears in this newsreel as a forthright statement of Administration policy, certain to command audience interest, either sympathetic or provocative. The subject is deserving of the lead position in the reel, which it holds, even though other material crowds it for mass interest in this uniformly good release.

Pictures of the Eucharistic Congress in Australia, the significance of the Government's half-billion dollar slum clearance drive; Chinese-American relief work for war refugees of their native land, and the spectacular burning of the lake steamer City of Buffalo, at Cleveland, all are of more than average interest. Completing the release are pictures of a Madison Square Garden ice carnival, effectively photographed; a water polo contest with plenty of action; Harvard crews in their first spring practice on the Charles, and King George VI sampling 1899 touring methods in an automobile owned by his grandfather, Edward VII. Running time, 9 mins. K.

Vol. 10, No. 652
(Universal)

Four or five wrestlers and a referee in a ring filled with a foot of snow at Lake Worth, Fla., wind up the Universal reel with a series of laughs. It's one of the funniest things filmed in months, with all the standard clowning technique of wrestlers complicated by their inability to stay on their feet.

The other 11 subjects cover a varied field. One is a glimpse of the novena which draws thousands to a Chicago church daily. A solemn angle is provided by shots of the log raft on the Susquehanna River on which Thomas Proffitt, a Universal cameraman, lost his life.

Other clips include the results of the bombing of Formosa; some fancy flying by Naval cadets at Pensacola; the ruins of the City of Buffalo, a steamer, at Cleveland; the making of chocolate Easter rabbits; some ludicrous and serious boxing in the Golden Gloves tournament; a girl's soft ball team in action at Memphis; tennis lessons by Donald Budge at Miami; an exciting hockey game at Madison Square Garden, and shots of Man-O-War at Lexington, Ky., with a five-day-old son. The horse is still a magnificent animal. Running time, 9 mins. J.

Japanese Sought Republic Control

Among the offers for purchase of control of Republic Pictures was one from the Japanese Government, H. J. Yates stated after the meeting of Consolidated Film Industries stockholders yesterday. It was rejected.

This offer, he said, would have assured Consolidated $1,000,000 profit over the total investment in the company.

Asked if he knew why Japan wanted the company, he said he surmised that it wanted control of an American producing and distributing organization for "propaganda purposes."

man Johnson, plaintiff in the action in which the original plan was held illegal. Johnson said that he now felt that he was partly to blame for the lack of recapitalization plan and therefore was working on an alternative proposal which he would shortly submit to the officers. Another stockholder said he would submit a plan whereby the corporation could buy 50,000 shares of Consolidated preferred stock at the market price of slightly more than $5 a share in order to meet back dividends on the preferred.

About 50 persons attended. A total of 510,496 common and preferred shares was represented, of 924,973 outstanding on Dec. 31, last, 14,594 shares being represented in person.

Queried on Republic

The stockholders displayed more interest in Republic Pictures than any other operation of the organization. When questioned about earnings, Yates replied that an amortization table is being set up for Republic and until that is completed it would be difficult to estimate the earnings accurately. He said that he would be willing to make a statement on earnings at the end of Republic's fiscal year April 30.

After the meeting, he privately said that his present estimate of Republic's earnings last year was $200,000. He declared that the franchise holders earned $800,000 in the same period and that he considered the two amounts unbalanced and therefore would ask the franchise holders to reduce the percentages charged for distribution, which range from 20 to 45 per cent.

A stockholder asked why Consolidated had become so heavily involved in Republic during 1937, in which year the parent company paid $902,100 for Republic's stock. As of the first of this year, the unpaid balance of Consolidated's loans to Republic amounted to $2,211,783.78.

Republic Setup Explained

"Consolidated has been interested in Republic since June, 1935," Yates said. "Since 1917 it has been lending money at interest to film companies to control their printing. It has been our experience that producers, after emerging from their swaddling clothes, opened their own laboratories or forced down the price of printing.

"When Consolidated went into Republic it was on a basis of having control. We saw an opportunity where a lineup of product at a medium cost of from $55,000 to $100,000 per picture would be acceptable to exhibitors. The company has been through the usual trials and tribulations of building a picture company. It is now in its third year and I don't think I am exaggerating to say that it has a tremendous future. In due time it will earn more money for Consolidated than all of its other companies combined."

He said that Consolidated owns a total of 225,000 shares of stock in Republic, 150,000 of which is outright and 75,000 through a beneficial interest in holdings of the Cajo Corp. in which the Setay Corp., another Yates corporation, also shares.

Yates said that the Biograph studio is owned by a separate corporation. The lease on the studio expires next fall, and he gave no indication whether it would be renewed. He said he had found eastern production unprofitable.

Republic in the last four weeks has done more business than in any comparative period since it was started, he continued, and predicted that playdates would increase to May 1. He said the $6,000,000 in exhibition contracts held by Republic is a lien owned by Consolidated since the parent corporation has first call on collections.

Yates said that Republic had been offered $500,000 for Gene Autry, its top acting name, and had refused it. Autry, he said, is seeking higher wages, but "in a week or two" Yates said he believed the dispute would be settled.

RKO Slate Clean

RKO has liquidated its past indebtedness to Consolidated and owes the company nothing except current bills, Yates said.

Consolidated has discontinued color film development after an investment of more than $250,000 in its coast color plant, he stated. He said that the company is keeping up with color technique to some extent and if the industry swings to color, the laboratory can begin production "over night."

Technicolor is not competition to Consolidated as yet, he said, "but if they can ever get their process down to the cost of black-and-white, they would be a serious threat."

Ralph Poucher, head of Consolidated Film Laboratories, reported this subsidiary as "in excellent shape" and said he was working on a deal with one of the largest film companies which would increase the plant's capacity 30 per cent. This contract will be for five years. He said that while production costs have increased, rates have not been boosted to the accounts as yet.

Subsidiary Reports Profit

R. W. Altschuler, president of the American Record Co., another subsidiary, said his company is showing a profit and that business is as good as in 1927 or 1928, at the height of prosperity. He said that the retail price of the company's records would be increased from 25 cents to 35 cents on April 7. A report on another subsidiary, Consolidated Moulded Products Corp. of Scranton, was given by J. P. Case, its president.

associated with an advertising agency, together with P. D. Cochrane.

There is no deal on at the present time for the purchase of Erpi's security holdings in Universal, according to ranking officials of the former company. It was pointed out that Erpi does not regard the investment as a permanent one and that, in fact, the company's policy is to relinquish all direct ties with producing and distributing companies, which means, of course, that eventually the $1,250,000 Erpi investment in Universal will be disposed of. Any deal appears to be distant at this time, however, with no negotiations under way and unfavorable market conditions prevailing.

No Smoking

There was practically no smoking at the Consolidated Film Industries stockholders' meeting yesterday. The two-hour session was held in an air-tight recording room at the company's headquarters at 1776 Broadway. A lady of advanced years complained that the smoke was too much for her, even before the meeting got under way. Meyer H. Lavenstein, the company's general counsel, admitted to being gallant and doused his cigar. The other smokers followed suit.

Opening a pet subject, that of artists who retain a loyal and devout following despite—or perhaps because of—years spent in performing harness, one wonders why Morton Downey has not returned to the air. Nightly at Billy Rose's Casa Manana, Downey almost literally tears down the roof. If ever a voice was suited for the microphone, it is Downey's unbelievably high and sweet tenor tones. He was one of radio's first great attractions, and he could become one again if brought back to the air.

Mason to Press NBC Short Wave Activity

Frank Mason, NBC vice-president and assistant to President Lenox R. Lohr, yesterday was appointed to direct all short wave activities of that network. Mason will assume his new duties immediately.

In appointing Mason director of short wave activity, Lohr made the following significant statement:

"While the licenses under which short wave stations operate are experimental and carry no public obligation per se, NBC feels that it, along with other private broadcasters, must see to it that the United States does not lag behind other nations in international short wave broadcasts. In this period of world stress and widely conflicting political ideologies, it is especially important that NBC be alert to the needs of the United States for communicating its policies and actions to all parts of the world."

NBC's short wave station is W3XAL.

systems for which the plaintiff corporation has made application on the inventions of Vladimir K. Zworykin. Zworykin made inventions for television systems and applied to the Commissioner, Westinghouse alleges, but interferences were declared by the Commissioner because of applications made by several later inventors of television systems and patents were not issued.

Westinghouse charges that after several hearings and appeals the Commissioner decided in favor of the patent application of Henry Joseph Round. RCA owns full interest in the Round application while Westinghouse owns full interest in Zworykin's inventions. Westinghouse now asks the court to adjudge Zworykin the true and original inventor and to assign to Westinghouse the entire rights.

Witnesses today were Jonah Bernard Nathanson, Charles K. Storvel and Joseph T. Tykociner, all of Pittsburgh, appearing for Westinghouse. They are television experts and delved into the purely technical side of the industry.

Volume on Coverage Is Prepared by CBS

The latest report of CBS on station coverage, devoted to a study of evening hours, has been issued in book form by the network. Written and compiled by Vic Ratner, sales promotion manager for the network, the volume is one of the most exhaustive studies of radio station coverage ever compiled.

The volume, by text and maps, treats the coverage areas and gives the market data for each station affiliated with the network. It is far more valuable than most books of its type in that it differentiates between night and daytime coverage. A companion volume to the book at hand, which will deal with daytime coverage, is now in preparation and will be available some time next month. B.

Radio Sustaining Artists Get Pat on Back at Ampa

The lowly radio sustaining artists, called thus according to a long-standing, grim joke in radio because their salaries are just able to sustain them, were brought out from their usual place behind the well known eight ball for a mite of praise by Earl McGill, casting director of CBS, at the weekly Ampa luncheon yesterday.

McGill urged motion picture interests to listen to radio with a wider discrimination than heretofore; to eschew the big commercial programs which feature established radio and screen players for the run-of-the-mill sustaining output. From these programs will come the radio and film stars of the future, McGill said.

Radio, McGill said, can afford to experiment with new players in an effort to develop them, whereas the screen and stage cannot because of the expense involved.

"Unknown players no longer head for the Broadway casting offices when they arrive in New York," he said. "They head straight for the network headquarters. If, after an audition, we feel they have talent we place them in sustaining programs which cost very little to produce. If they develop we sell them to sponsors, to the stage and to the screen. If they do not develop, radio has lost comparatively little money."

He cited numerous past instances of talent thus developed, and currently, he said, the network was attempting to build up via sustaining shows personalities like Barry Wood, Ruth Carhart, Doris Rhodes and Charles Cantor.

Guests at the luncheon included Leila Rogers, mother of Ginger Rogers and head of the RKO talent school; Joy Hodges of "I'd Rather Be Right" and Senora Claudia Volta.

Paul Lazarus, Ampa vice-president, presided in the absence of Ralph Rolan.

Defeat Plan to Open CBC Board's Records

OTTAWA, March 24.—The House of Commons Committee on Broadcasting today rejected a motion that the minutes of a certain meeting of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. board governors be filed with the secretary. The vote was nine to two. In a heated session, Earl Lawson, Conservative chief and opposition critic of the corporation, moved for production of the minutes from which L. W. Brockington, chairman of the board of governors, previously had read excerpts.

Lawson wanted them for private study by committee members. Transport Minister C. D. Howe jumped into the fray, declaring making such records available to the committee would be unfair to an industry operating in a competitive field. Lawson fired back that it was against the principles of British justice to allow a witness before a House committee to read extracts from a document which was not open in its entirety to committee members. After much wrangling a committee vote went against Lawson.

Set Kate Smith Show

Kate Smith, beginning April 4, will start a three times weekly sustaining commentary series on CBS. This will be in addition to her commercial program over the same network for General Foods Corp. According to a report, the reason for the double series of programs, which is somewhat unusual, is that Miss Smith is negotiating to do a daily syndicated newspaper column, and she feels that being on the air as often as four times a week will help build up the column.

continue to be great attractions on any program as long as good stories, good music and good entertainment appeal to the public," Warner declared.

"It has become almost a habit in Hollywood for some spokesman to put up scarecrows in any field of entertainment into which they are not, at the moment, willing to venture. When an announcement is made that any certain kind of picture will not be produced 'next year' it usually means that the announcer, for one, has no suitable story or stars to use in that particular field of entertainment.

"We ought to pay attention to the business of making better pictures and less to these slightly foolish efforts to scare our competitors."

Objections Delay Senate Action on the Neely Bill

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Objections voiced by several senators today prevented consideration of the Neely block booking bill when that measure was reached during consideration of the Senate calendar.

The bill was called up in a routine manner, but was passed over when several senators said "over," which is all that is necessary to defer consideration. There was no discussion, naturally, and none of the objecting senators vouchsafed any reason for his action.

The bill will be called up again when the calendar is next taken up.

New Admission Tax Threatens Canada Houses

TORONTO, March 25.—The Toronto City Council has decided to send representatives to Premier M. F. Hepburn of Ontario and his Provincial Cabinet to seek enabling legislation to impose a tax on theatre tickets in the city.

The move is seen as a new and definite step in the recent movement toward the imposition of an admission tax in the province, which was abolished last June. The Toronto City Council, at an emergency session on the necessity for increased local reve-

Shelve Federal Arts Project

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The House Education Committee today decided to lay aside a number of educational bills, including those looking to the creation of a Department of Fine Arts, pending further study of a report just prepared by the President's Advisory Committee on Education.

The committee's report does not deal with films in education and only in passing with radio, suggesting with respect to the latter that the Government should continue to administer a national program of education by radio "to the extent to which such type of program proves to be desirable."

"Education by radio," it was pointed out, "is an especially appropriate activity to be carried on under national educational auspices, since the cost of such programs under state and local educational auspices may prove disproportionate to the audiences that can be reached by local non-profit programs."

The House Committee will hold another meeting early in April for further consideration of its program.

Metro Plans No Increase In Film Terms

Rodgers Says Individual Spots to Govern Price

CHICAGO, March 25.—No general rental increases will be asked by M-G-M for its 1938-'39 program, William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, said here tonight at the conclusion of the two-day regional sales conference at the Palmer House.

He added that the prices to be written into contracts will depend on individual situations, with local conditions to be taken into consideration. The company's sales campaign will get under way immediately, he said.

Rodgers attended meetings in Kansas City and San Francisco prior to the conference here. He said his observation was that business is pointing upward for the spring, with conditions on the coast and in the east "very favorable" as compared with last year.

He also reported finding exhibitors more lenient toward radio and that they now feel the air "plugs" help pictures at the box-office.

Rodgers will leave here tomorrow to preside at the New York meeting which starts Sunday morning and extends through Monday.

M-G-M Shorts Total To Equal This Year

M-G-M's shorts program for 1938-'39 will be substantially the same, numerically, as this season, it was said yesterday by home office officials. This year the company is releasing 94 shorts, including 12 two-reelers. An increase has been considered, but in any event the number of two-reelers will be held down because of widespread double billing.

Details of the shorts program will be given to eastern and southern Terry-Toons have been released through Educational since 1930. Educational's releasing contract with 20th Century-Fox will expire July 31 and the short subject company is now formulating its future plans.

Terry is acquiring color cameras, has added a floor to his premises in New Rochelle and has added 15 men to his staff, increasing it to 70, in anticipation of the color and feature development. He plans to add more artists as the new program gets under way. He believes that eventually all cartoon producers will make features and that the market can absorb a maximum of six, later finding its level.

Allied Motion Picture Operators' Union also was named a defendant. Harris asked for an injunction to prevent the agreement from going into effect.

Under the terms of the settlement Harris withdrew his seven companies from the I.T.O.A. and will employ Local 306 operators under a separate agreement. Seven actions filed by the I.T.O.A. against Harris' companies to collect $2,500 in dues back to May 1936, have been dismissed.

New Admission Levy Threatens in Canada

nue to relieve the tax pressure on real estate, approved the move to seek permission for the amusement taxation by a vote of 13 to four.

If the plan goes through, as expected, because of alleged acquiescence on the part of Premier Hepburn, the way will be open for all other cities and towns in Ontario to establish an amusements tax as a means to reduce the current real estate impost. It is understood that Toronto is ready to slap on a levy of 10 per cent of the face value of admission tickets to theatres. So far, no mention has been made of the possibility of taxing other forms of amusement and recreation, such as professional and amateur sports, dances and midway attractions, all of which were included in the former provincial tax collection.

No date for the meeting with the Ontario Cabinet has been arranged, but the Toronto Board of Control was instructed by the City Council to arrange the conference without delay so that the tax can be imposed within the statutory 60 days after the passing of the required law by the Ontario legislature. The prime movers for the new measure are Controllers W. J. Wadsworth and Fred Hamilton, both of whom have been prominent in local sport activities, which fact makes it appear that theatres alone will be affected.

Agfa Ansco Reports $723,025 Net Profit

Agfa Ansco Corp. has reported net profit for 1937 of $723,025 after taxes and other charges, the largest earnings in the history of the company, according to Dr. Ernst Schwarz, president, including an estimated surtax of $232,002. The net is equal to $1.51 per share on the 480,000 shares of $1 par common outstanding. The net profit for 1936 amounted to $157,486, equal to 33 cents per share on the common.

Employment, payrolls and sales reached the highest level in the history of the company last year, according to Dr. Schwarz. Additional compensation was paid to employes in the amount of $101,071 and the company paid its first dividend, 50 cents per share.

Investment data called for by the commission will include, separately, the orginal cost, depreciated value, and replacement value new of all equipment, furniture and fixtures, real estate, etc.

All expenses of operation are to be reported separately, under 14 heads included in the questionnaire, and broadcasters must show their net revenue from broadcasting services, other income, gross income, income deductions, net before Federal income taxes, estimated Federal income taxes and net income for the year.

The financial survey, ordered at a meeting of the commission March 23, is designed to provide data both for the chain investigation ordered last week and to make up deficiencies in information possessed by the F. C. C. as pointed out by Commissioner T. A. M. Craven in January in his report on the social and economic aspects of broadcasting.

7, has been reduced by $300,000 since the first of this year. The same report said that $669,842.92 was due on trade notes on Dec. 31 last and it was explained that this represented purchases of raw stock.

The company's properties and plants are carried on the books at $8,158,953, less $2,748,861 reserves for depreciation.

Profits thus far in the first quarter are somewhat below last year, it was said, but an increase is being shown this month. The company expects to do about the same total volume this year as last, when sales and royalties totaled $9,635,961. The volume, however, is no indication of profits, it was said, due to the higher cost of materials and a 35 per cent increase in labor costs. These factors reduced Consolidated's earnings to $605,755 in 1937, compared with a net of $919,515 in 1936.

New Series to Be Added for M-G-M Shorts

List to Total 92, Sales Meet Here Is Told

With the exception of a new series of 10 one-reelers to be called "The Passing Parade," M-G-M's shorts program for next season will be substantially the same as this year. The company has scheduled for release 92 shorts, all but 12 of which will be single reels. Ninety-four shorts are being distributed currently.

The new series will feature John Booth Nesbitt, radio commentator, and will give the background of semi-topical events. The subject matter will not be dated, however. M-G-M will, in addition, continue to release "News of the Day" on the basis of two issues weekly.

Announcement of the shorts schedule was made at the company's eastern and southern sales conference which

Report Asher Will Take Columbia Job

London, March 27.—Irving Asher, who resigned recently as head of Warners' British production activities, is negotiating with Columbia to assume charge of that company's British production requirements under the new Films Bill, it is reported in industry quarters here.

No verification of the London report could be obtained from Columbia home office officials over the weekend. Joseph Friedman, Columbia's European manager, who returned to New York recently after several days of conferences with Harry Cohn, Columbia president, in Hollywood, declined to comment on the report. PROFIT SHARING LATEST UA PLAN

Proposed Stock Change Is Aimed to Benefit Active Producers

A proposal for the redistribution of United Artists stock to permit active producers to obtain an increased share in the earnings of the company and to make it possible, as well, for non-stock owning producers releasing through the company to participate in the earnings of their individual pictures, is being proposed to company partners by Samuel Goldwyn, it was learned yesterday on good authority.

The Goldwyn proposal reportedly contemplates stabilization of the controlling ownership of United Artists as it is now constituted, that is, without any sale of the stock interests held by Charles Chaplin, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Alexander Korda and Goldwyn. The present inactive partners, however, are asked to exchange their present common stock for a new issue of preferred which would pay a fixed dividend rate. Active producers would exchange their present common stock for a new issue of common which would be entitled to participation in company earnings remaining after payment of dividends on the preferred.

For non-stock owning producers, percentage deals would be made on individual pictures and long term distribution deals between United Artists

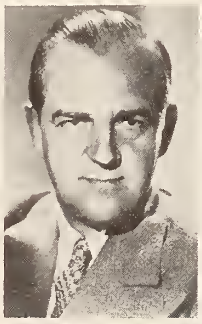
Leaders of Industry Unite In Dallas Depinet Tribute

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM



Ned E. Depinet

Dallas, March 27.—"Depinet Day" came to Dallas yesterday with official Texas joining hands with film notables from the east and west coasts, honoring Ned E. Depinet, vice-president of RKO, Dallas "boy who made good." A guest list of 400 crowded the Baker Hotel crystal ball room for a dinner and entertainment lasting until early today.

When the Depinet party arrived, a motorcycle escort proclaimed the news to the natives. Dallas and all Texas were Depinet-minded. Escorts met every train and plane which poured film notables into the city.

Seated at the dais, and acting as toastmasters and speakers of the evening, were Gov. James V. Allred of Texas, Mayor George Sprague of Dallas, Jack Oakie, Jules Levy, Gradwell Sears, Frank Freeman, Harry Cohen, Karl Hoblitzelle and R. J. O'Donnell. Hoblitzelle and O'Donnell were the hosts of the day.

The New York contingent met the Hollywood crowd at the airport and both joined the parade into the city. On the New York train were Sears, Phil Reisman, H. J. Yates and about 40 others. The Hollywood plane brought Jesse Lasky, Cliff Reid, Bob Sisk, S. Barret McCormick, J. R. McDonough, H. B. Franklin and others. M. H. Aylesworth flew from New York in his private plane.

First Run Doubles Started in Chicago

Chicago, March 27.—First run double features made their bow in the Loop yesterday when Balaban & Katz inaugurated the policy at the Apollo.

The theatre will play "B" films mostly, with "A" product continuing as single features at the circuit's Loop houses, according to B. & K. executives.

The new policy was ascribed to a jam of "B" pictures which were unable to get a first run and is expected to speed up release of "B" films.

Ban Marijuana Picture

Philadelphia, March 27.—A film having for its subject the narcotic marijuana has been barred from exhibition here by the state board of censors.

Two Theatres Close

The Strand, Ocean Grove, N. J., has closed because of a fire. The Navarre, Coney Island Ave., Brooklyn, also closed last week.

Insiders' Outlook

SOME of the medical and welfare organizations which have been led into the campaign to obtain censor approval of "The Birth of a Baby" seem to have lost sight of one important fact—the picture can be shown privately before groups where no admission fee is charged.

If members of the Motion Picture Committee of the American Medical Association, the American Committee on Maternal Welfare, Inc., or the Parent-Teachers Association, or any other group, feel exhibition of the picture will serve some useful medical or social purpose they can obtain prints by paying the usual rental and can find places to exhibit it.

In their enthusiasm for a reversal of the censor ban in this state and elsewhere they forget that the picture was produced and is being distributed for one purpose—to make money. Its basic appeal to younger audiences will be mordid curiosity stirred by the title in spite of all the safeguards placed about advertising and exploitation.

People go to theatres to be entertained, and those who pay money to go to see this film will do so because they expect to have their emotions stirred in some way, not because they hope to obtain some educational benefit.

P. J. Wood's latest bulletin to members of the Ohio Independent Theatre Owners' Association repeats that the Neely Bill will not prevent selling pictures in groups and insists producers will have no difficulty supplying synopses.

If the bill doesn't definitely prohibit any kind of block booking and if it doesn't make it possible for an exhibitor to cancel a picture that does not agree with a synopsis in detail, what does it do?

Seek Wage Cut from Milwaukee Operators

Milwaukee, March 27.—A request for a reduction in projectionists' wages by Milwaukee exhibitors has been met by a counter proposal from the projectionists' union, Local 164, that exhibitors first sign the master contract agreed to last November which provides for a 10 per cent increase over a two-year period.

Exhibitors maintain that their business has fallen off from 10 to 20 per cent during the past four-month period and that it is imperative that the union extend some relief in the form of a reduced wage scale. Indications are that exhibitors will agree to sign the November contract and then present a request for a definite reduction to the union.

Profit Shares Are Proposed In U.A. Plan and individual producers would include options to purchase common stock, if desired by the producer.

Goldwyn's proposal is understood to have been tentatively approved by Chaplin, although Miss Pickford and Fairbanks are reported not to have committed themselves on it. Goldwyn is scheduled to submit the proposal to Korda within the next few days in London.

The plan is said to have been broached as an alternative adjustment method upon the recent discontinuance of negotiations by John Hay Whitney and Selznick International for the acquisition of a partnership stock interest in United Artists from either Miss Pickford, Fairbanks and Chaplin, or all of them. The discontinuance of these negotiations, following upon the collapse last fall of the Goldwyn-Korda option deal for purchase of three-fifths stock interest not held by them, is said to have impressed the five United Artists stock owners with the futility of attempting to consummate a deal for the sale of the controlling interest at this time. The obstacles to a deal encountered in the course of both negotiations are regarded by the five partners as insurmountable, it was said.

Would Attract Talent

In addition to stabilizing United Artists ownership, the Goldwyn proposal is believed to have the advantage of attracting outstanding production talent to the organization by virtue of the definite assurances of participation in the earnings of successful pictures which it holds out to individual producers.

Goldwyn's proposal is said to be modeled after a plan advocated for United Artists by Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl Zanuck in 1931. Their plan was regarded as a fair one by United Artists partners at the time. However, subsequent personal differences within the organization led to the withdrawal of Schenck and Zanuck from the company, which prevented their plan from being placed in operation.

known whether Columbia's British production plans were decided upon during these conferences, but it is believed more likely that no decision will be made by the company until the Films bill is in its final form and out of Parliament.

Jack Cohn, Columbia vice-president, who will return to New York today from a vacation in Bermuda, stated on his return from a visit at the studio recently that the company's British production plans had not been decided yet, but that it was highly probable that Columbia would send its own production units to England to make the required quota pictures. Friedman will confer further with the Columbia vice-president prior to his departure for London on the Queen Mary April 6.

No Showman, He

After three months of experience in all phases of theatre work, Y. Frank Freeman, Jr., son of the Paramount theatre head, decided that an exhibitor's career is not the life for him. Freeman is now studying plans for entering business on his own—but in other fields.

His sampling of exhibition before deciding on it as a career was done at the suggestion of his father, who started him in January as a barker at the New York Paramount with brief assignments in other theatre departments—all without pay—subsequently.

Mexican Film Future Hangs On Labor, States Goodman

Whether American distributors withdraw from Mexico depends on the extent to which the labor unions in Mexico City press their demands, it was said here over the weekend by Morris Goodman, Republic vice-president in charge of foreign sales, who returned Saturaday from an eight-week tour of South and Central America.

He reported that conditions in the film business south of the Rio Grande are better than in this country for the reason that unemployment is less. The only difficult problem is the Mexican labor situation, he said.

Goodman foresees no great displacement of American product by Spanish language pictures, although, he said. native production is on the upsurge The American companies will have to take steps to meet this competition, he said, declaring that dubbing, once tried and discarded, is the solution. Films for the Spanish market now have superimposed titles.

He confirmed reports given by other foreign sales heads that while the interior towns, with large illiterate populations, favor the Spanish language product because they can understand it, filmgoers in the large cities are more discriminating and many speak English or want to learn the language.

Goodman said that some of the reports issuing from Mexico City regarding the future of production there are exaggerated, particularly as to costs and revenue.

Goodman covered Brazil, Venezuela, Colombia, Panama, Guatemala, Mexico City and Cuba. He concluded a deal with RKO in Rio de Janeiro to handle Republic's product in Brazil, terminating an arrangement with International Films. He also signed a contract for distribution of 20 to 24 films a year in Mexico by Dada-Dada, a producing and distributing organization. Contracts with distributors in the other countries of the continent were renewed.

Republic's westerns are popular in South America, Goodman said, and Gene Autry has become a favorite due to a very intensive campaign in his behalf.

Short Subjects

"What Do You Think?" No. 3

(M-G-M)

Highly interesting excursion into the inexplicable. It is as good, perhaps better, than previous numbers. Story concerns the young widow of a famous violinist who is about to commit suicide. A weird occurrence as she prepares for death changes the course of her life. Tastefully handled. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 47"

(Universal)

Here is another collection of reliable curiosities. The highlights of the reel are the shots of bathers swimming in water that is covered with pumice. Varied and entertaining. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Time Out for Trouble"

(Columbia)

Charley Chase gets into romantic difficulties with his sweetie. He tries suicide. It backfires. Gangster complications and plenty of slapstick. It has many laughs and will satisfy. Running time, 16½ mins. "G."

"Paramount Pictorial P 7-8"

(Paramount)

Three tastefully handled topics; feminine beach wear, a metropolis at night and beauty treatments for dogs. Well photographed, entertainingly presented. Good subject. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Auto Clinic"

(Mintz-Columbia)

There is a good imaginative idea in this cartoon that should be received as novel amusement by practically every audience. It is one of the Krazy Kat series. Krazy runs a scientific auto treatment establishment where the cars are given medical, dental and sanitary care. A tough character interrupts business by using counterfeit money in robot gas jumps and the usual bedlam breaks loose with Krazy coming out on top. Running time, 6½ mins. "G."

"Tears of an Onion"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Many new animation tricks lift this one out of the routine, but the story sets it back again. It's fair stuff about vegetables. In Technicolor. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Feed the Kitty"

(Universal)

A fairly entertaining cartoon. It is the usual cat and dog affair where the former eventually befriends the latter over a pan of milk. The action is good. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Captain Kidd's Treasure"

(M-G-M)

A handsomely produced vignette dealing with the mystery of where the famous pirate buried his treasure, the possibilities of finding it and the historical background. First rate. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Hollywood Preview

"King of the Newsboys"

(Republic)

Hollywood, March 27.—Solid entertainment behind a vapid title, "King of the Newsboys" is an able welding of action, romance, comedy and suspense, built on the fight of a youth of the slums to obtain riches and win his childhood sweetheart, whose early spurning of him for the favors of a wealthy man provide his incentive. The most trying job showmen playing this picture will have is to sell the title, which, while having some exploitation value may prove more hindrance than help.

Patrons drawn in to see "King of the Newsboys" certainly won't go away disappointed. The cast is topped by Lew Ayres, Helen Mack, Alison Skipworth, Victor Varconi, Sheila Bromley and Alice White, all of whom deliver seasoned performances and several of whom may find themselves elevated in the cinematic world by virtue of their characterizations. The screen play by Louis Weitzenkorn and Peggy Thompson from the original story by Samuel Ornitz and Horace McCoy is a work replete with interest-holding elements. This, his first American picture, augurs well for the future of Bernard Vorhaus, who produced and directed. His previous experience has been in England.

Ayres, an irresponsible youth of the slums, is spurred by Miss Mack's spurning of his marriage proposal to enrich himself. He does so by increasing the circulation of a New York newspaper. Miss Mack, having received the favors of Varconi, wealthy horserace tip sheet publisher, is reunited with Ayres, but the romance fades, when he becomes enamored of Sheila Bromley. Ayres, anxious for revenge on Varconi, publishes a rival tip sheet. His business failing suddenly because of his carelessness, Ayres again finds Miss Mack receptive, and all ends happily.

Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

New York Preview

"Sailing Along"

(G. B.)

Here is another neatly handled musical which should give a good account of itself at the box-office. It has an interesting story, a number of swingy song numbers, colorful atmosphere, comedy and the attractive personality and talents of Jessie Matthews. The story is diverting, in spite of its similarity to other variations. It is refreshingly played. Besides Miss Matthews there is the expert trouping of Roland Young, as an eccentric millionaire; Jack Whiting, Noel Madison, Barry Mackay and Athene Seyler. The musical interludes are well-executed.

Miss Matthews plays a girl on a barge whose singing and dancing talents are discovered by Young, who fancies himself a judge of genius. He introduces her to Whiting, a musical comedy star. She runs off to London, and, through Young, she obtains an audition before Whiting. She fails to convince him of her talents. But Young and Miss Seyler, his sister, provide the girl with a home, clothing, musical training and dance instruction. She turns out to be a first rate performer and Young backs a show in which she and Whiting star. Intermixed in all this there are romantic goings-on between Miss Matthews, Whiting and Mackay. She is torn between the two. But, following the opening performance of the show, she decides it's Mackay she loves and forthwith departs with him on his yacht for a world cruise. Mackay, Miss Matthews' fellow mate on the barge, in the meantime has become another of Young's friends. He is something of a financial wizard. Young is good-naturedly left holding the bag when Miss Matthews deserts the show, but he is taking an interest in her understudy.

The action crowds much incident and movement. Sonnie Hale directed. Miss Matthews' singing and dancing are in her familiar, pleasant style. The backgrounds and settings were admirably conceived.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Leaders of Industry Unite In Dallas Depinet Tribute

dustry, Depinet was presented a scroll by his hosts of Interstate Circuit, while Governor Allred commissioned him Texas commissioner at the New York World's Fair. Mayor George Sprague of Dallas presented an elaborate proclamation which told the world Saturday was "Depinet Day" in Dallas.

The keynote of the dinner was one of general ribbing. Large standing cutouts appeared showing Depinet as Snow White surrounded by seven dwarfs: Levy, Reid, Leo Spitz, Reisman, Sisk, Howard Benedict and Lee Marcus. Both March of Time and Pathe News contributed to the gayety with special Depinet newsreels. Scores of congratulatory telegrams were flashed on a screen.

Depinet's first "high pressure" sales letter to exhibitors on the old "Heart of Humanity" was facsimiled at each plate. Depinet was flabbergasted.

Magazine as Souvenir

A striking souvenir was an eight-page copy of Life, in a special Depinet edition. The front cover bore a picture of the guest of honor, the inside front cover indicated decoratively that the editors of Life, Time and the March of Time, which is distributed by RKO, join with Hoblitzelle and O'Donnell in celebrating the occasion.

Inside were highlight pictures in the career of Depinet, from the time he had his picture taken with very little clothes at the age of one, through his boyhood and his business career, as well as a page of cartoons by Hap Hadley. Entirely incidentally, the "magazine" mentions the fact that there is such a film product as March of Time.

Many from Studio

Other executives, who came to Dallas from the coast, included: Levy, McDonough, McCormick, Harry Cohen, Marcus, Sisk, Reid, Lou Lusty, Benedict, Milton Berle, Ricardo Cortez, Oakie, Charles Skouras, Mike Rosenberg, Billy Wilkerson and Arthur Ungar.

The dinner guests also included I. M. Rappaport, John F. Henegan, J. J. Fitzgibbons, Eph Charninsky, Louis Charninsky, R. F. Cornes, Ted DeBoer, Myron Evert, John Franconi, L. C. Griffith, J. S. Groves, S. Koenigsberg, Clarence E. Linz, J. E. Luckett, Louis Novy, Oscar S. Oldknow, George P. O'Rourke, Hugh Owen, Eli Sanger, Rae E. Skillern, R. G. Soper, John Stiles, Ralph Talbot, Jack Underwood and Horace Falls.

The price scale ranged from 55 cents to $1.10 matinees and $2.20 top at night, including tax, with the Saturday and Sunday matinee top at $1.65. The Astor seats 1,142. All seats were reserved.

"In Old Chicago" will be nationally released April 15, Good Friday. Whether it will open at the Roxy on that date is indefinite. Prior engagements may result in delaying the opening a week.

"Proxy" Pickets Irk Exhibitors at Ogden

OGDEN, Utah, March 27.—Theatre managers were startled to find local showhouses being picketed "by proxy." The striking Ogden newspaper typesetters and compositors were telling the public that the theatres and merchants were being "unfair" by advertising in the "unfair Ogden Standard Examiner." After a huddle, the pickets were called off, but the managers are still a little amazed.

Para. Schedule of Shorts Nearly Set

WFIL Gets Big Hall For Its Auditions

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—The idea of putting open auditions on the air in a half-hour show has clicked so well at WFIL that the program has been moved to the 1,600-seat auditorium of the Manufacturers' Club. The whole thing got its start a few months back, when the station, in a search for new programs, invited all comers to auditions. Shortly afterward they began airing the auditions and now so many spectators clamor for a view that the station's ordinary studios can no longer handle the crowd. Jack Steck of WFIL's production department chooses talent on the show.

WNEW has sold time to the I. J. Fox Fur Co. for 12 programs a week. The deal includes "Mirror Man About Town" for six quarter-hours and six spot announcements. The programs will start April 5 and will continue for 52 weeks. The Peck Advertising Agency handled the negotiations.

Radio Rescue

Montreal, March 27.—Local radio stations went into swift action recently in an effort to save one or several lives. Throughout the evening, at the request of police, they broadcast warning to the person or persons who stole four pounds of meat from a parked car.

The meat had been intended for a fumigation firm and was soaked in cyanide. When police learned of the theft Inspector Brodeur phoned CBF, CBM, CFCF, CHLP and CKAC and they all took to the air immediately with warnings.

Independent Owners To Talk on AFM Pact

Independent broadcasters will meet at the Hotel New Yorker today for the purpose of negotiating a pact with the American Federation of Musicians similar to the one recently concluded by the network affiliates.

The meeting has been called because the non-network station owners object to signing the same agreement as the network affiliated stations, now paying 5½ per cent of their gross to the A. F. of M. Following compilation of data at the sessions here, the non-network station owners hope to be able to convince the Federation that they are entitled to milder terms than have been accorded to the network stations.

Name Hearst Coast Head

Lesley Fox, director of sales for KMBC, Kansas City, has been named Pacific coast manager of International Radio Sales, the Hearst national radio organization, according to the home office here.

Battery Sets Exempt From Radio Tax Rise

TORONTO, March 27.—A first concession has been granted by the Dominion Government in the step providing for the increase of annual license fees for radio receiving sets from $2 to $2.50 by the exemption of the 150,000 battery sets in use in Canada from the license increase. Owners of these sets will continue to pay $2.

Further, free use of receiving sets is granted for hospitals, schools, asylums and charitable institutions whether the latter are operated by the Government or not. It has also been ruled that an exception will be made in the case of tourists visiting Canada in automobiles in which radios are installed but all residents of the Dominion must pay an additional license fee for any automobile radio. Under the previous law no additional license was required for an automobile radio when the owner had a licensed radio in his home.

Paley to Air CBS Annual Report Over His Network

William S. Paley will address his annual report as president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., to the listening public as well as to the company's own stockholders in a special broadcast over CBS April 5.

In explanation for the unusual procedure, Paley explained that he had decided to put his report on the air because of the widespread general interest in broadcasting, adding that he hoped to stimulate public thinking about broadcasting by discussing industry problems with the audience just as frankly as he does with the actual stockholders of the company itself. He will deliver his report at 10 P.M., E.S.T., over the entire CBS network.

The broadcast will mark the first time in air history that an executive of a nationwide radio network has addressed a general audience on the subject of his own company's business. However, there have been a few instances, especially during the past year or so, wherein industrial companies have chartered regional networks for the purposes of making sales and general progress reports.

New Shows On the Air

"What's My Name?"

"What's My Name?" new audience participation program for Philip Morris cigarettes on Mutual is a rather drab show, although ably conducted by Bud Hulick and Arlene Francis.

The program got off to a bad start in that the participants, for the most part, were unable to guess the identities of the characters asked for in the game until long after the listeners got the drift of the proceedings. This served to slow up the program badly. As an example, one participant was unable to guess the identity of Walt Disney, even after she had been informed that he was the creator of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Participants are given five chances to name each character, after as many clues are supplied by the "em cees," Hulick and Francis. First guess rates them a prize of $10. The other prizes are $1 less progressively.

"What's My Name?" is broadcast Fridays on Mutual from 8 to 8:30 P.M.

BANNER

KGO Instead of KYA May Air Ball Games

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—KGO may air the daily baseball games for General Mills (Wheaties) this season instead of KYA. The latter station is reported as unwilling to enter into a long term contract, due to the uncertainty of Hearst's radio plans. Whether Ernie Smith, veteran announcer, will continue at the microphone, is uncertain.

Herb Allen of Mutual has been chosen by the same sponsor again to announce the home games of the Oakland baseball club over KROW.

Bank Renews Program

PROVIDENCE, March 27.—The Citizens Savings Bank of Providence has renewed its contract for a continuation of the "Captains of Industry" series over WEAN. Financial Broadcasting Service of Boston handles the program.

Guest Series Shortly

A new Edgar A. Guest series will start over CBS on April 6. The period will be heard from 10:30 to 11 P.M. Frankie Masters will supply music with Marian Francis as vocalist.

Crosley Promotion Head

CINCINNATI, March 27.—John S. Garceau, Indianapolis, has been appointed manager of advertising and sales promotion for the Crosley Radio Corp.

Small Wonder...

This young lady hasn't a tooth in her head. Yet she insists on eating five times a day! And this one thing we can be sure of. Whatever else she may ask of life, food will be first and most often on her list.

Small wonder, then, the Food Industry is advertising's greatest client—and greatest challenge. Here is a market which knows no pause in time or space. A market as varied as all the people any advertising medium can reach. A market which goes beyond and includes every other market for the goods of man.

How brilliantly radio has met the challenge of this market for the food advertiser can best be told, perhaps, by the following facts. More "food" dollars are now spent on radio networks than in all general magazines. Twice as many "food" dollars are spent in radio as in all women's magazines. And the increase in food advertising on Columbia outstrips every other industry-increase in radio. A 290% increase in the last five years—made by the country's largest food advertisers.

The explanation for this Columbia record is simple. Everybody eats. And everybody likes to listen. This is how the largest network in the world welds the two together:

✓ In 1934, the largest manufacturer of canned soups in the world turned to Columbia—took to the air with an hour a week of deft selling and sparkling entertainment. Sales soared from coast to coast. Tomato Soup—up 30%. Vegetable Soup—up 35%. Chicken Soup—up 100%! And Chicken Soup was advertised only by Columbia. In the client's own words, "Sales took an astounding jump to a well-over-double basis, despite the fact that our Chicken Soup business was already large."

✓ As of January, 1938, a national baker has signed his eighth consecutive 52-week contract with Columbia. In the last seven years, he has not missed a single weekly broadcast—using the Columbia Broadcasting System exclusively on the air.

✓ The largest food company in the world has put five different programs on Columbia in the last five months.

The Columbia Broadcasting System

20th-Fox Advance Sales Are 11.5% Above Last Year

With an unprecedented volume of pre-convention contracts already rolled up by the sales force, 20th Century-Fox delegations will leave tonight for the annual sales conference to be held Friday and Saturday in Kansas City. John D. Clark, vice-president in charge of distribution, will be the ranking company executive present, and will preside.

The combined total of 1938-'39 contracts and long-term franchises already sold is 11.5 per cent ahead of the 1936-'37 volume at this time last year, it was said by the sales department. This, it was said, indicates an earlier buying trend.

Twentieth Century-Fox sales forces have been selling the 1938-'39 lineup since January. So far, the eastern division, headed by William Sussman; the southern district, managed by

Broadway Sees $20 Per Seat Opening

Broadway had a rare phenomenon last night—an opening at $20 per seat for an imported film. And a crowd turned out at the Astor. The picture was "The Call." The picture is reviewed on another page of today's MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

The proceeds went to the Daughters of Mary, Health of the Sick, a charitable organization.

Judge Alfred J. Talley delivered an address in which he described the Annual Statement Also Hits Use of Screen For Propaganda

Industry self-regulation is championed by Will H. Hays in his annual report presented yesterday to the M.P.P.D.A. board of directors. The report lists seven specific accomplishments attributed by Hays to industry self-rule and declares that, "There can be no permanent progress for a creative industry controlled in the interest of economic regimentation or political dictatorship."

Of industrial self-regulation Hays states "there is no real substitute for it." He warns, however, that "industrial democracy can no longer be taken for granted anywhere in the world. It must be defended. . . . Our own industry is an important and significant case study of the economic, artistic and social achievement of self-government in industry."

Hays listed this industry's gains through self-regulation as the development of moral and artistic standards of production through the Production Code Administration; maintenance of "the highest possible advertising standards" by the Advertising Advisory Council; educational campaigns to win new patronage for the theatre and support for the better pictures; establishment of self-government and

J. H. Michael Rites Are Held at Buffalo

Buffalo, March 28.—Funeral services were held today at Temple Beth Zion for Jules H. Michael, member of the board of the M.P.T.O.A. and a veteran exhibitor here, who died of heart disease late Saturday. Rabbi Dr. Joseph L. Fink officiated.

Michael was 68. He had spent nearly 40 years in exhibition.

A native of New York City, he started in 1901 as manager of a Boston theatre owner by B. F. Keith. He was with the Keith organization for 10 years. Later he managed several New York houses for Mitchell H. Mark. He came to Buffalo in 1918 as a partner of the late Henry Brock, with whom he operated the Regent and Academy. Thirteen years ago he became an official of the M. P. T.O.A. and in 1933 he gave up active work as an exhibitor.

Michael's widow, Augusta, and a daughter, Mrs. Marvin H. Davis, survive.

Comedy Starting Today

The latest in the "Gags and Gals" series of Educational shorts will go into work today at the Astoria studio under the direction of Al Christie.

"Bigness" Means Nothing Without Stories—Mannix

The public today wants more realistic stories, "a page of life as it is lived, life as it is played from a humorous angle," and that may be the next trend in films, declared E. J. Mannix, M-G-M vice-president and production executive, before returning to the coast yesterday.

"Bigness" in itself means nothing if it has no story value—the story always being the thing—and a film spread on a large canvas must still have an idea behind it to possess appeal, he believes.

Musicals are now on the crest of the wave, Mannix declared, and this type of film also must contain "good, substantial story ingredients" to strike a popular chord. M-G-M has never gone overboard on musicals, other than the annual "Broadway Melodies" series, he pointed out, but for next year plans no decrease in this classification.

"The musical's vogue is indefinite," he continued. "If you have a worthwhile story and combine it with good songs and a good orchestration, you'll have something the public wants, but above all the story must be substantial."

While M-G-M has scheduled six Technicolor films for the next three years, Mannix is skeptical as to what color means at the box-office. "The painting must still have an idea behind it," was the way he described his viewpoint. "The only sure element that means box-office is star value. A good story well told will also bring them in, but to begin with you have the stars."

While on the subject of "big pictures," Mannix pointed to "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," which, he said, is truly a big picture "because it is a thorough, well-rounded job, perfect in all of its particulars," and because it is real entertainment for everyone. "But, of course," he added, "a genius made it."

"The Big Parade" was another film that was "big," this despite the fact that it was not made on a large scale, but because its basic idea found wide public response, Mannix said. The same appeal was contained in the Will Rogers pictures, which were not "big" in the usual meaning of the term but "big" in the sense that the humorist's philosophy had universal appeal which pleased every type of audience.

Greta Garbo, he said, will return in September to start her next picture, a continental comedy which Bernard Hyman will produce.

Mannix was here five days following a southern cruise.

Record Claimed for Paramount Weekend

"Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" established a new weekend attendance record at the Paramount, according to Robert M. Weitman, manager, who said that the film played to 47,000 persons over Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday there were 24,800 tickets sold, topping any previous Saturday in the theatre's history. The film will stay three weeks. Guy Lombardo and his band is the stage attraction.

"Storm in a Teacup" grossed $5,408 in its first week at the Little Carnegie to break the all-time house record for cash and admissions, according to the management. On Sunday 2,800 tickets were sold at the 400-seat house. The film is in for an indefinite run.

"Radio City Revels" did $7,500 at the Globe in its first week and is being held for seven days more.

Hollywood, March 2.—Warners have assigned two scripts for the attention of Paul Muni when he returns to the studio this week. One is "Maximilian and Juarez," based on the life of the ill-fated Emperor of Mexico, and the second the well known Jack London novel, "The Sea Wolf."

Metro Staff Hears Dietz and Kiesling

Howard Dietz, M-G-M advertising and publicity director, and Barrett Kiesling, studio publicity representative, discussed new season advertising and publicity campaigns at the regional sales conference at the Hotel Astor yesterday.

The meeting wound up last night, following which the eastern and southern division and branch managers attended Broadway shows and a party at the International Casino.

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, and T. J. Connors and E. M. Saunders, division managers, discussed this season's product and outlined the new program. It was stressed that the current selling season is not yet over.

Dietz told the meeting that a book presenting a picture of the company's scope and operations has been prepared for distribution among the sales staff. Some of the delegates departed last night and the others are due to leave today.

Tracy, Six Others Re-Signed by M-G-M

Hollywood, March 28.—Getting ready for new season product, M-G-M this week extended contracts of seven persons, including players, writers and a music arranger.

Spencer Tracy has been given a contract extension, but, more important to him at least, was also given a vacation. He has left for New York via the Panama Canal, to meet Mrs. Tracy in the east, then to sail on the Rex to Genoa, later visiting England.

The other player retained by M-G-M is Claudia Morgan, who will leave New York in two weeks after appearing in the Theatre Guild's "Wine of Choice."

Anita Loos, pioneer film writer, also was given a new pact. The other writers retained are Phil Rapp, Martin Berkeley and Jack Singer.

Leonid Raab, orchestrator and arranger in the music department, continues with the studio under a new contract.

Rail Story for DeMille

Hollywood, March 28.—Cecil B. DeMille today stated that his 65th production will be "Union Pacific," a story based upon the building of the railroad. Century Case Review Is Refused by Court

Washington, March 28. — The U. S. Supreme Court today refused to review a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals holding Century Productions, Inc., had infringed a copyright held by Frederick Beck Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Co., on pictures the latter had made during a hunting expedition.

Patterson had sued on the ground Century Productions had "lifted" material from his film for use in "The Jungle Killer," and the company had contended that the cash register magnate had obtained a copyright for an unpublished work which was vitiated when he made showings of his film before certain groups and had failed to protect himself thereafter by obtaining copyright for a published work.

Dismisses "Races" Suit

Ruling that he could not find the "slightest evidence of copying," Federal Judge Arthur C. Coxe dismissed the infringement suit brought by Philip T. Clancy against Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corp. and Robert Pirosh in the U. S. District Court here.

Clancy sought $250,000 damages, charging infringement of his uncopyrighted play, "Nuts to You," in "A Day at the Races."

Refuses Testimony Order

Federal Judge Robert T. Patterson yesterday denied the application of Films Sonores Tobis, Societe Anonyme for permission to examine Harry Buckley, Arthur Kelly and Harry Muller before trial, in connection with its suit against Charlie Chaplin, Charles Chaplin Films Corp. and United Artists, charging plagiarism of their picture "A Nous La Liberte" in "Modern Times." The judge, however, ordered United Artists to serve a copy of the scenario of "Modern Times" on the plaintiff.

"The Call"

(Best Film Co.)

This French production purports to offer a screen biography of Charles de Foucauld (1858-1916), a soldier and something of a scapegrace, who found himself drawn toward the desert and became in effect the Sahara missionary, who was at the same time of inestimable value to France in pacifying and winning the friendship of the generally recalcitrant desert tribes.

The subject matter has all the elements of drama, and at the same time rests upon a theme of high service to mankind and humanity, making for a potentially powerful screen document which might even have had a strong element of entertainment.

It is rather unfortunate that the production is technically inadequate to properly do justice to the basic material. It may be that the strong impression of inexpert technical treatment is the result of the fact that the film has been dubbed into English, and that the English is very stilted. The English words from the screen often do not coincide with the lip movements of the French cast, while the players are for the most part less than satisfactory.

The picture was produced, directed and written by Leon Poirier, who, it is explained, was attracted to the story of de Foucauld during a visit to the Sahara, and many years later, after the producing cast was assured through subscription solicited by himself, "The Call" was produced. Many of the scenes were taken on the desert, and purely from pictorial standpoint they are interesting and convey a true feeling of the sweep and silence of that arid waste. But Poirier has not made his people live, with the possible exception of the portrayal of de Foucauld.

The film tells the story of the arrogant and spoiled youth who entered the army, took a mistress to an African post, and then resigned his commission. The glimpse of the desert led him back, and in disguise, he traversed the country, opening the way for French occupation. Later he returned, became a missionary, built a chapel and was of vast assistance in pacifying the tribesmen of Hoggar. When the World War broke out, and uprisings began, he sought refuge in a fort, until, through treachery, he finally was overpowered and killed in December, 1916.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Rose of the Rio Grande"

(Monogram)

Hollywood, March 28.—Monogram has a high class picture for the trade in "Rose of the Rio Grande." It contains entertainment and commercial values that are often lacking in more costly films featuring more famous names. Fictionalized historical romance is used and the treatment applied and the quality of production support give the show a novel and freshly interesting appeal. The entertainment quality of the feature entitles it to a place on any program.

The soundly contrived story is packed with romance, melodrama, excitement, action, suspense and comedy. The musical content is of a similar type and class as that which first thrust Nelson Eddy into the spotlight of popular favor. Sung mainly by John Carroll and a male chorus, with a number or two by Movita, it has an audience-pleasing quality that should win commendation.

Posing as a rebel general, Carroll determines to wipe out rebels who, a century ago, devastated northern Mexico. Brought into direct conflict with Antonio Moreno, bandit leader, with refugee Movita as the pawn, Carroll kills his enemy in a saber duel, action of which is comparable to the melee in "The Prisoner of Zenda." It is not until her brother, Martin Garralaga, identifies him as the hero savior of his country that Movita gives her love to the man whom she long had worshipped.

Performances delivered by Carroll, Movita, Moreno, George Cleveland (the comedy relief) and Lina Basquette are of high caliber, and the efforts of the supporting cast are equally meritorious. The story by Johnston McCulley and screenplay by Dorothy Reid and Ralph Warrenton neatly combine romance, action and melody. William Nigh's direction was pointed to extract the best values from his materials. People who like real entertainment should appreciate "Rose of the Rio Grande."

Asks Court Writ in William Fox Action

Washington, March 28.—Hiram Steelman, trustee for William Fox, today petitioned the U. S. Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus directing the Third Circuit Court of Appeals immediately to render its decision as to the validity of the long-contested order issued by the referee appointed by the New Jersey court, directing All-Continent Corp. to make available its books and records for examination by the trustee.

All-Continent, the trustee told the court, was created by Fox and to it was turned over all the property of Fox and his wife. The present appeal originated when Eva Fox, wife of William Fox, refused to testify regarding property formerly held by her.

Steelman told the court in his brief that in 1936 he sought the order to allow him to examine All-Continent's books, and that the order has since been before several courts, being last heard by the Third Circuit Court last December, the decision in that case not yet having been rendered.

He told the court it is important to have a quick decision since examination of the Fox estate indicates that Fox and All-Continent "are one and the same" and that the trustee cannot complete his examination until All-Continent records have been studied. Unless quick decision is given, he said, the estate may suffer irreparable loss because assets of All-Continent have been materially injured by the recent decline in stock values.

Harry G. Ballance at Atlanta, and the Dallas branch, managed by H. R. Beiersdorf, are the leaders in their respective classifications in new season contract volume. Seven-eighths of the contracts obtained by the Dallas branch represent franchises. Southern and eastern branches were prominent in early selling also last year. The distribution department anticipates that more than a third of the company's total of 11,800 possibilities will be sold by mid-April.

For 1938-'39 the company is expected to announce a minimum of 56 to 58 features, to be supplemented by pictures made in England and possibly others. Treasurers' Union After Film Houses

With the signing of a closed shop contract with the League of New York Theatres covering employes at legitimate houses, the Theatrical Managers, Agents and Treasurers Union has organized groups in Boston, Baltimore, Cincinnati and Cleveland areas, in addition to the branch recently established in Philadelphia.

In New York, the union plans to get a campaign under way shortly for closed shop agreements with film houses, covering managers, assistant managers, press agents and box-office cashiers. A number of theatres are said to be unionized.

The out-of-town groups intend to organize film and legitimate theatres, circuses and sports arenas. Thomas Roche is chairman of the Boston group, with Edward Spellman vice-chairman and Thomas Spillane treasurer. Edward Keller is temporary chairman of the Baltimore branch which takes in Washington and surrounding territory. For the Cincinnati area, which includes Dayton, Springfield, Louisville and Indianapolis, Morris Zaidins is temporary chairman. Daniel Brin is temporary head of the Cleveland branch, which embraces Akron, Toledo and Youngstown.

Will Organize Chicago

Chicago, St. Louis and Detroit are next on the list where branches are to be set up, with organizing also in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Wage agreements are being signed by individual stage producers in New York following ratification of the closed shop agreement by the League's labor committee, which is said to have power of attorney for a majority of the producers. Negotiations with the League started in January after a strike at a number of houses.

Under the minimum wage agreement, company managers will receive $100 a week, chief treasurers $75 and assistant treasurers $50. A graduated scale for press agents provides a guaranteed weekly minimum of $150 if they handle one show. If there is a second show, an assistant must be added at $75 weekly. The assistant will receive $100 if the press agent handles a third show. If a press agent represents four shows, he must hire a second assistant, who, in turn, receives a $25 raise for a fifth show.

Warner Historical Shorts to Continue

Warners' series of historical shorts in color will be continued in 1938-'39 and the new season's shorts schedule will also include several musicals, it was said yesterday upon the return of Norman H. Moray, head of short subject sales, from a nine-week swing around the country.

Moray visited a number of exchanges en route to the coast and on his return trip to obtain exhibitor reaction on this season's shorts. His survey will form the basis for the new program. While at the studio he conferred with Jack L. Warner and Hal B. Wallis on the production of two-reelers in Technicolor.

Further plans on the new lienup will be discussed this week in conferences between Moray and Sam Sax, head of the Vitaphone studio.

Independents Vote to Deal With A. F. M.

take official cognizance of the union's demands was accomplished after an all-day stormy session, with many of the members holding out toward the end that it would be best to continue to ignore the union's ultimatum, on the grounds that the union would not take action against them.

The committee which will begin negotiations today with Joseph N. Weber, president of the A. F. of M., comprises nine members. They are: Stanley Schultz, WLAW; Henry McNaughton, WTBO; Lloyd Thomas, WROK; Gregory Gentling, KROC; Harold La Fonte, WELI, WORC, WCOP and WMBC; Frank R. Smith, WWSW; C. Alden Baker, WRNL; Edgar Schutz, WIL, and Jack R. Howard, WCPO. Thomas and La Fonte will serve as chairman and vice-chairman, respectively.

Plan Plea to N. A. B.

The independent broadcasters also resolved to call upon the governing body of the N.A.B. with a view toward receiving legal and financial aid from the parent organization.

Approximately 50 stations were represented at yesterday's meeting. The committte has been instructed to take up the following vital points with the A. F. of M.:

1. Do stations which use juvenile, non-union or amateur musicians have to continue to employ regular union musicians as stand-bys. At present this is enforced on many stations.

2. Obtain an A, B, and C rate for the independent stations, the rates to be determined upon by the wattage strength of each station. The independents contend that the union wants them to pay as much as the 50,000 watt stations. This they claim is unfair.

3. Prevail upon the union to obtain a greater exemption than the $20,000 annual figure. (The A. F. of M. has exempted from its demands all stations grossing $20,000 or less annually.)

Cite Strike Danger

The decision to negotiate with the union was influenced by talks made at the meeting by representatives of the transcription and recording companies, who said that an avoidance of the problem was no longer possible. These speakers included Stuart Sprague of World Broadcasting System and Lawrence B. Morris, vice-president and chief legal counsel for RCA-Victor Recording Co. Sprague warned that in the event of a strike all spot and transcribed program service to the independents probably would be stopped through action by the union. Morris said that the musicians had every legal right to refuse to work if they so elected, meaning that if the union ordered its members to cease making transcriptions and records, automatic cessation of such service would necessarily follow.

Phil Loucks, special N.A.B. counsel, reported conversations he has had with Weber regarding the independent broadcasters.

On the Spot

Toronto, March 28.—Major Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., is having difficulty placating varied interests over the nature of programs aired by the Government network, the bargain contracts with broadcasting chains in the United States and the regulation of independent stations in the Dominion.

Still another roar has been received from the Ancient Order of Hibernians because the CBC did not carry a recent speech by Eamon de Valera, President of the Irish Free State. Copies of the complaint also have been sent to members of the Canadian Parliament.

Licenses Are Issued For 2 New Stations

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The Federal Communications Commission has issued operating licenses to two new broadcasting stations. The two are WTOL, operated by the Community Broadcasting Co., Toledo, on 1,200 kilocycles with 100 watts power, day only, and WOMI, constructed by the Owensboro Broadcast Co., at Owensboro, Ky., to operate on 1,500 kilocycles with 100 watts power night, 250 watts day.

The commission also issued a license to WGL, Fort Wayne, authorizing an increase in day power from 100 to 250 watts. An application for authority to construct a new station was filed by the Radio Service Co., Inc., Brunswick, Ga., seeking use of the 1,420-kilocycle channel with 100 watts power night, 250 watts day, and an amended application was submitted by WBIG, Greensboro, N. C., seeking an increase in both night and day power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts instead of merely in day power, as originally asked.

High Court Upholds Commission's Ruling

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The U. S. Supreme Court today refused to review a decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals affirming a ruling of the Federal Communications Commission denying the application of the Missouri Broadcasting Corp. for improved facilities for its broadcasting station WIL in St. Louis and granting an application of the Star-Times Publishing Co. for a new station in that city.

The Missouri Broadcasting Corp. contended the commission's decision was invalid because it was entered without any findings of fact announced on the date it was rendered.

Meanwhile, Mark Ethridge, temporary chairman of the N.A.B., was in New York yesterday to set the dues budget with the networks. He conferred with NBC officials yesterday, and following negotiations with CBS today, he will leave for Washington where the N.A.B. board of directors will meet on Wednesday to consider the appointment of a paid president for the organization.

Lord Sets Pension Plan for Employes

Phil Lord, producer of "Gang Busters" and "We, the People," has evolved a pension plan for all employes of Phillips H. Lord, Inc. This is believed to be the first move by an independent producer to set up a permanent organization of radio writers and producers outside the broadcasting companies.

Under Lord's pension plan, a year's salary will be credited to each employe every seven years. If an employe leaves before the seven years, the bonus is pro-rated. A loan clause is also a part of the plan, whereby employes may draw upon this fund. Although the plan is financed by Lord, he will hold no office in the administration of the trust fund. Trustees are Lloyd G. Wilson and Donald O. Lincoln. Thirty members of the Lord staff are eligible at the present time.

Denies Petition to Reopen Philco Case

WILMINGTON, March 28.—Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott has denied a petition for a rehearing and reopening of the action in which Philco Storage Battery Co. was complainant and cross defendant, and Radio Corp. of America was defendant and cross complainant.

The action involved a disagreement over computation of royalties through a licensing agreement between RCA and Philco. Chancellor Wolcott last September denied a motion to cancel the licensing agreement and directed the companies to adjust their differences on royalties.

Industry Self Regulation Is Hays' Demand arbitration for employer-employe relations; a trade practice structure which, "whatever additional implementation it may still require," functions in the interest of more than 16,000 theatres in bringing the most expensive pictures within reach of the smallest theatre and the largest number of patrons; the functioning of fire prevention and conservation measures in the distribution system, and the building of a new "economic foundation" for the industry through product of universal appeal.

"Propaganda," the report declares, "has no place on the entertainment screen. The industry has resisted and must continue to resist the lure of propaganda in a sinister sense persistently urged upon it by extremist groups. The function of the entertainment screen is to entertain. Only those who have a selfish purpose to serve can cry out against such a policy."

Defends Entertainment Per Se

"The movie theatre," Hays says, "can afford the soft impeachment that most pictures reflect no higher purpose than to entertain, with 'escapist' entertainment, if you please."

Hays declared that despite the fact that "only a mere fraction of American picture footage is outside the code of self-regulation, exhibitors, nevertheless, share with distributors a joint responsibility to protect American screens from those few 'bootleg' films.

"The Association," he says, "has sought to give every encouragement to the development of the motion picture as a distinct educational medium. Public interest may well demand the production of films directed toward the elimination of disease or the tragic results of ignorance." But, Hays declares, such films should not be "exploited unscrupulously and sensationally for a commercial purpose."

Opposes Screen Publicity

Of screen advertising, he says, "The policy of the industry continues firm against any general use of the screen for advertising purposes. Tendencies toward the extension of advertising to the entertainment program itself invite public ill will for the industry. This is equally true whether the effort be by direct presentation of outright advertising films or by some indirect effort to present advertising films under the guise of entertainment."

Referring to film exports, the Hays report declares that "American pictures, which still lead in universal popularity, are meeting with increasing difficulties of distribution in certain markets that have become more quota-ridden during the year, while in other countries there was some check to the policy of restriction. We believe it (the motion picture) should pass freely between nations without artificial restrictions or quota barriers . . . and have constantly discouraged any form of restriction which would impede the distribution of exhibition of foreign motion pictures in this country."

Discussing the potential patronage for films Hays observes that "It should be noted that we are far from the saturation point in attendance. During the closing months of 1937 an experimental poll indicated that there are still 26,000,000 persons over 12 years of age in this country who do not go more than five times a year, and there are millions more who cannot be considered regular patrons of the movies. In this fact lies the importance of our work in bringing new customers to the film theatre."

The report also relates that the industry is continuing its cooperative work with educators endeavoring to obtain increased film footage for classroom use. It credits film criticism with extending public interest in pictures and, thereby, aiding in increasing potential theatre patronage.

Now It's Lots

Toronto, March 28.—Toronto exhibitors have used all sorts of china, silverware and toilet requisites as admission gifts but the ultimate premium has developed in the offer through the Hastings County Council of free building lots for summer homes on the shores of northern lakes in Ontario in a move to popularize summer colony areas. Through the suggestion of Kyle Calver, member of the Hastings County Council, the summer cottage sites have been placed at the disposal of theatre proprietors in Toronto for use as patronage inducements.

Government Texas Case Briefs Filed

evidence taken in the trial at Dallas shows conspiracy to require subsequent run houses to charge minimum admissions and abandon double bills; (2) whether restraint of commerce through the conspiracy is covered by the Copyright Act and (3) whether, if the evidence shows merely a series of isolated agreements to restrain trade, they still are covered by the copyright law.

Declaring that "there can be no doubt" that the evidence shows there was a conspiracy to impose restrictions on exhibitors, the Government contends the copyright laws give no immunity against prosecution for violation of the anti-trust statutes.

"Such unanimity requires the conclusion that the distributors acted pursuant to agreement and were parties to a common plan and undertaking, constituting conspiracy," it was argued.

The Government brief attacked the contention of the distributors that they held exclusive rights under the copyright law and were able to agree with the first licensees as to the terms of subsequent licenses, alleging that if such an agreement restrained trade the practice cannot be defended. It is held that the copyright law merely confers upon the owner a monopoly in the use which he makes of his copyright and gives him no authority illegally to restrain trade.

out at the studio by Spitz and Berman, who were unable to attend the testimonial dinner in observance of Depinet's 20th anniversary in the industry at the Baker Hotel, Dallas, on Saturday night. It is definite, however, that the company will continue its policy of flexible budgets for individual productions.

RKO has 24 features remaining to be delivered this season, with eight set for release between now and June already completed. Some of the company's biggest pictures of the season are among these, such as "Joy of Living," "Vivacious Lady" and "Having Wonderful Time," which have been completed, and a Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers-Irving Berlin musical ready to start.

No important changes in the company's sales policy are being considered for next season, it was stated.

Of the 40 New York film executives who entrained for Dallas last Thursday, only 17 are returning on this train, which is due in New York early Tuesday morning. Depinet remained in Dallas, planning to leave there for New York on Wednesday. Levy and Edward L. McEvoy will spend a week in the field visiting exchanges before returning to New York. McCormick is aboard the train. H. J. Yates continued on to Hollywood from Dallas to confer on Republic's new season production plans. Gradwell Sears and Carl Leserman also proceeded to Hollywood.

Cliff Reid, RKO producer, is en route to New York to attend the funeral of his father-in-law.

Canada Policy Ownership of Big Stations

Parliament Group Hears CBC Aims Explained

OTTAWA, March 29.—Ultimate control of all high power broadcasting in Canada is the policy of Canadian Broadcasting Corp., the Parliamentary Committee on Radio was told today by L. W. Brockington, chairman of the board of governors.

Some permits have been granted for private stations with power up to 1,000 watts, but no increases will be permitted above that maximum, Brockington said. Eventually it is intentioned to restrict private stations to "purely local functions."

Additional developments in radio yesterday on page 9.

C. E. Johnston said he thought this policy very unfair to private broadcasting that it should not be permitted

London, March 29.—As a part of its feverish lobbying in the House of Commons for support of the increased quota schedules voted by the House of Lords, the Film Group of the Federation of British Industries sent 20-line telegrams to every member of Commons last night, appealing for support.

Chief beneficiary was the telegraph company, because the great majority of the wires remained unsorted and undistributed until after the debate had ended and the decision reached.

Court Extends Copyright to All Pictures

Motion pictures other than photoplays are entitled to the same Federal copyright protection as dramatic productions as a result of the refusal this week of the U. S. Supreme Court to review the copyright infringement judgment against Samuel Cummins, Century Productions and other defendants, which was rendered by the U. S. District Court here last May in favor of Frederick Beck Patterson, it was stated yesterday by Gabriel L. Hess, general attorney of the M. P. P. D. A.

The Supreme Court's action in denying Cummins' petition for a review is of special importance to producers and distributors of newsreels, cartoons, travelogues, specialty film acts, and educational and scientific subjects, Hess declared. The subjects enumerated are registered in the Copyright Office under Class M as "motion pictures other than photoplays."

"Approximately 10,000 such Class M registrations have been made during the past 10 years, and they exceed in volume the Class L registrations for photoplay films," Hess said. "The court's opinion holds that property rights, in the form of exclusive right of exhibition, exist for a Class M film on the ground that unauthorized projection thereof violates the exclusive right 'to copy' granted by the Copyright Law. All previous court

Improved Australian Trade Relations Sought by Snider

Improvement of exhibitor-distributor relations in Australia will be the subject of conferences with foreign sales managers during the four-week visit here of Leon S. Snider, joint managing director of the Snider & Dean Circuit, operating some 65 theatres. As official spokesman for the New South Wales Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, Snider will attempt to obtain a reconciliation of differences looking to stabilization of the industry on the Australian Continent.

Speaking for exhibitors in his home country generally, Snider said the chief grievance revolves around the demands of distributors for increasing rentals. By distributors he means American companies, which predominate in the Australian field.

"In the interests of the industry generally, a closer understanding should

U.S. FILMS HOLD POSITION ABROAD

Golden Foreign Market Study Points Out New Opposition

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Government restrictions, high taxes, exchange controls, tightening censorship and growing tendencies to "coddle" feeble native film industries were strongly evident in the foreign motion picture scene during 1937, yet American films retained a gratifying popularity with nearly all foreign audiences, it was declared today by Nathan D. Golden, chief of the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce, in his annual review of foreign film markets.

"The problems of rising nationalism, of quotas, discrimination, subsidy and tariff barriers will have to be adjusted if American business is to operate on as wide a scale as heretofore," Golden said.

"To be really sound and legitimate, a motion picture industry in any country must stand upon its own feet and cannot look to its Government to legislate it into vigorous existence, either through laws limiting its competitors from freely marketing their products

Dinerman Winner of Award on "Firefly"

E. V. Dinerman, director of advertising and publicity for RKO Midwest Theatres, Cincinnati, has been awarded first prize of $60 in an exploitation contest on "The Firefly," conducted under the supervision of W. R. Ferguson, exploitation manager for M-G-M. Bill Bishop, M-G-M exploitation representative, assisted Dinerman. Ted Gamble of the J. J. Parker Circuit, Portland, Ore., won second prize of $25 and Guy Martin, manager, Colfax Theatre, South Bend, drew third money, $15. More than 1,200 campaigns were submitted.

Ferguson said that because of the interest shown in this contest, M-G-M will sponsor a similar competition on "Test Pilot."

M-G-M Meeting Ends

Individual meetings were held yesterday by M-G-M division, district and branch managers following the two-day eastern and southern sales conference. The branch managers will outline the new season information obtained here to their sales staffs in the field. All the out of town men will have left for their home cities by this morning.

Insiders' Outlook

THAT Atlas Corp. eventually will conclude arrangements for the acquisition by RKO of M. J. Meehan's 27,000 shares of Keith-Albee-Orpheum preferred, carrying with it control of the company, is pretty much taken for granted among important factors in the reorganization of RKO. That no deal has been set yet is definite. The reason, first, is that the wherewithal, that is to say, about $3,000,000, is to be raised by subscription to a new issue of RKO debentures. Reserving the only secured note issue of the reorganized company for cash raising purposes has disappointed large numbers of holders of old RKO debentures, who had hoped to get equally well secured paper through the reorganization for their present holdings. They are opposing the modification to the RKO reorganization plan which would give them preferred and common stock, instead of new debentures, in exchange for their old debentures.

Until this opposition has been reconciled and approval has been obtained for a new issue of debentures, there is no reorganization cash available for purchase of Meehan's K-A-O stock. Meehan and his advisers are not ones to close a deal at such a stage of the game, but they are prepared to sell if and when the "right terms" are offered. Presumably, this cannot be before the RKO reorganization is much father along than it now is.

The desirability of RKO's obtaining full control of its most important and profitable theatre subsidiary hardly needs explanation. Controlling more than 90 per cent of the common stock of K-A-O, RKO lost board representation and voting majority in 1932 when K-A-O passed its third successive dividend on its preferred stock. This gave the preferred the voting rights formerly vested in the common. Control went to Meehan, who holds a majority of the preferred. Complications over management ensued and persisted for three years. Equally important, K-A-O's earnings, which in the last two years have increased to impressive figures ($1,300,000 net for 1937) cannot be brought into RKO's general statement, because of the divided control. Of these healthy earnings, all that is reflected in RKO's statement are the past due dividends as they are paid on the minority block of K-A-O preferred owned by RKO.

The same situation could be repeated at any time in the future if RKO did not acquire control of K-A-O preferred and the circuit's earnings were insufficient to pay preferred dividends three times running. It is to correct this situation that Atlas Corp., proponent of the RKO reorganization plan, regards acquisition of Meehan's holdings as something eminently desirable in connection with the reorganization of the company.

Meehan's shares are callable by K-A-O at $110 per share, plus accrued dividends of $21 per share, or a total of $3,537,000. A deal probably could be made if accrued dividends were to be eliminated, bringing the sales price down to $2,970,000.

Schine Circuit Asks Review of Tax Case

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Schine Chain Theatres, Inc., operating theatres in New York State, with headquarters at Gloversville, today petitioned the Board of Tax Appeals for review of an alleged deficiency of $78,157 in income and excess profits taxes for 1933.

The company previous to 1933 had accumulated money received from property rentals in a special fund. It challenges the Internal Revenue Bureau's contention that the accumulation became taxable in 1933, the year in which the leases terminated.

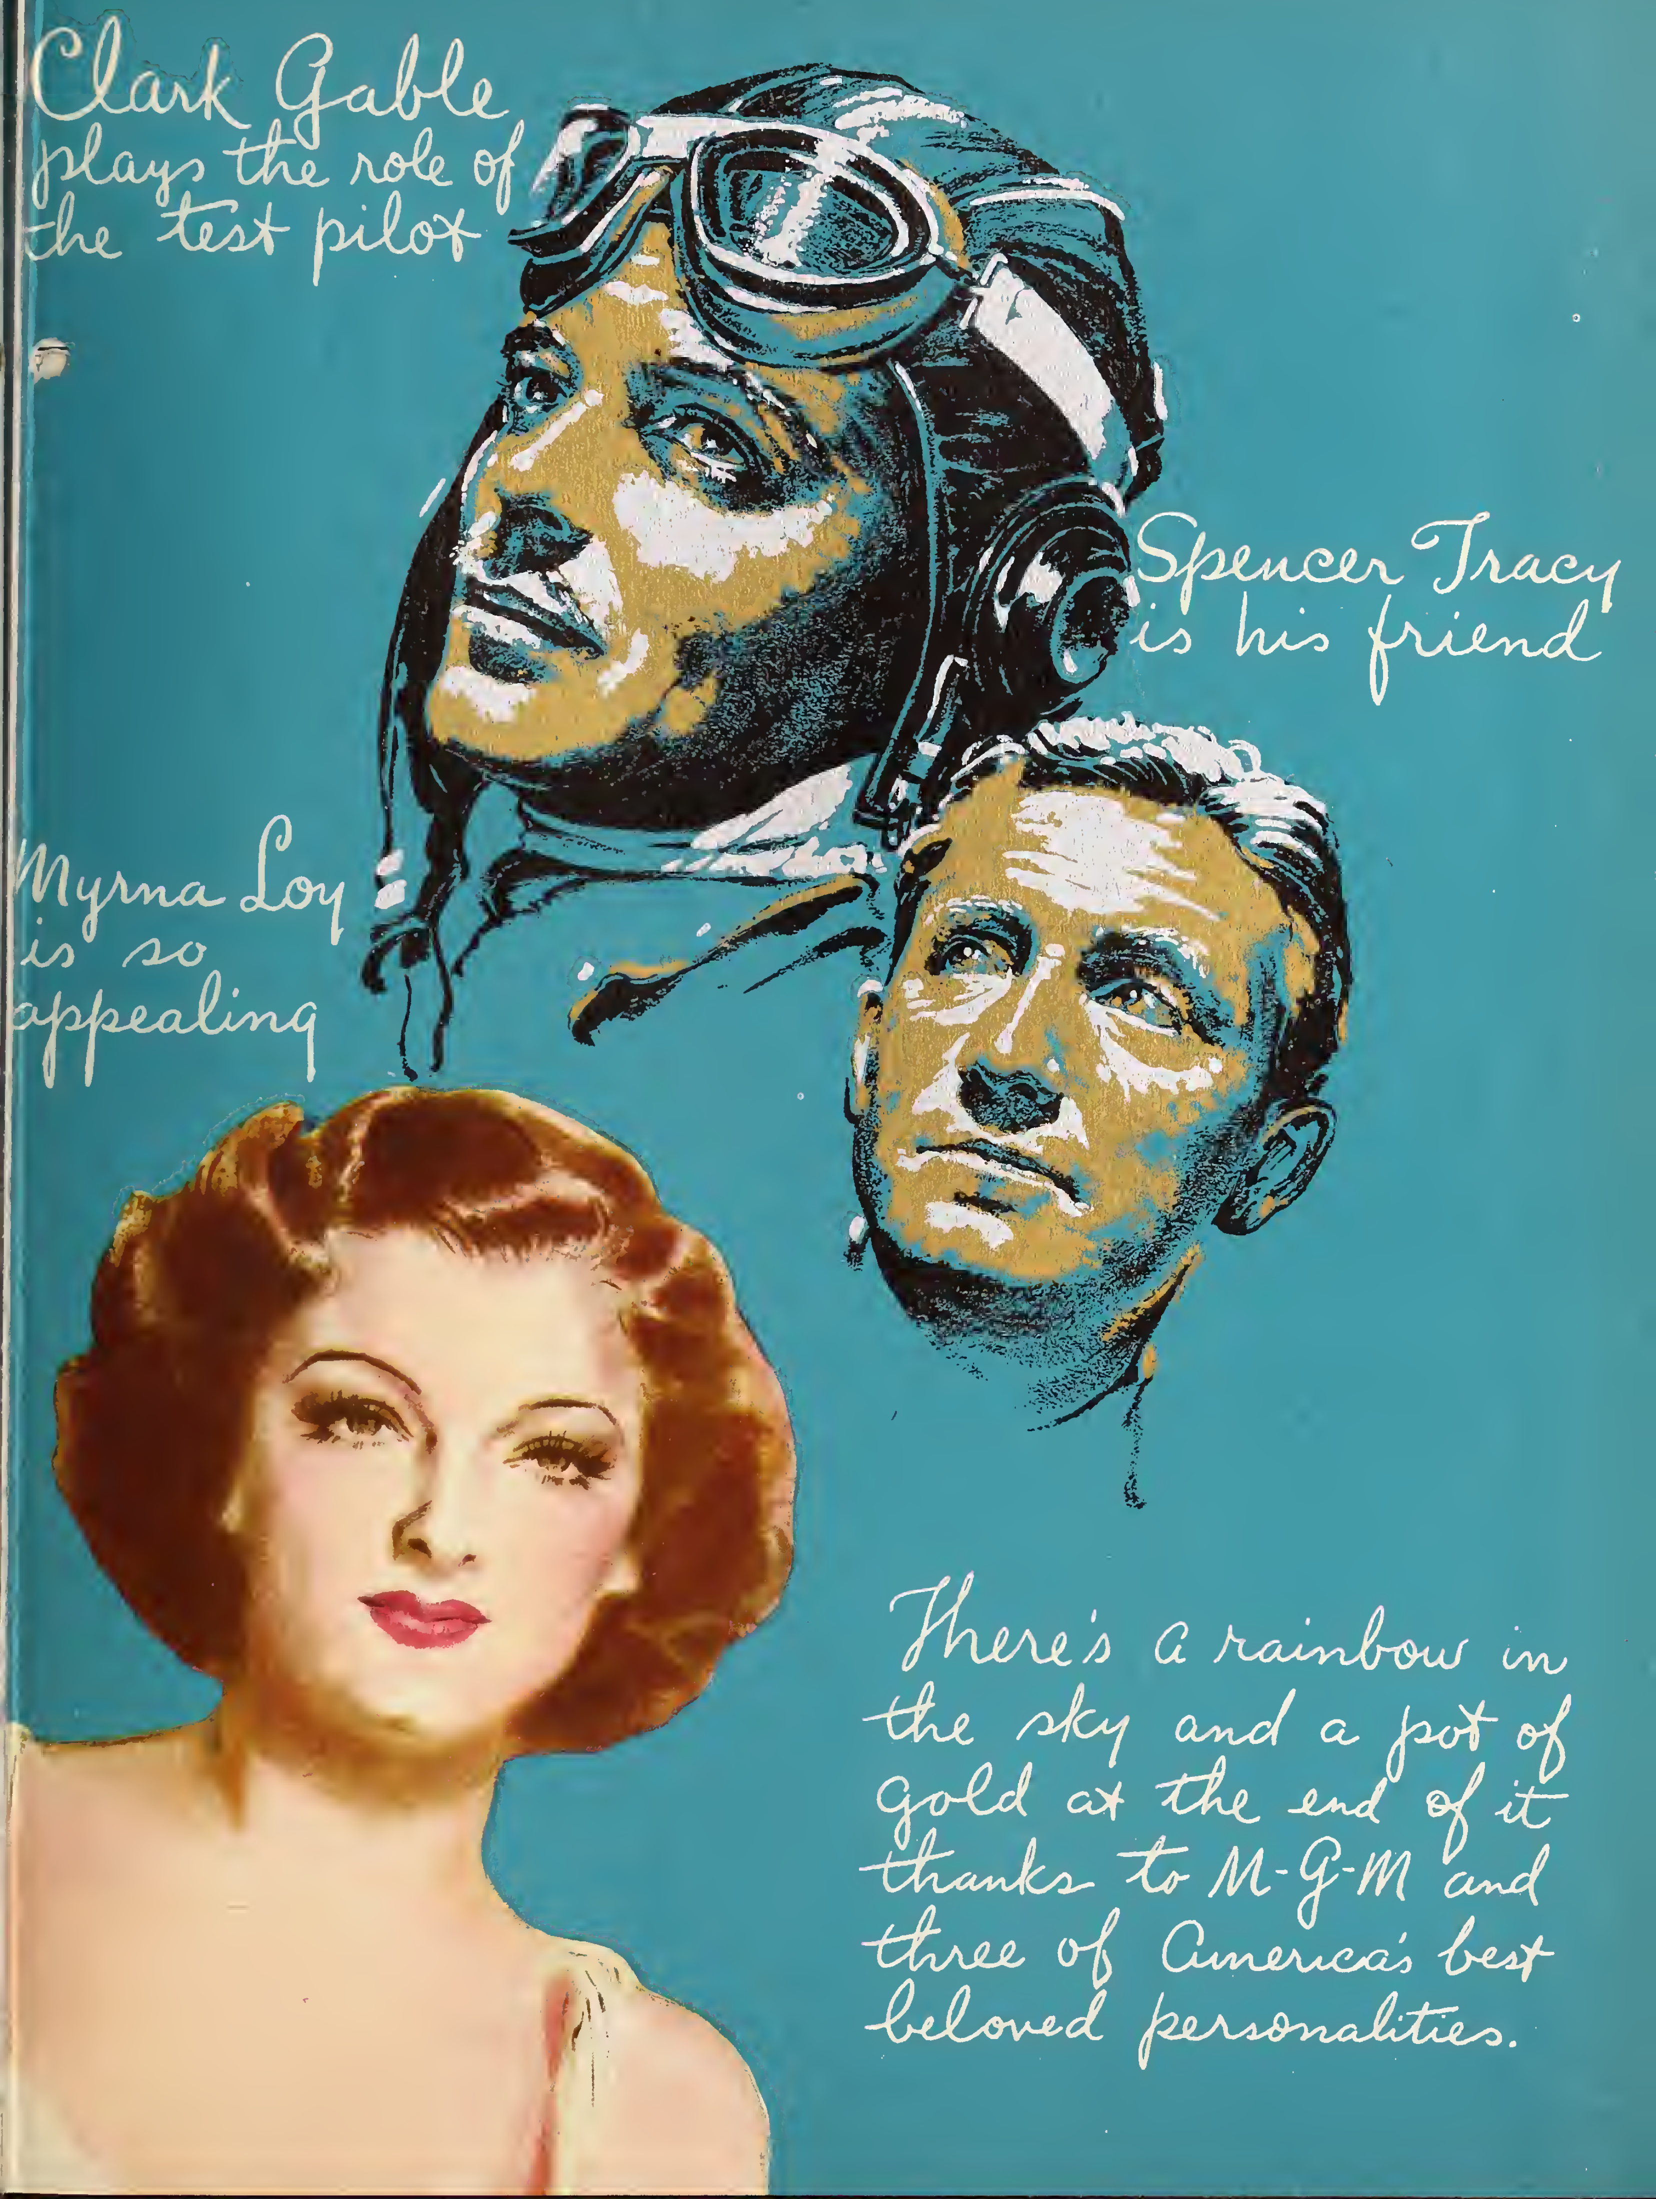
DeMille Under Knife

HOLLYWOOD, March 29.—Cecil B. DeMille today underwent a minor operation at Good Samaritan Hospital. Dr. A. B. Cecil, his physician, said that the producer will be confined for two weeks.



Clark Gable plays the role of the test pilot
Spencer Tracy is his friend
Myrna Loy is so appealing
There's a rainbow in the sky and a pot of gold at the end of it thanks to M-G-M and three of America's best beloved personalities.

"Test Pilot" the season's flash!

If you bear in mind the bigness and thrill of M-G-M's "Hell Divers" you will realize what we set out to do in this great melodrama of men, women and ships of the sky. It is essentially the love story of a reckless, courageous chap who blasts his way through life endearing himself to women and gaining the admiration of men. The three stars, Gable, Loy and Tracy, plus Lionel Barrymore are born to their roles. The director, Victor Fleming and producer, Louis D. Lighton (they did "Captains Courageous") are a winning combination. They have turned out a big box-office attraction in M·G·M's "Test Pilot"

Ascap will file its action attacking the Tennessee statute prohibiting the society from operating within the state late this week or some time next week, according to E. C. Mills, chairman of the Ascap administrative committee, who left for Knoxville last night to confer there with resident attorneys for the society on the action.

Ascap's annual membership meeting, which was postponed from March 24 because of illness in the family of Gene Buck, Ascap president, will be held about April 21.

Until 1929 the organization held summer as well as winter conventions.

Mrs. Griffith predicts 200 or more will attend.

CHICAGO, March 29.—"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is now in its fourth week at the Palace and will stay for six weeks, according to present indications. This will make it possible for the "A" week theatres to get the film during Easter week or the week following.

Balaban & Katz has not signed a deal for the picture as yet, but is expected to this week. B. & K. insists it will play the film on a double feature program, but RKO officials say they will not sell the picture on a dualling basis.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 57
(20th Century-Fox)

Three excellent features, representative of adventure, sport and humor, respectively, comprise all but one of the subjects making up this release. The fourth is a display of gardening clothes with 20th Century-Fox players serving as models.

The first of the features is the camera story of the rescue of the Soviet Polar expedition from its ice floe off Greenland. The pictures are unusual, highly interesting and of some dramatic worth. The second feature records a fishing trip in Australian waters ending with the arduous but sporty landing of a huge striped marlin. It is a picture that any sportsman will enjoy. The third feature is Lew Lehr's interviews with recent Sweepstakes winners. The unconscious comedy of those interviewed is certain to tickle any theatre audience.

The release is somewhat out of the ordinary for this newsreel, but as a departure from the customary it is a successful and highly acceptable one. Running time, 10 mins. K.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 255
(M-G-M)

The rescue of the Soviet Polar expedition from the drifting ice floe on which it was encamped for nine months tops this release in interest and wins the lead position in the reel. The scenes aboard the icebreakers which effected the rescue, scenes of the camp itself and of the desolate surroundings are impressive. Other high spots in the release are the scoring plays of the recent N. Y. Rangers-Americans hockey game and interviews with winners of Irish Sweepstakes prizes.

Of secondary interest are shots of England's King and Queen on a visit to London slum sections; Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and family at the Embassy in London; dedication of a new chapel at Warm Springs, Ga., with President Roosevelt in attendance; Clyde Beatty in spring training inside a lion cage at Rochester, Ind., and Hollywood chorus girls in a new dance routine.

The excellence of the outstanding subjects and the variety of the subject matter as a whole makes this a diverting and fast-moving release. Running time, 9 mins. K.

Paramount News
Issue No. 68
(Paramount)

This is a well balanced issue of pictorial news events of the past few days that will maintain interest. The material is varied and there is a touch of humor at the conclusion.

A flower show in Toronto opens the reel. President Roosevelt is shown at Warm Springs, Ga.; an ocean-flying boat is explained by Major De Serversky, an "auto boat" is demonstrated in Colorado, the 15th Infantry returns from China, the Marines take over the policing of Tientsin, and the current trouble in Mexico is voiced as scenes of oil workers and other labor factions demonstrate against the American and British ownership of the country's oil resources. The final sequence is one of the dialectic things in which various winners of the Irish Sweepstakes prizes have their amusing say. Running time, 9 mins. P.

RKO Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 72
(RKO)

The parade of news events assembled in this issue range from China to New York. Sport, politics and international events and affairs are all taken care of in good fashion. It is generally good stuff, exciting and sometimes spectacular.

The first position is given to scenes of a new, re-vitalized Chinese army drilling in Canton. Next comes a number of shots of an eastern gym meet at the Naval Academy in Annapolis. There are a number of scenes of the "rescue" of the Soviet floe drifters by an icebreaker and Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, ousted head of the T.V.A., speaks on his administration of the Federal project. The second half of the reel shows President Roosevelt dedicating a chapel at Warm Springs, Ga.; the demonstration of a device in Fort Wayne that photographs speeding drivers, and Clyde Beatty at Rochester, Ind., putting a cageful of lions and tigers through a number of tricks. Sweepstakes winners conclude the reel with humorous dialect touches. Running time, 9 mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 10, No. 653
(Universal)

With a lack of good news material available for this midweek issue, the editors threw as much miscellaneous material into it as possible, for a total of 11 items, nine in the United States, one in Mexico and one in Greenland, and three which have amusement as their basis. The result is a reel which entertains and moves rapidly, but which has little substantial in it.

The humor: the usual Sweepstakes winners and their remarks; a cage for drunks, mounted on a wagon, in a Massachusetts town, and (questionable) a tobacco-chewers' spitting contest in Kentucky.

The rest of the reel includes, among other things, cherry blossoms in Washington, well photographed; Mexicans hailing the Government's expropriation of American and British properties, President Roosevelt at a southern chapel dedication, the rescue of Soviet explorers from an Arctic ice floe, an army unit arriving from China, a police camera which "shoots" speeders for photographic evidence and Clyde and Mrs. Beatty putting their "cats" through their paces. Running time, 9 mins. A.

Hollywood Preview

"Invisible Enemy"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, March 29.—Although much of its dialogue is spoken with a British accent, "Invisible Enemy" is a fairly interesting story of international intrigue. Good characterizations, a sufficient amount of action, much suspense, suggestions of mystery, the manner in which a three-cornered romance is treated and some potent comedy qualify the film to interest average audiences.

Plottings of international conspirators menace world peace when Alan Marshall, rescued from the slums of London, is assigned the task of breaking up the ring. Going about his job in light hearted fashion, Marshall becomes involved in a complicated romance in which modiste Mary Correll and Tala Birell, wife of his principal quarry, C. Henry Gordon, are implicated. Turning to melodrama, Marshall is pitted against Gordon, in whom he finds a suave, resourceful antagonist. Aided, however, by secret operative Herbert Mundin, who is the source of most of the straight comedy, Marshall outwits Gordon and his international allies to prevent the transfer of oil properties to nations which would use them for war-making purposes.

Based on a story by Albert J. Cohen, Alex Gottlieb and Norman Burnstine, the screenplay was done by Cohen and Robert T. Shannon. In directing, John H. Auer compensated for the possible dialect handicap by introducing plenty of action, strong suspense and production effects which give the film a novel atmosphere. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

New York Previews

"Over the Wall"

(Warners)

There is sufficient variation of story in this prison melodrama to keep up interest and deliver a fair measure of entertainment. The story is credited to Warden Lewis E. Lawes. The atmosphere is properly realistic and the unfoldment evidences a knowledge of what it is all about.

When the yarn gets under way Dick Foran is presented in the role of a prizefighter who is railroaded to jail for a murder he has not committed. Foran is slugged in a bout. Seeking vengeance, he hits the responsible culprit, who, after Foran departs, gets his skull stove in by his other enemies. Foran takes a manslaughter rap of five years. In prison he is incorrigible and gets into difficulties with the officials. John Litel, the prison chaplain, in due time manages to get Foran to toe the line and with the aid of June Travis makes a model convict of him. Foran becames a well-known radio personage through singing on prison broadcasts. In the meantime Miss Travis unearths information about the guilty party. The climax arrives when Foran, now a trusty, makes a break and catches up with the real killer. It looks bad, but Litel arrives in time to save the situation. Foran returns to the Governor's mansion for a broadcast and is pardoned.

The supporting cast includes Veda Ann Borg, Dick Purcell, George E. Stone, John Hamilton, Jonathan Hale and Raymond Hatton. Frank McDonald directed. Crane Wilbur and George Bricker did the script.

Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

"The Painted Trail"

(Monogram)

"The Pecos Kid," that perenially appearing bad man of the Mexican border, puts in another appearance in "The Painted Trail." But at the conclusion he is killed. Otherwise this western is a fast-moving outdoor drama. Tom Keene is the featured player. It will satisfy.

Keene is called from a leave of absence to help run down a border gang that is causing trouble via cattle rustling, stagecoach holdups and smuggling. With two aides he poses as "The Pecos Kid" and works himself into the good graces of the outlaws. In due time he gets what evidence he needs and with a rousing gun fight he brings the culprits to justice. That is, he gets the ringleader. The rest of the gang is wiped out in the exchange of blank cartridge fire.

Eleanore Stewart plays the romantic interest, giving to the role all it requires. LeRoy Mason is the heavy. Walter Long plays the real desperado, who is killed in a grim shooting sequence. The support contributed by Jimmy Eagles, Forest Taylor, Harry Harvey, Ernie Adams, Bud Osborne and Glen Strange serve to give color and atmosphere to the story. Robert Hill directed. The photography is good.

Running time, 50 minutes. "G."

Court Extends Copyright to All Pictures

opinions in respect of exhibition rights were handed down in cases involving only photoplay films. The right there so recognized was based upon a copyrighted photoplay film being a species of 'dramatic work.'"

In the Cummins' case, District Judge Leibell originally held that the producer defendants, in making the film, "The Jungle Killer," pirated over 1,000 feet from Pattersons' copyrighted travelogue, "Shooting Big Game With a Camera," and that the other defendants further infringed on Patterson's copyright by exhibiting the Cummins' picture. The judgment was affirmed last December by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here. No appeal was taken by the defendants from the finding of piracy, their contention being that Patterson's copyright not only became invalid but did not include exhibition rights.

"Loan" Not "Reproduction"

"Another point of interest resulting from the court's action," Hess observes, "is the sustaining of a Section II copyright, secured for an unpublished motion picture film other than a photoplay, as valid and infringed. The court further held that Patterson's distribution, after securing his Section II copyright, of 35 mm. and 16 mm. prints of his film to thousands of charitable, religious, and educational institutions, by way of loan for 'free showings' before hundreds of thousands of persons, was neither a 'reproduction in copies for sale' nor an act of publication indicating an intent to dedicate the work to the public; therefore plaintiff did not forfeit his rights by failing to deposit two complete copies of his film in the Copyright Office and to re-register the claim to his Section II copyright."

Hess further points out the holding of the court that "a statutory notice of copyright imprinted at the beginning of the first reel of Patterson's multi-reel film was a sufficient compliance with the statute in any event."

Kent, ITOA Feature Allied Discussions

An asserted "change in attitude" by S. R. Kent, president of 20th Century-Fox, on the Neely-Pettengill bill since his committee testimony on the measure and a similar change in viewpoint by the I.T.O.A. were subjects of discussion at a meeting of Allied of New Jersey at the Lincoln Hotel yesterday.

With Irving Dollinger, president, in the chair, it was charged that Kent "had changed his mind on block booking" since he told a House committee that he would have no objection to anti-block booking prohibition as practiced in England.

It was also said that the I.T.O.A. in 1936 favored the Neely-Pettengill bill and that Harry Brandt, president, had attacked block booking before Clarence Darrow's review board of the National Recovery Administration in 1934. Brandt currently is one of the most outspoken foes of the controversial measure.

Twelve speakers are scheduled for the 20th Century-Fox general sales conference in Kansas City on Friday and Saturday, in addition to John D. Clark, general sales manager, who will preside.

Progress of current season's selling and the 1938-'39 sales campaign in their divisions will be discussed by William Sussman, William C. Gehring and William J. Kupper, eastern, central and western division managers, respectively. Clark will deal with the subjects generally and outline the new season's program.

A feature will be the announcement of the company's shorts schedule, to be presented by William J. Clark, news and short subject sales manager, and Truman H. Talley, Movietone News head, who will supervise the production of shorts, all one-reelers. Another speaker will be Lew Lehr, Movietone News commentator, who has been named short subjects editor.

Hutchinson to Talk

Charles E. McCarthy, advertising and publicity director, will outline next year's exploitation campaigns, and Walter J. Hutchinson, general foreign sales manager, will discuss his field. Others on the program are James P. O'Loghlin, Kent Drive leader, who will present the 1937 prizes; Herman Wobber, west coast district manager; Felix A. Jenkins, secretary and general counsel of the corporation, and Alan E. Freedman, of De Luxe Film Laboratories.

The 100 delegates will be told of the extension of the Movietone News Building to be constructed at 53rd St. and 10th Ave. for the production of shorts. Pending completion the shorts will be made in the main Movietone Building utilizing present stages. Construction is scheduled to start next week and be completed about Sept. 15.

Engel's Friends Pay Tribute at Banquet

PHILADELPHIA, March 29.—About 250 film men attended a testimonial dinner in honor of Joe Engel, Universal branch head, who has been shifted to Cleveland, at the Warwick Hotel last night. William A. Scully, general sales manager, and Frank J. A. McCarthy, eastern division manager, were present.

Frank McNamee, RKO branch manager, was toastmaster. Among the speakers were David E. Weshner, Jay Emanuel, Sig Wittman, Ray O'Rourke, Jack Beresin, Ben Amsterdam, Mike Landow, Lewen Pizor and others. Engel was presented a silver service.

Legion Says "Baby" Not for Theatres

the picture as entertainment by the Motion Picture Division of the Education Department," the statement reads. "In taking this action, the Legion felt that the picture was not suitable for general exhibition in the theatre.

"This production has considerable merit from the medical, educational, social and technical points of view; however, the film is not suited for general exhibition in the theatre, where audiences are composed of both sexes and various ages, backgrounds, mentalities and temperaments. Adequate and satisfactory audience control is very difficult to obtain in theatrical exhibitions. An attempt to procure such control may, despite precautions, insinuate sensationalism to many minds.

External Factors Stressed

"Intrinsically, the film is moral in theme. The Legion does not criticize the sincere ultimate purposes of the organizations which are listed as sponsoring this picture. The Legion is also aware of the exploitation safeguards which the distributors promise to use in contractual agreements and publicity.

"Nevertheless, in forming an integral evaluation of the film, external factors must be taken into consideration. The theatre, at the present time, is not popularly accepted as a clinic, consultation office or classroom. The theatre hardly provides the kind of environment necessary for a proper, dignified and reverential attitude toward this subject which is so sacred, private and personal."

S-O-S Wins Default Judgment in Action

A $5,000 default judgment was awarded by Justice Isidore Wasservogel to International Theatre Accessories Corp. and Sales-on-Sound Corp., against Alfred H. Weiss, Julius J. Bressler and Consolidated Theatre Supply Corp., after the defendants failed to appear when the case was called for trial in the N. Y. Supreme Court. At the same time a counter claim for $50,000 was dismissed by Justice Wasservogel.

The plaintiffs brought action in April, 1937, seeking $25,000 damages and charging that the defendants "conspired" to deprive the plaintiff of their business by wrongfully obtaining trade secrets from them. The plaintiffs further charged the defendants with "conspiring" to entice away employes of International and "simulating" advertisements and circulars of International. The defendants, in their answer, denied these charges and countered with a cross suit for $50,000 for alleged libel.

Plan "Mothers" Short

HOLLYWOOD, March 29.—M-G-M is embarking on a short subject, "That Mothers Might Live," a one-reel picture based on the life of Dr. I. P. Semmelweis, the scientist who discovered the germ which causes child-bed fever. Dr. Ryland Madison, research expert of Stanford University, wrote the original story, and Herman Boxer of the studio staff wrote the screenplay.

Shepperd Strudwick plays the role of Dr. Semmelweis, and Fred Zinneman directs under Jack Chertok's supervision.

or through subsidies to local producers made possible through devious methods at the expense of foreign distributors.

"American motion pictures are the life-blood of the theatres throughout the foreign markets of the world, because they are the best that man has created. Without them theatre operators would have difficulty in keeping their theatres open. Yet foreign countries are constantly harassing our American companies and making it more difficult for them to distribute our pictures, which may justly be called the 'bread and butter' of foreign exhibitors."

Comments on England

Because of the pending reciprocal trade agreement with the United Kingdom, Golden's comment on conditions in that market, one of more than 80 reviewed, is of special interest.

"As proof that an industry cannot be effectively legislated into being, one need only look at Great Britain," he said. "Ten years ago there was inaugurated a quota system designed to assist and promote a national industry. During the 10 years Great Britain has produced more films than ever before. But ordinarily they were not of the type enjoyed by the motion picture public of the world. Seemingly, they were not even enjoyed by the British public. The result was that theatres, to stay within the law and meet their quota footage, were obliged to show these pictures at hours during the day when patronage was either nil or at its minimum."

Warner Club to Bowl

The New York Warner Club tomorrow night will hold an open bowling tournament at the Capitol Bowling Alleys. Beginners and experts of both sexes may compete and prizes will be awarded for skill and by drawing. The committee in charge consists of R. M. Moss, R. P. Hagen, L. B. Griffin and Ann Levy.

Expect Silver Break To Lower Film Price

York price yesterday and another cent today. This means a loss of up to $1,000,000 a month in Mexican income.

The United States Treasury, by agreement, has been buying to 5,000,000 ounces of Mexican silver monthly at 45 cents an ounce.

The film stock and jewelry industries are the two largest consumers of so-called free silver—the metal available on the London market where the price has practically been pegged by the Washington purchases. Predictions are rife that withdrawal of Treasury support may drive the world price down as low as 30 cents an ounce or less.

has approved a contract calling for the distribution of the Colony Pictures film, "The Shadow Murder Case," already produced, and a pact calling for Max Alexander to produce two westerns starring Ken Maynard within eight weeks. Colony Pictures is owned by Max and Arthur Alexander.

This gives Grand National a total of eight pictures already set, as Phil Goldstone's Criterion Pictures will produce three Renfrew of the Mounteds and Grand National has already acquired for distribution "Zamboanga" and "He Married an Actress."

Lords Will Consider Quota Measure Today

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

LONDON, March 29.—The House of Lords tomorrow will consider the action of the House of Commons yesterday in rejecting the Lord Moyne amendments increasing the exhibitor and distributor quotas above the levels stipulated in the Films Bill as originally passed by the Commons.

The industry generally anticipates that the House of Lords will accept the Government's plea for the Commons terms of the measure as presented by Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade. It is known that Lord Strabolgi, member of the upper chamber of Parliament with Labor inclinations, will aid the Government.

It is believed in informed quarters that there is little likelihood of any amount of debate on the matter in the House of Lords and that formal acceptance of the Stanley Government proposals on quota figures is probable, despite the heavy lobbying campaign for the increased quotas waged by British producers.

be created between the exhibitor and the distributor," Snider said. "Unless better relations are fostered, there is a danger that further inroads along the path of restrictive regulation may be made by the Government. We feel such a position should be avoided. However, the pressure on the exhibitor is great, and experience has shown that excess pressure always leads to Government intervention."

Overbuying, or overselling, is another serious problem, he said. Should the Neely-Pettengill bill pass in this country, Australian exhibitors will probably seek similar legislation, he predicted.

Snider came in yesterday from the coast where he arrived about three weeks ago. He plans to sail for England after completing his New York conferences and will return here on his way back to Australia.

In the larger centers Snider & Dean has a pooling affiliation with Hoyts, Australia's largest circuit, which virtually controls preferred playing time and product.

Snider said Australian producers are facing a difficult situation because of the exclusion of Dominion films from the British quota. In the past it has been possible for Australian studios—Cinesound, National Studios and Master Craft—to obtain about half their revenue in England, but, with reciprocity blocked, producing companies will find that market closed and will be unable to continue production. The three Australian studios have a capacity of 12 to 15 films a year.

Expansion plans of the Snider & Dean circuit are being held in abeyance pending stabilization of industry practices, said Snider. He said it was his understanding that M-G-M had not renewed its lease on the Liberty in Sydney since the 600-seat house had been offered to his circuit.

Mary Pickford Will Sail for Talks on U.A.

specific subject of an urgent na[illegible] to be decided, and described the ob[illegible] of the conferences as the settlement of general company plans and policies for the new season.

Miss Pickford admitted that the proposal for a redistribution of United Artists stock designed to permit active producer-partners to participate to a greater extent in company earnings had been discussed "from time to time," but asserted that she was not aware that it was being actively projected at this time. She said that she did not believe the proposal would come up for discussion at the London conferences.

The United Artists stock redistribution proposal, reportedly being advanced by Goldwyn, provides for the issuance of a new preferred stock on a fixed dividend basis to inactive partners in the company, and a common stock to share in all earnings after the preferred dividends have been paid to be issued to the producer-partners.

Denies Sale Plans

Miss Pickford reiterated that there is no present possibility of any one of the five United Artists partners disposing of his, or her, stockholdings.

"All deals for sale or purchase of a stock interest have been abandoned," Miss Pickford said. "Both the intent and the desire now is to maintain the ownership status quo."

To her denial that discussion of any deal of this kind prompted the request for her presence in London, Miss Pickford added the denial that there was any likelihood of Korda withdrawing from the company.

Miss Pickford said she expected the conferences would be concluded by the end of next week and that she might return immediately thereafter with Goldwyn and David Stone, vice-president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., if she decided not to spend a few days in Paris.

To Broadcast Harris Variety Club Speech

CINCINNATI, March 29.—WLW will feed to the NBC-Red network on a coast-to-coast hookup on April 24 the address of John H. Harris, national president, at the banquet of the national convention of Variety Clubs of America, to be held at the Netherland Plaza here.

Arrangements now are being made for the presence at the banquet of men high in political life at Washington, as well as some of the outstanding personalities of the stage, screen and radio, whose participation at the banquet likewise will be aired.

Peter Grant and Paul Sullivan, commentators on WLW and WASI, respectively, will be at the mike.

Grainger Due in May

James R. Grainger, former Universal general sales manager, who is to be elected president of Republic Pictures, is not expected here until the middle of May. He will start his duties with Republic on May 23.

Canada Policy Ownership of Big Stations

to expand its business while CBS which competed with it in the commercial field is increasing station power. Johnston also asked if it were possible that private stations would have their present air channels changed by the corporation. Brockington replied that when the Havana agreement has been completed there will be a reallocation of channels. It would be done "for the one purpose that Canadians get good listening." CBC, he said, did not recognize any final and continued ownership of any channels.

J. Earl Lawson, corporation critic, asked Brockington whether he could envisage any source for CBC revenue other than Government grants to replace $700,000 advertising revenue. The witness replied that revenue might come from increased license fees to broadcasting stations, an increase in the number of listeners and license fees from television and similar broadcasting.

New NBC Rate Card Is Effective April 15

The new NBC rate card—No. 24—has been completed, and will become effective April 15. The new card combines all NBC facilities on a single card, whereas separate cards were formerly issued for the Blue and Red networks.

A new feature is the removal of all identification of the various supplementary groups; henceforth they will be known by number, rather than as "Blue Mountain" or "Pacific Red," as formerly.

Rates remain generally the same as they were on the last card, except that WMBG, Richmond, takes a new rate of $140 per evening hour; WMPS, is reduced to $140 per evening hour, and KGU, Honolulu, is reduced to $160 per evening hour.

Discontinue Actions On Gibbons' Comment

Three suits, each for damages of $250,000, against Floyd Gibbons, Colgate-Palmolive-Peet and Benton & Bowles were discontinued yesterday with the withdrawal of action by the plaintiff, Charles O. Locke, script writer. No money was paid, according to Benton & Bowles.

Locke instituted the suits early in 1937, charging that his reputation as a script writer had been damaged by Gibbons during a broadcast over WLW in January of that year. The complaints alleged that Gibbons, in broadcasting a description of the Ohio River flood as written by Locke, had distorted and over-dramatized the scene.

Take "Thin to Music"

"Get Thin to Music," heard over WOR as a sustaining series, is now being sponsored by General Mills over Mutual stations WGN, Chicago, and WCAE, Philadelphia. Blackett-Sample-Hummert is the agency.

WCAU Explains Its Return to the NAB

PHILADELPHIA, March 29.—Leon and Isaac Levy of WCAU, who were bitterly at odds with the National Association of Broadcasters prior to its reorganization in February, yesterday in a statement explained their reasons for rejoining the N.A.B.

They said they had rejoined because they were convinced that the men now running the N.A.B. "are sincerely doing a good job," and because they felt that the N.A.B. now needs its greatest strength because of a desire for the renewal of the Ascap contract.

Commenting on a paragraph in a letter recently sent to all broadcasters by the N.A.B., Leon Levy, president of WCAU, said: "A paragraph in the circular asking broadcasters to join the N.A.B. advised them not to join if they were satisfied with the present Ascap contract. My brother and I believe that the author of that paragraph has not been fair with the broadcasters inasmuch as he fails to explain fully the meaning of 'satisfied with the present Ascap contract.' Perhaps its author is the one who urged the broadcasters to pay both Ascap and Warners for the same music. However, we have taken exception to that paragraph and feel that our main reason for rejoining the N.A.B. is the desire for the renewal of that contract with Ascap."

R. & R. Series Scheduled

Richardson & Robbins will start its first network program with a three-a-week series of 10-minute shows over six NBC-Blue stations April 18. The contract runs for one year. The Revelers Quartet will be featured. The broadcasts will be on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 6:15 to 6:25 P. M., over WJZ, WBZ-WBZA, WBAL, WRC and WGY. Charles H. Hoyt, Inc., New York, is the agency.

Markwell to Hartman

Norman Markwell has joined the L. H. Hartman Co., New York advertising agency, as an account executive and will specialize in radio and publicity work. Markwell was a founder and vice-president of the Paul Cornell Co., which later became Geyer, Cornell and Newell.

Deny CIO Claim as Sole Agent in CBS

The National Labor Relations Board has denied the petition of the American Radio Telegraphists' Association, C. I. O. affiliate, for recognition as the sole bargaining agent for CBS employes.

The decision recognizes the Associated Broadcast Technicians, which has no affiliation with the C. I. O. or A. F. of L., as the bargaining agent for the network technicians, a position which it has held for the past four years. The A. R. T. A. has charged that the independent organization was a company union.

To Honor Barbirolli

The Lotus Club will give a dinner tomorrow evening to John Barbirolli, conductor of the Philharmonic-Symphony on the occasion of the completion of his first year as permanent conductor of the orchestra. Among those who will be present are Mayor LaGuardia, Sir Gerald and Lady Campbell, Arthur and Mrs. Judson, Theodore and Mrs. Steinway, Mme. Olga Samaroff Stokowski and others prominent in social, civic and musical circles. CBS will air talks at the dinner at 10 P. M.

Mutual Offers Series

"The Lamplighter" series has been offered to clients on a participation basis by Mutual, and the series has been purchased by local sponsors in Cincinnati over WSAI and in Columbus, O., over WHKC. The series is sponsored over WOR by the Julius Grossman Shoe Co.

Renew "McGee" Program

S. C. Johnson Co. has renewed "Fibber McGee and Molly" for another 52 weeks of broadcasting, effective April 12. The program is broadcast Tuesdays from 9:30 to 10 P. M. on the NBC-Red. Needham Louis & Brorby is the agency.

Winner Joins WQXR

Percy Winner will go on the air for WQXR on Tuesdays and Fridays as a "news analyst" to answer questions of listeners based upon events in the news. Winner was formerly in charge of short wave broadcasting for NBC.

Postpone Talks Between Independents and AFM

The negotiating committee for the Independent Broadcasters met with the American Federation of Musicians executive board yesterday in the initial move toward the working out of a basic agreement with the union covering increased employment of union musicians.

Because of the fact that the necessary statistics covering the operations of independent stations was not available, further negotiations have been postponed until April 20.

In the interim the negotiating committee will prepare and send a questionnaire to the 384 non-affiliated stations throughout the country. Information sought is the number of musicians now employed by each station owner, the amount of money now spent for live music, gross income of each station and each station's rate card.

Following the close of yesterday's negotiations, the committee, comprising Lloyd Thomas, WROK, chairman; Henry McNaughton, WTBO; and C. Alden Baker, WRNL, entrained for Washington to contact the National Association of Broadcasters for legal and financial assistance.

Meanwhile, the A. F of M. yesterday continued conferences with representatives of the record manufacturers in an attempt to reach an agreement on the license form for the disc interests. These conferences will be continued tomorrow.

Firm Plans Ads on Phonograph Records

The first open move to use phonograph records for advertising purposes has been undertaken by the Trans-Electra Corp., which has applied to the Music Publishers' Protective Association for a license to manufacture platters containing commercial blurbs. Rumors that such a movement was under way have been current for some time.

Plans of the Trans-Electra Corp. call for the waxing of name bands on 10-inch discs, with advertising matter to be inserted before and after each number. Charges to advertisers, it is understood, will be based on releases of between 1,000 and 30,000 records. While the attitude of Ascap, the A F.M. and the National Association of Performing Artists to a proposal such as this is not definitely known, it is believed that all will oppose the plan.

Propaganda

Mexico City, March 30.—The Mexican Government has enlisted the aid of theatres here in an effort to obtain the support of Mexicans and the good will of foreign residents in the situation created by the expropriation of the properties of oil companies and the cancellation by the United States of silver purchases in Mexico.

Three - minute trailers urging support of the Government are being shown in houses throughout the country at every performance, as part of a gigantic propaganda drive, including newspaper ads and the radio.

Receives Royal Assent; Starts Tomorrow for 10-Year Period

By AUBREY FLANAGAN

London, March 30.—The controversial and much agitated Films Bill, of which the quota provisions are the most important phase, finally was passed today by the House of Lords and this afternoon received Royal Assent.

The measure therefore will become a law on Friday, replacing the legislation which has been effective since 1927. The new law will be in effect for 10 years.

The legislation as finally passed after sharp debate in Parliament and considerable and occasionally heated discussion in the trade, carries the quota schedules which were a part of the original measure as passed by the House of Commons under Government sponsorship. The quota terms provide a distributor quota which will start at 15 per cent during the first year of the law, rising gradually to a high of 30 per cent in the final year of the law. This compares with a distributors' quota percentage under the existing legislation of 20 per cent.

The exhibitors' quota will begin at 12½ per cent for the first year of the new law, and rise under a graduated scale to a high of 25 per cent in the final year of the law. The present exhibitor quota is 15 per cent, which is effective until the end of September, 1938. The concession had been made from the previous law's exhibitor quota of 20 per cent to allow for the

New Booking Bill Appears in House

Washington, March 30.—Representative Andrew Edmiston (Dem.) of West Virginia yesterday teamed up with Senator Neely of that state and introduced the latter's block booking bill in the House.

Little chance is seen for any action on the bill this year in view of the heavy legislative slate still to be disposed of. The Senate last week indicated it was in no hurry to deal with the measure by passing it over when it was reached during the calling of the calendar.

AT & T Legislation Not Looked for Now

Washington, March 30.—No legislation requiring the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. to divest itself of non-telephone activities, expected to be recommended by the Federal Communications Commission, is seen as likely at this session in view of the legislative jam now piling up in Congress.

The F.C.C., although promising its report on the telephone company will go to Congress in the "near future," is understood to have made little headway in its study of the 1,000-page document now before it.

The commission is definitely scheduled to send the report in before the

Para. Partners Not To Meet Until May

A national meeting of Paramount theatre associates will not be held before late May or early in June, Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount theatre head, said yesterday.

Arrangements for the meeting will be made following the return of Barney Balaban, president, from the studio in about a month, Freeman said. Report Censor Bill Coming in Michigan

DETROIT, March 30.—A bill providing for state censorship of films similar to the Ohio law, will be introduced at Lansing in the next session of the legislature, it has been learned from reliable sources. Backers of the bill are keeping their identity secret, but are having the bill drafted at present, according to persons in close touch with state affairs.

Belief that the present system of censoring, which is largely in the hands of Detroit police and unofficial boards in Grand Rapids and other cities in the state, should be centered in one board and that the state should derive additional revenue from the plan are said to be back of the move for the bill.

Film Censorship Out Of S. C. Liquor Bill

SPARTANBURG, S. C., March 30.—The provision inserted in a House-approved liquor bill to ban motion pictures depicting drinking, divorce or murder today was rejected by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Quota Bill Is Passed; Runs From 15-30%

difficulties which might arise through the then pending legislation.

The present distributor quota will expire tomorrow, March 31, while the exhibitor quota will not expire until the end of September, when the 12½ per cent schedule will go into effect.

The short subject quota will begin at 12½ per cent for exhibitors and rise to a high of 22½ per cent, while the distributors' short subject quota will begin at 20 per cent and rise to a high of 30 per cent in the last year of the law.

The two other most important elements of the new measure, particularly as concerns foreign product, are the clauses providing for triple quota value and reciprocity.

Triple Quota Included

Briefly, the triple quota clause provides that films for which the producer has made an expenditure of at least £30,000 ($187,500) in labor costs, shall count for three films under the distributor quota.

Under the reciprocity clause, a distributor who undertakes to distribute a British feature anywhere else in the world shall be entitled to credit on the distributor quota in England.

The new measure also provides for a Films Council which will have wide discretionary power under the general jurisdiction of the Board of Trade, whose president, Oliver Stanley, sponsored the measure in Parliament.

Following passage recently by the House of Commons, the Films Bill went to the House of Lords, and there unexpectedly was subjected to considerable verbal battering from members of the upper chamber, whose consideration of the measure resulted in a general increase in the quota schedules. The measure then was returned to Commons and that body rejected completely the proposed increases in quota schedules, but, at the suggestion of Stanley, accepted the Lords' amendment providing for a triple quota arrangement.

The trade here generally had been opposed to the increased quota percentages, with the exception of the British producer group, which favored the increases.

Opposition in U. S.

The measure has a history of more than a year in the making, starting virtually with the lengthy and exhaustive "Moyne Report," which resulted from the effort of the committee headed by Lord Moyne to study the industry and to recommend such legislation as should be enacted to replace the 10-year Films Act which is just now expiring. Since the publication of the "Moyne Report," the plans for new legislation have followed a wavering course of discussion and argument, leading to a Government "White Paper," embodying the Government's ideas of what such legislation should contain and leading eventually into the halls of Parliament.

One other phase of the measure of note is that which excludes from quota consideration those pictures produced in the British dominions, including Canada and Australia.

Distribution circles in New York yesterday were generally understood to feel that the new British films legislation passed yesterday was to be considered satisfactory, at least in comparison with that which was forecast in the original "Moyne Report" on proposed new legislation for the industry.

At the same time it was indicated that a considerable feeling of appreciation existed for the effort of Joseph P. Kennedy, new American Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, in behalf of the American interests, with regard to the final provisions of the measure.

Para. Seeks Stay on Home Cartoon Prints

CHICAGO, March 30.—An injunction restraining Exclusive Movie Studios, Inc., from continuing to distribute the Fleischer Betty Boop and Pop-Eye cartoons in 8mm. and 16mm. strips for home use was granted to Paramount by the U. S. District Court here today.

Paramount set forth that it had refused to grant Exclusive a two-year extension of the distributing con[illegible]t on its expiration recently because contract terms had not been complied with during the first three years of the agreement. Paramount charged that Exclusive continued to distribute the films, regardless. Spitz & Adcock, Chicago law firm headed by Leo Spitz, RKO president, represented Paramount in the action which was filed here by Irving Cohen of the company's home office legal staff.

Para. Partners Not To Meet Until May

will be determined during the visit, with present indications pointing to a total of about 55 pictures for next year, or approximately 10 fewer than were announced by the company a year ago. The company's convention plans will be made at the same time and are expected to call for a district managers' meeting with regional meetings of branch managers following.

Kansas City ITO to Discuss Neely Bill

KANSAS CITY, March 30.—A meeting has been called by the I.T.O. here for Friday to discuss, among other things, the Neely bill. Indications are, although there is some dissension from this view, that independent theatre operators here are not in favor of the bill in its present form, although they like some of the ideas in the measure. E. E. Webber, Jr., of the Mary Lue heads the group.

Delay Milwaukee Meeting

MILWAUKEE, March 30.—The Independent Theatres Protective Association of Wisconsin has temporarily shelved its convention plans tentatively dated for April 5 and 6. According to R. A. Tesch, business manager, it is possible that the gathering will be held in May or June. An expression from the members indicated that they did not favor the April dates, it was stated.

"Bluebeard" Held 3rd Week at Para.

The Paramount, Roxy and Capitol are doing the best business on Broadway this week, with the Strand also in the money. All four houses are holding their attractions a second week and "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" will go a third at the Paramount.

Business perked up considerably at the Capitol, where "The Girl of the Golden West" did $35,000 in the week ending last night. Shirley Temple's "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" is expected to finish with about $40,000 for the first seven days at the Roxy and will remain until April 8, when "In Old Chicago" will start a pre-release engagement.

"Over the Wall" is expected to boost the Strand's take to $25,000 or thereabouts, after a weak $11,000 on "Love, Honor and Behave." "Fools for Scandal" was a disappointment at the Music Hall, doing $55,000, which is far below average. "The Crime of Dr. Hallett gave the Rialto $6,500.

An innovation will be undertaken by Matty Radin tonight with the simultaneous opening of "Lenin in October" at the Cameo and Continental. The film is dated for 11 days at the latter house, while the run at the Cameo will be extended.

Another foreign film, "Mayerling," will get staggered bookings at 18 Loew neighborhood houses, starting today, said to be the first time the circuit has given a foreign language picture widespread playing time. The bookings were set after test runs at four Loew theatres.

"Battle of Broadway," which was considered for showing at the Roxy following "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," is now set to follow "In Old Chicago."

Exhibitors Hope for Racing Bill Hearing

Albany, March 30.—A public hearing on the Quinn bill to legalize dog racing in Westchester, Nassau, Erie and Monroe counties is hoped for by Albany and Buffalo exhibitors before Governor Lehman acts on the measure. The bill was passed by the Senate and Assembly, but has not been signed by the Governor. State exhibitors still are actively opposing the measure.

Action by Governor Lehman on two other measures which were passed by the legislature also is being awaited by exhibitors. One is the Ehrlich bill which provides that theatre matrons serve as chaperones for children between the ages of eight and 16 who attend the theatre without parent or guardian. The other is the Wagner bill which prescribes a six-day week for janitors, custodians and certain other theatre employes presumably within its provisions.

The Governor is expected to sign the latter two measures. His approval of the Quinn bill, however, is regarded as doubtful here.

Grand National to Start Sales April 1

Grand National will start its selling season April 1, as last year, and the sales organization will be strengthened with the addition of 50 men in the field, Edward Peskay, vice-president in charge of distribution, said yesterday. A retrenchment during the winter resulted in a skeleton sales force.

Release of four films immediately will get the new season under way. Peskay listed them as "Renfrew Rides North," second in the series being produced by Phil Goldstone; "International Crime," one of the Shadow series; "He Loved An Actress," a William Rowland production, and "Zamboanga," made with a native cast in the South Seas.

Peskay said that with the home office established in Hollywood, he will divide his time between the two coasts and that Edward L. Alperson, president, will remain on the coast permanently, with visits to New York at intervals.

end of the session, but it is expected it will be filed too late for any action this year. The original plans were to have it serve as a possible Administration plan to regulate monopolies, but since the Administration has let it be known that general monopoly legislation will not be passed this year there is little likelihood of Congress taking any action in the telephone case.

Hollywood Preview

"The Battle of Broadway"

(20th Century-Fox)

Hollywood, March 30.—Victor McLaglen gets back into uniform and the swashbuckling stride of previous service comedies in this louder, funnier and more legitimately entertaining vehicle than most of them. Brian Donlevy is the rival buddy formerly played by Edmund Lowe and both are legionnaires taking in the New York convention, an event useful but not overworked as story background. Louise Hovick is the principal girl in the case and this may be chalked up in the books as the picture in which a suitable something was found for her to do and she did it.

The screenplay by Lou Breslow and John Patrick from an original story by Norman Houston is a raffish, but respectable double action version of the plot wherein the wealthy parent who objects to his son's marriage to a showgirl winds up by marrying her himself. Raymond Walburn is the father and Robert Kellard the son. McLaglen and Donlevy are workers in Walburn's steel plant whom he sends to New York to break up the boy's romance at any cost. They mistake Miss Hovick for the girl in the case. She in reality is her friend, Lynn Bari. And when the bills pile up Walburn comes to handle the matter personally and marries Miss Hovick, after a sequence of knockabout incidents that tickled a preview audience all over, in an utterly mad scene in a lunatic asylum.

The pace is swift and the situations are fresh. The dialogue is consistently humorous and free of the "sez-you, sez-me" tinge of earlier works in kind. The legion convention slant ought to prove profitably useful in exploiting the attraction and it is well qualified to please the patronage by that or other means. The film is well above the Sol. M. Wurtzel average and George Marshall's direction keeps a complicated plot lucid and a wealth of action effectively coherent.

We are in whole-hearted accord with Eddie Cantor's recently expressed views anent the audience rating surveys.

Cantor attacked the surveys on the grounds that their findings cannot be accurate because the sample taken is too small, and Eddie's deduction, in our opinion, is as infallible as one of Sherlock Holmes' in a Conan Doyle mystery story. Many a good program has been removed from the air because its rating, as adjudicated by an inadequate number of telephone calls in some cities, was "poor." Conversely, of course, too many poor programs have been kept on the air simply because the rating, determined as described above, was "good."' Eddie has asked for the support of the radio press in his campaign against the audience surveys, and he may count upon ours for whatever it is worth.

Before closing the subject of Cantor:—Maybe it's due to the hapless man's close proximity to the Cantor influence, but whatever the reason, we've just heard that the comedian's chauffeur recently welcomed the arrival of his fifth—daughter!

NBC had the only radio wire out of Austria the day that "anschluss" took place, and to show how radio handled the news of Hitler's seizure of Austria, a March of Time camera crew yesterday set up equipment in the special events department of the network, and using as actors NBC Vice-President John Royal and special events director Abe Schechtor, re-created the events of that day. The film will be used as a leadin for the Austrian clip of the next March of Time release.

A member of the special events department, watching Royal and Schechtor going through their paces, finally turned to a newspaperman and growled: "Yeah, that's the way it happened all right—but the big shot (meaning Royal) wasn't here.

NBC seems to have gone dipsy-doodle in the matter of worshipping Toscanini. Early this week the network paid for a telephone call to Europe, where Toscanini is now vacationing, to have the members of the symphony orchestra prattle birthday greetings to the maestro. Now, it is learned, the network has had made a 14-karat solid gold replica of the maestro's union card. This will be presented to Toscanini when he returns here.

New Projector for Television Is Shown

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.—A new type of screen projector for use in television has been demonstrated with excellent results by the Farnsworth Co. here.

Televised film, appearing on a six-by-seven-inch screen, shows up excellently, the images having good contrast and definition, lacking the cloudy appearance that usually accompanies the use of film in television showings.

Development of television employing film, according to Farnsworth officials, will remove one of the industry's chief present drawbacks, the high cost of building coaxial cables to relay programs from station to station, because film can be transported readily from point to point and transmitted without waiting for suitable inter-station connections.

The new projector is of the "continuous" rather than "intermittent" type now in general use in the film industry.
